U. S. Takes Case Against Meyers to Grand Jury

Government Starts Action Which Could Mean Life in Jail, $150,000 in Fines

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

The United States yesterday began the most sweeping punitive action in its history against a military officer accused of corruption as the Justice Department opened its case against Maj. Gen. Bennett E. Meyers, retired, before a Federal grand jury here.

United States District Attorney George Morris Fay opened the case for the Government against the wartime AAF procurement officer, who, if convicted on all counts with which he was charged before the Senate War Investigating Committee, could be sentenced to jail for the rest of his life and fined more than $150,000.

In addition, Meyers, deprived of his military decorations and $550-a-month pension, faces a probable court-martial for conduct unbecoming an officer and gentleman.

A member of the Judge Advocate General's Department said he did not believe the entire military history of this country would disclose a case of official corruption with so many ramifications as disclosed in evidence before the Senate, or one in which so many charges are likely to be preferred. He explained, however, that his statement was limited to corruption of an officer. More than once officers have met the extreme penalty for crimes suc has murder, he said.

New York Inquiry Started

Meanwhile, the State of New York has started a separate inquiry into the New York State tax returns of the retired general, who recently purchased an $80,000 estate at Halesite, Long Island.

A spokesman for the New York State Tax Commission and State authorities were interested mostly in Meyers' income tax and tax returns since his retirement from the Army on August 31, 1945.

Meyers' $550-a-month retirement pay was tax-exempt as was his pay when on active duty, but any other income was subject to taxation while he was a legal resident of New York State.

Barely 72 hours after the subcommittee, headed by Senator Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) had closed its hearings into what Air Secretary W. Stuart Symington described as "one of the most shocking scandals ever exposed in the history of our Government," the District Attorney here began to present prosecution witnesses to the Federal grand jury.

Records Put in Evidence

The first two witnesses were Martin Smith and Kenneth Bowers, stenotypist and transcriber, who recorded the evidence of Meyers' wartime transactions before the Senate Investigating Committee.

Presumably they were called to identify the records. The grand jury recessed its hearing until Monday after the records were put in evidence. More subpenas have been issued, some of them for persons who participated in the Senate investigation.

Fay is understood to be confin-

Hannegan Quits Cabinet Post To Run St. Louis Cardinals

By Dillard Stokes
Post Reporter

Postmaster General Robert E. Hannegan yesterday quit the Cabinet to run the St. Louis Cardinals baseball club.

President Truman wished Hannegan luck and made history by naming in his place a postal career man—62-year-old Jesse M. Donaldson, at present the first assistant postmaster general.

The tradition that the national chairman of the party in power heads the Post Office Department was broken some weeks ago. Hannegan announced he was giving up the Democratic chairmanship because of ill health, but stayed on as Postmaster General.

The chairmanship went to Senator McGrath (D., R. I.). Yesterday the President made a complete break with the old political tradition by making Donaldson the first career man ever to head the postal service.

Hannegan carried the fight for Mr. Truman's nomination to the Vice Presidency in 1944, and was the first man Mr. Truman named to his Cabinet after he took Mr. Roosevelt's place. He took office on July 1, 1945. He now leaves the Government to go back to St. Louis, where he used to be football coach at St. Louis University.

He will be president, and a part owner of the Cardinals ball club.

Hannegan wrote Mr. Truman:

"I have come to a final and reluctant decision—to leave your Cabinet on December 1, next, and return to private life.

"No one cherishes more than I your faith and friendship. No words of mine can measure the loyalty I hold for you.

"I see today what you must know—a Nation grateful for your sane and constructive leadership. Your defense of human values has kindled new hopes upon liberty loving people everywhere. You have justified so fully the confidence of the American people in

Hollywood Fires 10 Cited In Contempt

Film Heads Rule They Must Swear They're Not Reds To Be Rehired

New York, Nov. 25 (AP).—The high command of the Nation's movie industry decided today to drop from its payrolls the 10 Hollywood figures cited for contempt of Congress and at the same time announced no known Communists would be hired in the future.

The action was announced by Eric Johnston, president of the Motion Picture Association of America, after a two-day closed session attended by 50 of filmdom's top executives.

None of the 10 men, Johnston's statement said, would be rehired until "he is acquitted or has purged himself of contempt and declared under oath that he is not a Communist."

Usefulness Impaired

The meeting of the executives was attended by two prominent special counsel for the industry: James F. Byrnes, former Secretary of State, and Paul V. McNutt, former High Commissioner of the Philippines.

Johnston said the members of his association "deplore the action of the 10 men cited for contempt by the House of Representatives.

"We did not desire to prejudice their legal rights, but their actions have been a disservice to their employers and have impaired their usefulness to the industry."

The House yesterday by overwhelming votes approved the citations for contempt against the 10 men, including writers, directors and producers. The citations were recommended by the Committee on Un-American Activities after the recent hearings during which each of the men had refused to answer whether he was a Communist.

After announcing the action with respect to the 10 figures, Johnston said "on the broader issue of alleged subversive and disloyal elements in Hollywood, our members are likewise prepared to take positive action.

"We will not knowingly employ a Communist or a member of any party or group which advocates the overthrow of the Government of the United States by force or by an illegal or unconstitutional methods.

"In pursuing this policy, we are not going to be swayed by hysteria or intimidation from any source."

The statement called on Congress "to enact legislation to assist American industry to rid itself of subversive, disloyal elements."

Donald M. Nelson, former war production board chief who now heads the Society of Independent Motion Picture Producers, joined the MPA in the statement.

The executives at the meeting included Barney Balaban of Paramount, Nicholas N. Schenck of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Harry Cohn of Columbia, Jack Warner of Warner Brothers, Dore Schary of RKO Radio, Spyros P. Skouras of Twentieth Century-Fox, J. Cheever Chowdin of Universal, Samuel Goldwyn and Walter Wanger. All of the leading producers and most of the independents were represented.

The 10 men who will be discharged or suspended without compensation are: Albert Maltz, Dalton Trumbo, Samuel Ornitz, John Howard Lawson, Ring Lardner, jr., Lester Cole and Alvah Bessie, writers; Herbert Biberman, directortor-producer; Edward Dmytryk, director, and Robert Adrian Scott, writer and producer.

Recovery Measure Moves Smoothly In Senate, With Vote Likely Today

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

A 108-million-dollar cut in stopgap aid for France, Italy and Austria was voted yesterday by the House Foreign Affairs Committee and relief for China was added to the bill.

The vote cutting the House authorization was not publicly announced, but it was said to be 10 to 9, with several Democratic members absent. The close division raised the possibility of full restoration when the committee reports the bil Monday, or in ensuing House floor action. Representative Robert B. Chipperfield (R., Ill.) sponsored the reduction.

The unexpected slash reduced the western Europe authorization, urgently requested by the Administration from 597 to 489 million dollars.

Senate May Vote Today

The committee on its own hook then added an entirely new 60-million-dollar item for China, bringing the total of the interim bill to 549 million dollars.

These and other striking changes in the emergency foreign relief program contrasted with the full authorization recently voted by the Senate committee.

While the House group was rewriting the measure the Senate yesterday proceeded smoothly toward a probable vote today. Only noncontroversial amendments were added by the Senate and approval there of the full amount seemed assured.

Speaker Joseph W. Martin, jr., (R., Mass.) summoned a GOP steering committee meeting on the measure Monday and a full House Republican conference for Tuesday. He said the House will call up the aid bill Wednesday or Thursday, following Rules Committee clearance.

Changes Are Sketched

House Foreign Affairs Chairman Charles A. Eaton (R., N. J.) and Representative John Vorys (R., Ohio) sketchily explained changes in the bill to newsmen.

Vorys said the reduced amount was based on the committee's own estimate of commodity "availabilities" here and in recipient countries following two weeks of hearings.

He declined to break down the cut by countries, and said this will not be done in the bill. Nor were newsmen given detailed "availability" estimates on which the cut was based.

The 60-million-dollar authorization for China was added on motion of Representative Walter H. Judd (R., Minn.), former medical missionary in China.

Secretary of State George Marshall recently mentioned 60 million dollars as a "spur of the moment" estimate of China relief

50-Foot Seas Pound Army Transport to Pieces Off Canada

Ketchikan, Alaska, Nov. 25 (AP).—Gale-driven seas pounded the Army transport Clarksdale Victory to pieces on a rocky little island off the northern British Columbia coast early today, and an ominous question mark hung over the fate of 48 of the 51 crew members reported aboard.

The bow section of the shattered 10,850-ton ship was nosed against the rocky beach of Hippa island, battered by waves reported breaking 50 feet high against it.

The after section, apparently broken off by the tremendous force of the sea, was submerged.

A Coast Guard plane reported sighting only three survivors on the shore, but officers at headquarters here drew hope for other survivors from the sighting of a lifeboat and life raft on the rocks.

They said it was unlikely that only three men could have succeeded in geting a cumbersme lifeboat safely asore. Others, they said, might have taken sheler in adjacent woods.

An attempt to land a party on the leeward side of the island from the steamer Denali of the Alaska Steamship Co., first ship to reach the scene, ended in near disaster this afternoon.

The rescue boat, forced to turn back to the Denali because of treacherous seas, was smashed before it could be taken aboard. The eight men who manned it reached safety.

A second landing attempt was launched by air. A Grumman amphibious plane set off from Annette Field to attempt a hazardous landing on the island. It carried three men, including a pharmacist's mate with medical supplies.

If water conditions permit, an attempt may be made to fly the survivors to the Denali.

Chest Drive Pledges Near 70% of Goal

Total of $2,717,313 Is Announced at 7th Report Meeting

The 1948 Community Chest Federation campaign yesterday recorded nearly 70 per cent of its $3,900,000 goal.

A total intake of $2,717,313.81, or 69.67 per cent of quota, was announced at the seventh report meeting of the drive, a Dutch-treat, buffet supper at Hotel Mayflower, and guss at the "preview of victory" rally heard the Rt. Rev. Angus Dun, Bishop of Washington, appeal for fresh effort to put the drive over the top.

"We are thinking," he told them, "of the children whose parents have failed them . . . of bewildered young people who have no standards to live by . . . of the old people in homes . . ."

Coverage Not Complete

Despite the "barriers of creed and church and no church," he said, "this is one place where we can draw together as free citizens with a common heritance."

Campaign Chairman Edward H. Foley, jr., described the recent two-week extension of this year's campaign effort as essential because "we hadn't been able to make a complete coverage of all the people who wanted to give.

"I think it is most important that we stay in there," he declared.

A break-down of campaign contributions showed that the Government unit, which had a head-start in soliciting, is leading in the campaign. It chalked up 82.83 per cent of its $1,357,800 quota, with contributions totaling $1,124,648.65.

Breakdown By Units

Several of the Federal agencies reached or went over their goals, including: Securities and Exchange Commission, 299 per cent; Export and Import Bank, 167 per cent; Pan American Union, 105 per cent; United States Maritime Commission, 100 per cent; Office of Scientific Research and Development, 100 per cent; Department of Air Forces, almost 100 per cent.

A breakdown by units showed:

Business number 1, 66.26 per cent of the $1,532,500 quota; business number 2, 76.61 per cent of the $150,000 quota; residential, 65.67 per cent of the $537,500 quota; Alexandria, 78 per cent of

French Union Calls General Railway Strike

Seeking to Force Bonus and Pay Hikes By Schuman Cabinet

By William J. Humphreys

Paris, Nov. 25 (NYHT).—The National Federation of Railwaymen, an affiliate of the Communist-controlled General Federation of Labor (CGT), called for an immediate general rail strike tonight.

A 33-to-511 vote at the union's executive commission ordered the federation's 400,000 members out on strike. The commission asked that a minority of independent employes of the state railroad system join the movement.

Its objective, a communique explained, was to force Premier Robert Schuman's 2-day-old cabinet into granting a high cost of living bonus and pay increases. The strike decision was taken at the same time Schuman was conferring with CGT leaders on wage adjustments for the whole range of French industrial workers.

Many railwaymen are known to oppose strike action until the new government is given an opportunity to consider wage increases

Big 4 Council Schedules 6 Problems

By Ned Russell

London, Nov. 25 (NYHT).—The four-power Council of Foreign Ministers agreed at the opening meeting of their fifth session today to discuss six different problems relating to Germany and Austria, but failed to agree on the order in which they should be taken up.

Five of the items which are to be discussed involve Germany. The sixth concerns a treaty for Austria which would restore that country to a normal peacetime position in the world, and would result in withdrawal of all Red army troops from southeast Europe as well as Austria.

Today's meeting lasted three hours. It was attended by George C. Marshall, American Secretary of State; Ernest Bevin, British Foreign Secretary; Vyacheslav M. Molotov, Soviet Foreign Minister, and Georges Bidault, French Foreign Minister. Each of the ministers was accompanied by his advisers. The meeting was held at Lancaster House, early nineteenth century palace on the edge of St. James's Park overlooking Buckingham Palace.

Typical Early Cordiality

The meeting went off with the cordiality typical of the first few hours of previous sessions of the Council. Each minister pointed to the anxiety felt all over the world about the outcome of the talks. But there was no indication that any of them is yet prepared to surrender on any important issues. Their basic positions appeared to be the same as they were at the last meeting at Moscow last spring.

The ministers spent most of today's meeting arguing over the problem of whether they should tackle the Austrian question first or the German peace treaty. The

U.N. Unit Votes For Palestine Partition, 25-13

But One More Ballot Is Needed to Pass Assembly Today

By Robert Bruskin
Post Reporter

Lake Success, N. Y., Nov. 25.—Partition of the turbulent Holy Land won approval today from the United Nations Palestine Committee, but it was one vote short of the two-thirds majority which will be required in the General Assembly.

The vote was 25 to 13.

American and Canadian delegates felt fairly certain that the extra "yes" would come tomorrow at the Assembly meeting from among 17 nations which abstained from voting today.

Lobby Seeks Extra Vote

On that one vote depends final passage of the American-Soviet compromise plan for creation of independent Jewish and Arab States by next October 1.

Four abstaining nations were looked upon for a positive decision tomorrow: China, New Zealand, the Netherlands and Luxembourg.

The Soviet bloc voted for partition along with the United States, except for Yugoslavia which abstained. Cuba was the only non-Moslem state to vote against the plan.

A lobby of partition advocates, led by the United States delegation, was reported tonight to be rummaging for that one vote. All advocates seemed certain that none of the abstainers would vote "no" tomorrow.

Sir Carl Berendsen, chairman of the New Zealand delegation, told the committee he reserved the

Truman Expected To Commute Term Of Mayor Curley

President Truman is expected to sign a commutation today for Mayor James M. Curley of Boston, who is serving a 6-to-18-month Federal mail fraud sentence.

High-ranking Justice Department sources told a reporter the commutation is designed to release the mayor and former Democratic Congressman from Massachusetts in time for him to spend Thanksgiving with his family.

Mr. Truman talked yesterday with Attorney General Clark about clemency for Curley, who began serving his term last June in the Federal Correctional Institution at Danbury, Conn.

The White House declined comment.

Curley was convicted by a Federal District Court jury here last January 18 along with two other former officials of Engineers Group, Inc. The Government charged that through "fantastic lies" the firm obtained more than $60,000 from clients by representing it could obtain Government contracts for them.

Grain Speculator List Reads Like Occupation Census

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Government officials—Federal, State and local—barbers, bankers, butchers, doctors, butlers and maids, judges, lawyers, druggists, and even school teachers, clergymen and students have been speculating in grain.

This was revealed by the Commodity Exchange Authority yesterday in a report prepared for Congress for use in considering a Government request for power to limit such operations.

The two biggest categories speculating in wheat during last September's hectic bull market in that grain, were farmers and "housewives."

Officials admit that they look upon the latter category with jaundiced eyes—that many accounts for housewives may be "cover-ups" for husbands or others who don't want their own names to appear on brokers' lists.

At the height of the frenzied September market, CEA asked the Nation's brokers to furnish lists of all accounts on September 17 involving 1000 bushels or more of wheat, and the dealings in those accounts during the following three days.

The names of 308 "housewives" appeared on these lists. Their accounts showed they were long 7,392,000 bushels of wheat, and short 3,720,000.

Farmers in the market numbered 846; their accounts were long 8,452,000 bushels and short 2,138,000.

On September 17 the report shows, there were 3827 speculative accounts in wheat on the Chicago Board of Trade. These were in addition to 466 hedging accounts, sometimes referred to as "legitimate" accounts, of grain merchants, millers, processors, exporters, feed and seed dealers, etc.

These 3827 speculative accounts were long 83,228,000 bushels of wheat, which means they had bought wheat for future delivery. They were short, which means they had sold 40,255,000 bushels they didn't physically possess, for future delivery.

It was this period that President Truman referred to on October 5, in announcing his food conservation program, when he said:

"In this past September, trading averaged almost 30 million bushels a day. In a single month, on one exchange, almost half the year's crop was traded—bought and sold—just plain gambled."

He later added:

"The cost of living in this country must not be a football to be kicked about by gamblers in grain."

Shortly after Mr. Truman's remark, Secretary of Agriculture Anderson on October 9, in Chicago declared:

Officials Mum on Secrecy In Traffic Ticket Adjustment

Vocal cords in official throats were tightened yesterday in the wake of Maj. Robert J. Barrett's decree that police adjustment of traffic tickets is none of the public's business.

Most of them could croak only, "No comment."

Even Police Superintendent Barrett, who elaborated at length 24 hours earlier on why press and public should not be informed, had become a terse commentator on the subject.

"I will get a ruling from the Corporation Counsel's Office on this matter," said Barrett. "If I'm wrong, I'm willing to be told."

Beyond that, Barrett had no comment.

Barrett announced Monday that he was discontinuing the customary release of a list of traffic ticket adjustments to reporters pending an official ruling from the Corporation Counsel.

Commissioner John Russell Young had the best excuse for not commenting on Barrett's action. He was confined to bed at his home with a cold.

Commissioner Guy Mason had no comment.

"I'm not going to say anything about something I know nothing about," said Mason.

Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young had no comment. He added that the matter had not come before the Commissioners yesterday and that he could not comment until it did.

Traffic Director George E. Keneipp's contribution was: "No comment."

There was comment from other quarters, however. Nathan Lubar,

Negroes Obtain Temporary Injunction Against Rail Union

By Howard L. Dutkin
Post Reporter

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen yesterday was temporarily enjoined from continuing alleged discriminatory practices which make Negro firemen ineligible for promotion on two Southeastern railroads.

The preliminary injunction was granted by Associate Justice Alexander Holtzoff in District Court in response to motions by attorneys for 21 Negro firemen. The plaintiffs charge that they and "1200 others similarly situated" have been classified as "nonpromotable" under terms of a 1941 agreement between the brotherhood and the railroads.

In response to pleas by attorneys for the defendants, Holtzoff agreed to stay execution of the injunction for one week to give the defendants a chance to apply for a stay from the United States Court of Appeals pending appeal.

At the same time, Holtzoff refused a motion on the part of counsel for the plaintiffs, also to enjoin the railroads. The judge based his refusal on the grounds that:

"As the court views this action, it is primarily against the Brotherhood because the complaint shows that it is the Brotherhood that was instrumental in securing discriminatory action on the part of the railroads."

Under terms of the 1941 agreement, the plaintiffs assert provisions are made for the rights of "promotable firemen" and exempts

Eccles for Increase In Bank Reserves

Federal Reserve Chairman Believes Plan Would Control Inflation; Snyder Disagrees

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

Chairman Marriner S. Eccles of the Federal Reserve Board yesterday asked Congress for authority to demand of all commercial banks a temporary "special reserve" which would serve to limit credit expansion.

Eccles, who emphasized that he was not speaking for the Administration, but only for the governors of the Federal Reserve Board, made his proposal, as part of an over all anti-inflation program, to the Joint Congressional Committee on the Economic Report.

But on the other side of the Capitol and at the same time, Treasury Secretary John W. Snyder declared his opposition to Eccles' suggestion. He told the House Banking and Currency Committee that he thought it would not have the desired result of limiting inflationary credit extension by banks. He did not expand the point.

Snyder, lead-off Administration witness at House hearings on the 10-point anti-inflation program of the Administration, declined to discuss any of those 10 points in any detail.

In passing, he indorsed the first point of the program, restoration of controls on consumer credit—installment buying—and in answer to a question, admitted he believed reimposition of price controls was necessary. He also told of some of the Treasury's own fiscal and debt management programs to restrain inflationary bank credit.

But the phase he stressed, and the one on which he asked specific congressional help, was not one mentioned directly in the 10 points, but rather in the body of the President's remarks to Congress on November 17. This was an intensified selling program of Government savings bonds.

Would Expand Sales Staff

He estimated that he needed to increase his expenditures from a present $2,900,000 a year to $4,600,000 to expand his bond sales promotion staff. This, he said, would make an important contribution to the control of inflationary pressures.

"It withdraws funds in the hands of the individual from the spending stream, thus providing funds which enable the Treasury to retire bank-held debt," he explained. "This in turn results in a reduction of the money supply in the economy."

For his part, Eccles also indorsed the proposal to intensify the savings-bond selling campaign. In their prepared statements and answers to questions before the two different committees, he and Snyder showed that they were also in agreement on additional major recommendations to check inflation.

Eccles Urges Longer Hours

These were:

1. Intensified production of goods, as the ultimate and most important solution to inflation. Eccles went so far as to urge longer hours of work by labor and less spending.

2. A fiscal policy to achieve the maximum Federal surplus, to be used to pay off bank-held Government bonds, and thus reduce the money supply and the potential granting of credit.

3. No tax reductions at this time.

Eccles also urged the suspension of future demands by organized labor for wage increases, and the holding down, or even reduction, of prices by businessmen. He suggested also the elimination of the farm price-support program unless price ceilings were also reimposed on the commodities affected.

But on the point for which Eccles asked congressional authorization—the setting up of a "special reserve" requirement—Snyder drew the line. He told reporters that the measures to meet Mr. Truman's call for limitation of bank credit expansion were in the bailiwick of the Federal Reserve Board. But at the same time, he said he did not approve Eccles' proposal.

Urge Bond Retirement

Most of the testimony of both men was concerned with the same inflationary menace in the banking and Federal debt system:

Commercial banks, holding about 70 billion dollars in Government securities, can sell these bonds and the Federal Reserve System is more or less obliged to buy them, to maintain the market.

But these sales by the banks create an equal amount of bank reserves held by the Federal Reserve System. The reserve requirements are now set at 20 per cent of deposits for big city banks and 14 per cent for "country banks. Thus every additional dollar of reserves which the banks establish to their credit with the Federal Reserve System permits them to expand their loans by about $6.

Therefore Government bonds held by Commercial banks constitute a source of potential six-fold credit expansion. Retirement of these bonds, both Eccles and Snyder agreed, reduces the credit expansion source. So also does conversion of the debt from bank-held to individual-held.

Favors Increased Reserves

But in addition, Eccles proposed that reserve requirements be increased. For technical reasons, he suggested accomplishing this by a special reserve, rather than a direct increase of the regular reserve ratio.

He uged that "commercial banks be required as a temporary measure to hold some percentage of their demand and time deposits, in addition to present reserves, in a special reserve in the form either of short-term Government securities or cash, cash items, interbank balances, or balances with Federal Reserve Banks."

The special reserve, he proposed, would have a top limit of 25 per cent of demand, and 10 per cent of time deposits.

In his statement to the Joint Economic Committee, Eccles gave one of the most emphatic warnings yet heard on the inflationary threat.

"We are already in the advanced stages of this disease. It is no longer a question of preventing it, but of moderating so far as possible its ultimate ravages," he said.

Fears Ultimate Deflation

He condemned the "premature" removal of price and other inflation controls and the failure to provide a substitute for them. The Nation's effective demand was such, he said, that a "sharp rise in prices was inevitable."

"It would be blindly and foolishly optimistic to believe that the spiral of inflation can continue through further general wage, price and profit increases and further over-all expansion of credit without ultimate serious deflation. The longer the necessary readjustment is delayed, the longer it will take to reach a stable condition of employment and production," he declared.

In passing, he took a vicious swat at the Administration's own policies of supplying easy credit for home building purposes. The booming cost of housing is probably "the most inflationary factor" in the Nation, he said. Builders and sellers are making "unconscionable profits" through easy credit, more than half of which was "sponsored by the Federal Government," he pointed out.

Inconsistency Hinted At

Why encourage easy, inflationary, credit in this consumer field, he seemed to ask, when the Government is proposing to clamp down on credit for installment buying of other consumer goods, such as autos and household appliances?

This latter subject, also part of Mr. Truman's anti-inflation program, has been under consideration by the Senate Banking and Currency Committee. Yesterday, it decided to hold upon presenting legislation to control consumer credit until it further investigated the problem of bank credit.

On Monday, it will have before it the Federal Advisory Council, composed of 12 prominent bankers, one from each Federal Reserve District. They are flatly opposed to Eccles' proposed approach to the problem of bank credit expansion. They claim that banks are indulging in no such inflationary action.

Fuel Rationing Proposed

In other testimony at the Capitol yesterday on the Administration control program, Undersecretary of Interior Oscar L. Chapman told the House Banking and Currency Committee that allocations, rationing and price control were necessary for coal and oil.

He painted a picture of tight supply for these two commodities, and said allocations of steel were also necessary to lick the problem of fuel transportation—in pipelines, ships and particularly railroad tank and coal cars.

Principally, Chapman emphasized the need for allocations and indicated the allocating power in itself might be sufficient. But, he said, the Government needed rationing and price control powers in the event of an emergency situation.

He said motorists will soon be asked to cut down on pleasure driving as part of a large-scale voluntary fuel conservation program.

Ga. Official Assails Aid Plan, Luckman

An attack upon Charles Luckman, head of the Citizens Food Committee, and a proposal that relief under the Marshall Plan be administered by the United Nations led to two stiff arguments in congressional hearings yesterday.

The attack upon Luckman was made by Tom Linder, Georgia Commissioner of Agriculture, before the Senate Agriculture Committee.

When Chairman Arthur Capper (R., Kans.) declined to stop Linder, Senator Scott W. Lucas (D., Ill.) stalked out of the meeting.

Reads From Magazine

The witness declared he was opposed to President Truman's request for power to deal with inflation as part of the aid program. He then read excerpts from Time Magazine about Luckman, who is president of Lever Brothers, Inc., soap manufacturers, and added:

"Luckman is representative of the international monopolies which stand to get more out of the foreign aid program than the people it is designed to help."

Lucas called such testimony "nonsense" and called upon Capper to halt the witness. When Capper declined, Lucas, who is Democratic whip of the Senate, declared:

"Here we are listening to a speech taken from a magazine, and I don't propose to listen any longer."

As he stalked out, Lucas called out angrily: "I don't propose to listen to such nonsense."

Aiken Also Objects

Another who took exception to Linder's statements was Senator George D. Aiken (R., Vt.). Aiken asked Linder if he had verified a statement Linder had attributed to a magazine, that the Procter & Gamble Soap Co. also is controlled by the "international Lever Brothers monopoly."

Linder said that he had not, and invited Aiken to do so.

Several members of the Senate Appropriations Committee took exceptions to a recommendation by Russell Smith, witness for the National Farmers Union, that the Marshall Plan be administered by the United Nations "Economic Commission for Europe." He urged such action to keep the United States from "slipping further away from the U. N."

Smith, as well as Edward O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, pledged support of both the stopgap and long-range relief plans.

needs from April 1 through July 1, 1948.

But Marshall said the State Department is still working on details of the China relief program. He told House and Senate committees it would be submitted separately from European relief, since different considerations were involved.

Judd said the House Committee did not propose to "go over the head of the State Department" on China relief. He said it was simply providing an authorization on the assumption the State Department China proposals will be ready around the first of the year.

Other changes in the House bill tightened checks on interim aid funds all along the line. The bill provided in addition:

1. An authorization for RFC to advance 100 million dollars of the interim aid total to cover any emergency relief needs before Congress actually appropriates the money. This was left out of the Senate bill, but is expected to be accepted in conference.

2. Authorized any new Government agency created to administer long-range foreign aid, to take over interim relief, when and if created. The State Department's post-UNRRA relief set-up meanwhile would handle the program. (Chairman Christian A. Herter (R., Mass.) of the special House Committee on Foreign Aid yesterday introduced a bill to create an eight-man, indpendent emergency foreign reconstruction authority, with an over-all foreign aid council, to run "any" foreign aid program Congress approves.)

3. Provided statutary authority for a voluntary Food Conservation committee. Vorys said this was done to insure continuation of the present Citizens Food Committee or a similar one, for the life of the aid program.

4. Tentatively provided authority for purchase of up to 25 per cent of relief goods from outside the United States, as in the Senate bill. Still pending, however, was an amendment to restrict foreign purchases to goods whose foreign prices do not exceed United States market prices.

5. Omitted a Senate bill provision permitting our commanding general in Austria to work out with the President's approval separate agreements covering handling or relief in Austria and in the Soviet-occupied zone.

6. Proposed "incentive goods" be supplied to Europe to promote production there of essential commoditites in short supply here.

The Senate, meanwhile, recessed at 3:30 p. m. until noont today, with only four non-controversial amendments in the path of a stopgag vote. Whether House changes would prolong the debate, upsetting plans to pass the bill today, could not be determined. Several of the House changes will meet stiff Senate opposition in conference.

The Senate amended its own bill by accepting, viva voce, two proposals by Senator Joseph H. Ball (R., Minn.). One required buying policies that will "exert the least possible upward pressure" on prices in this country. Another was designed to make plain that approval of stopgap aid did not commit Congress to a long-range recovery program.

Connally Leads Speechmaking

Senator Tom Connally (D., Tex.), former foreign relations chairman, led the speechmaking with a plea for quick passage to help Western Europe resist "the fate that may befall countries coming under the influence or domination of Russia."

Resuming the bitter criticism of the Soviet Union, touched off Monday by Senate Foreign Relations Chairman Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.), Connally said:

"Whatever indirect result this bill may have is in behalf of the freedom of Western Europe and in defensive resistance to aggression that would reduce Western Europe to vassalage and political slavery."

Senator H. Alexander Smith (R., N. J.) also called for swift approval of interim aid "to buy time until we can set up a long-range program for Europe's economic rehabilitation."

In one exchange with Vandenberg, over use of local currency receipts from relief goods as a revolving fund to buy more relief, Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio), remarked:

"It does seem to me that we are getting into the internal affairs of other nations to an extent that may be dangerous."

Vandenburg said revolving fund use of local currency receipts, under joint United States supervision, is substantially the same as under the current relief program. He stressed that Congress was passing on a "90-day" program.

Taft said he did not object to use of the receipts to pay our own local relief expenses but questioned use of the fund for local work relief or whether a "WPA program" would be popular in England. Taft asked if we wouldn't be presuming to say how British pounds are spent in Britain, for example.

Vandenberg said England is not involved in the interim program. He said he did not think it was bad stopgap policy to provide means of multiplying relief benefits.

U. S. Permits Illegal Exports To Russia, Rep. Taber Charges

By The Associated Press

Chairman Taber (R., N. Y.) of the House Appropriations Committee yesterday accused the State Department of violating the law by permitting shipment of food and other supplies to Russia and Soviet-dominated countries.

He told the House there has been a "constant and deliberate violation of the law, especially the lend-lease law." and demanded an end to what he termed the "appeasement" of Russia.

(There was no immediate comment from the State Department. President Truman told a news conference last week he sees no reason for halting sales of heavy machinery to Russia, explaining that the equipment is being used for rehabilitation of farms and power dams).

Before Taber spoke, other members made similar demands for curbs on shipments to Russia. Representative McGregor (R., Ohio) said Mr. Truman could stop the exports and should do so immediately.

Representative Welchel (R., Ohio) said he would seek early action on legislation to restrict shipments unless the Commerce Department gives assurance that the goods will not hurt this Nation's security or its economy.

Taber said if the United States stopped all lend-lease and UNRRA shipments to Russia and refused to allow the export of "things which could be used to make trouble for the United States, Russia would have ceased long since the policy of upsetting United Nations' meetings" and "would have agreed to a world peace which would have been of great benefit to all mankind."

Despite specific prohibitions of law, Taber claimed, between January 1 and September 30 of this year, 113 million dollars worth of food, petroleum, machinery and other supplies were sent to Russia, while lend-lease shipments to the Soviet from May 30, 1945, to October 31, 1947, totaled 226 million dollars.

"Among these exports, those that were for postwar relief, postwar rehabilitation, or postwar reconstruction were in direct and deliberate violation of the law," he said.

Senate-House Group Asks Atomic Checkup

By The Associated Press

The Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee called yesterday for a checkup on what Russia and the rest of the world is doing in the atomic field.

Chairman Hickenlooper (R., Iowa) told a reporter the group will arrange at a meeting today a schedule of closed sessions to hear reports from the Atomic Energy Commission, military leaders and others.

Other committee members said they are interested in learning, among other things, what the chiefs of staff know about Russia's progress in attempts to develop atomic bombs.

Hickenlooper said the committee may make a report of its activities to Congress during the current session.

Frederick, Md., Nov. 25 (Spl.).—A relic of this city's horse and buggy days bit the dust last night when a high wind toppled the cast iron figure atop the Marie Diehl Memorial Fountain into the street.

The pedestal and figure were erected approximately 40 years ago to serve as a drinking fountain for "both man and beast" by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

Ship Loses Rudder at Sea

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 25 (AP).—The Liberty ship Juliette Low reported today she had lost her rudder in heavy seas about 275 miles southeast of Cape Henry. She normally carries a crew of 44. The ship was out of Port Arthur, Tex., bound for France with a coal cargo.

British Balk on Shipping Plan

By The Associated Press

The United States has proposed that British merchant ships carry food and raw materials to occupied Germany as one price for this country taking over British dollar obligations in their combined zones.

Government officials told a reporter yesterday the United States has conditioned its willingness to revise the bizonal agreement on British acceptance of this suggestion but that thus far the British have refused.

If the British and American delegates reach agreement, the United States will be willing to assume Britain's share of the expense of importing food, fertilizer and petroleum products into Germany, thus relieving Britain of the necessity of paying about 320 millio dollars during 1948.

Officials said the United State feels Britain must contribute mor sterling and services like shippin to make up for the extra dolla burden this nation will take over

State Department Press Office Lincoln White told a news confer ence today British-American con ferees have made some progres in resolving another thorny issue—whether Britain should convert into dollars approximately 70 mil lion dollars now in the joint ex port-import agency.

Reversing an earlier position British delegates now have indi cated their willingness to converi this sum provided conversions are scattered over a period of time.

Underground Plant Value Questioned

After Holiday

Distilleries Query U. S. On Future

Representatives of several of the nation's largest distilleries yesterday asked Agriculture Secretary Anderson how much beverage alcool the Government plans to permit them to manufacture after the present 60-day holiday ends December 25.

The delegation was headed by former Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson, now special counsel for the Distilled Spirits Institute.

The 60-day shutdown by distillers, which is one month old today, will end Christmas Day. Aroused by Anderson's request of Congress for power to limit mashing operations after that date, distillers are anxious to know just what to expect when the holiday ends.

The whisky-haking holiday was agreed to by the distillers as part of the food conservation program of the Citizens Food Committee.

Another part of the food group's program for food conservation, Eggless Day, may end shortly after the first of the year, it was stated at the Agriculture Department.

"Eggless Days," a spokesman said, "will come to a natural end" when production enters its peak period in January or February.

Army Experts Say Plan No Answer In Modern War

Army experts seeking a preparedness formula based on Nazi Germany's wartime accomplishments and shortcomings, concluded yesterday that underground and widely scattered factories are not the answer.

"The implications of air power and atomic energy on war production and the supporting economy are vital and unsolved," a report prepared under the direction of Maj. Gen. G.-F. Robinson asserted.

"It may be useful to caution, however, that underground construction is not the solution it may at first seem.

Transportation Problem Remains

"Not alone is it costly and time-consuming to prepare. It may interfere with mass production techniques and so be inefficient in operation.

"Dispersal of industry has a similar result. Neither solves the transportation question."

Robinson's findings said that even at the start of World War II many German industries had gone underground but the bombing of transportation facilities and surface installations crippled their output.

Germany Fumbled Chance

The survey concluded that Germany fumbled a golden opportunity to win the war when it failed to organize its industry for all-out production before 1942.

"Had she started sooner, neither the Allied powers of the west nor Russia might have had time to outdistance German war production," the report said.

Robinson now is a member of the National Security Resources Board.

The study was started last spring at the direction of Kenneth C. Royall, then Undersecretary of War, now Secretary of the Army.

World Bank Bond Interest Tax-Free For Foreigners

Interest on bonds paid by the 46-nation World Bank to foreigners living outside this country is exempt from Federal taxes by Treasury ruling, the bank said yesterday.

The exemption applies also to interest paid on the bank's bonds to foreign corporations not engaged in trade or business in the United States. The Treasury said Congress has granted the Federal tax immunity.

Treasury assurance of the exemption is expected to make the bank's bonds more attractive to foreign investors. Borrowing on securities is the bank's principal means of raising funds to lend to its 46 members for reconstruction and development.

Thus far, the bank has put out only one bond issue, totaling 250 million dollars, since it was organized last year. Using that and capital subscriptions paid in by members, it has loaned nearly 500 million dollars to four European countries and has about 500 million dollars left to lend.

Wheat Rises To New High, Then Breaks

Rumors, later officially denied, that the Government was halting all grain purchases for export until January 1 halted a rapidly rising wheat market yesterday.

Before the break came, however, the market set two new records. December wheat in Chicago reached a new 30-year high of $3.16 a bushel. At the same time May wheat reached $3.01 a bushel.

This was the first time in the 99 years of the Chicago Board of Trade that two future deliveries have hold above $3 at the same time.

Before the close, December contracts dropped from $3.16 to $3.09¾. All futures dropped, with the range being 3¾ to 6½ cents below Monday's close.

Also affecting the market was better weather news from the winter wheat belt of Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas.

The Weather Bureau's weekly weather and crop report said recent rains had further relieved conditions. "Warm, sunny weather, at least for a few days, is needed now, to facilitate the completion of seeding and to promote the growth of late seeded wheat, although additional moisture should come soon to maintain good development," the report said.

"Moisture now appears sufficient to sprout all volunteer and seeded wheat in northwestern Texas, although additional rains will be needed to sustain growth," it added.

Air Force Orders 37 Planes Dwarfing 'Flying Boxcar'

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

A new and improved version of the Fairchild Packet—nearly doubling the troop and weapon carrying capacity of the "flying box car"—was announced yesterday.

The Air Force said it had signed a 22-million-dollar contract with the Fairchild Engine & Airplane Co. for construction of 37 of the new military cargo craft. They will be known as C-119's and—like C-82's—be assigned to the Air Force Troop Carrier Command to transport the Army's airborne forces.

Fairchild officials said the order will keep their Hagerstown, Md., plan operating at substantially the present level at least through next year. The current order for 200 C-82's will be completed by June, and the first of the C-119's is expected to be delivered in midsummer.

A Fairchild spokesman said that the present Hagerstown payroll of about 3500 employes may dip to 3000 next year, but will rise to 3500 again when the new order gets rolling. At one time during the war, Fairchild employed 8000 workers in Hagerstown.

Main differences of the new Packet over the old version is in engine power. Two Bratt & Whitney "wasp majors" of 2650 horsepower will give the "boxcar" a cruising speed of 231 miles an hour, greater range and increased carrying capacity.

The Air Force said the new Packet was designed to carry a cargo load of 9 tons for a range of 2000 miles. Like the C-82 it will transport 42 fully equipped combat troops, but can also carry 20 parachute loads of supplies.

Other new features include movement of the pilot's compartment farther into the nose to give greater visibility, new-type doors in the tail and four-bladed Hamilton Standard propellers of improved design. The craft is over 8 feet longer and the boxcar fuselage has been widened and lengthened.

Pension Reduced, Veteran Kills Doctor and Self

Ottawa, Nov. 25 (U.P.).—A veteran of World War I, who was notified recently that a medical examination had resulted in the reduction of his disability pension, today shot to death the examining physician and then killed himself.

The physician, Dr. R. M. Bowie, was in his office in the Department of Veterans Affairs when Harry Page walked in and asked: "Are you Dr. Bowie?," a physician in an adjoining office said.

Dr. R. F. Flegg said that almost immediately three shots were fired, followed seconds later by a fourth shot which Page fired into his heart.

'Domination' In Trade Talks Laid to U. N.

Havana, Cuba, Nov. 25 (AP).—Argentina led a revolt today against what it called "Lake Success domination" of the International Trade Organization of "sovereign nations."

Dr. Dieglo Luis Molinari, head of the Argentine delegation to the 58-nation trade conference, told an interviewer the conference here was economic while those of the United Nations at Lake Success were political.

He declared that Trygve Lie, secretary general of the United Nations, should not dictate to the Havana meeting.

Argentina championed the cause of 10 nations not members of the United Nations demanding equal votig privileges with U. N. members.

The attitude of the United States delegation was reported to be that the rules set by the Assembly cannot be changed here.

2 Bills Introduced In House to Limit Russians in U. S.

Two House members yesterday introduced bills to limit strictly the number of Russians, or citizens of Soviet satellite nations, permitted in the United States.

Representative Thomas A. Jenkins (R., Ohio) introduced a bill to prohibit the issuance of either immigration or visitor's visas to citizens of Russia or the eastern European "satellite states." It also would restrict the number of visas issued to official representatives of those countries to the number granted by them to American officials.

Representative William C. Cole (R., Mo.) also offered a measure which would hold the number of citizens from Soviet-bloc states allowed in this country to the number of Americans granted entry to those countries.

"Russia and her satellites have seen fit to restrict travel of the handful of American officials and citizens now in those countries," he said, "but at the same time hundreds of citizens from those countries are permitted to travel freely throughout the United States."

69 Prisoners Talked Out Of Barricade; Guns Help

Waupun, Wis., Nov. 25 (AP).—Life at Wisconsin's grim, gray prison, which in 96 years never has had a successful mass break, was back in its iron groove tonight, but the laundry at Wisconsin General Hospital will be a day late.

Sixty-nine convicts, ranging from a wife-deserter to a murderer, who barricaded themselves in the prison laundry building and for 15 hours waited with what one of four hostage guards described as "blood in their eyes" while officers fenced them in with riot weapons, wilted before a scolding from their warden.

Nearly 200 officers from a dozen communities were poised at dawn when Warden John C. Burke went to the window of an adjoining building, declared "You haven't acted very well up to now," and ordered the insurgents to come out by groups within two minutes.

The first group appeared on time, in 10 minutes all 69 were back in their cells.

The unexplained rebellion that began late yesterday when a gang of convicts from the auto tag division of the prison industries burst into the laundry and blocked the exits.

The second floor of the laundry building was scarcely disarranged. There was some litter of broomstick clubs, one or two lengths of pipe and an ingenious twine brush with a "loaded" handle, abandoned by the convicts when they gave up. Also there was a hastily drawn checker board with shirt buttons for men, and two decks of playing cards contrived of laundry tickets by men waiting out the hours.

Otherwise, the chief result of the rebellion was that the laundry for Wisconsin General Hospital at Madison would be delayed a day.

Six American GIs Released By Yugoslavs

Trieste, Nov. 25 (AP).—Yugoslav authorities today released six American soldiers taken prisoner yesterday when they apparently crossed into Yugoslav territory while on border patrol in the Free State, Army officials said.

Details of their capture and their names will be made public in 48 hours, the Army said. They were taken into custody about 15 miles from Trieste.

Capture of the patrol brought to 18 the number of American soldiers taken into custody by the Yugoslavs in this area since August. All have been released in good physical condition after undergoing questioning.

Leftist Papers Bombed in Rome

Two Killed in Renewal of Violence After Lull of Three Days; Peasants Call Strike

Rome, Nov. 25 (U.P.).—A bomb wrecked the office of two left-wing newspapers tonight, at the end of a day in which two persons were killed and two injured during attacks by Communist-led mobs in northern and southern Italy on police and conservative political parties.

The bomb shattered glass showcases full of leftist literature and smashed doors in the building where the Communist newspaper Unita and the left-wing Socialist organ Avanti are published. No one was hurt.

Earlier, one Communist and one Christian Democrat were killed and two Communists injured in a renewal of violence after a three-day lull.

Peasants Begin Strike

The two deaths occurred in Calabria Province, the "toe" of the Italian boot, as peasants began a strike similar to the one in nearby Puglia Province which caused many of the 22 deaths in the violence campaign.

The Calabria strikers blocked roads throughout the province. Many villages were completely isolated by the roadblocks.

In Brisignano, near Cosenza, two Communists were injured when police opened fire on a mob which was attacking the headquarters of the rightist Common Man Party. One later died of his injuries.

At Reggio di Calabria, opposite Sicily on the Strait of Messina, a 21-year-old Christian Democratic student was shot and killed during a meeting of the Catholic Action Association.

Earlier violence in the industrial town of Modena, southeast of Milan, kept the town in a state of terror for 12 hours during the night and early morning.

Mistaken Identity

The disturbances began when a crowd of citizens set upon three newsboys selling the weekly Communist Battle, apparently mistaking them for Fascists. Shouting "get the Fascists!" the crowd chased the boys through the streets. One newsboy was caught and severely mauled.

Today's incidents were the first since last Friday in the Communist-inspired campaign which began November 4.

The government was continuing to "lean over backward" in its efforts to appease the leftist rioters. Police today arrested four Monarchists accused of burning the Communist headquarters at Sessa Aurunca, near Naples, in reprisal for Communist attacks on Monarchist offices.

French Rail Strike Called to meet inflationary living costs. Like the government, they consider impulsive strikes as "politically (or Communist) inspired."

If the non-Communist railwaymen resist the federation order in sufficient numbers, it should provide the first test of strength for the Schuman government and perhaps result in serious disorders with Communist control of a major union.

After last June's railway strike, which forced former Premier Paul Ramadier quickly to grant wage increases, an independently minded railway union man, Andre Lafond, started organizing the anti-Communist "Circle of Trade Union Action" within the framework of the CGT railroad federation. The Circle's strength is not known, but it may be disclosed within the next several hours.

The general rail strike order was the first serious threat to Premier Schuman's government, which has as yet not even faced the National Assembly. The Premier, after winning the Assembly's confidence on Saturday by a 412 to 184 vote, only succeeded in completing his cabinet at 1 a. m. Monday. He is scheduled to present his Ministers to the Assembly Thursday afternoon.

The strike vote by the railway federation's executive commission followed a day in which secret ballot returns showed that large numbers of local unions were in favor of continuing work three Western powers wanted to take up Austria first, and Molotov wanted to take up the German peace treaty. Despite a French effort to introduce a compromise, the ministers failed to solve the issue today.

Set for Discussion

In the end, they agreed to discuss these items, but not necessarily in this order:

1. Report of the Austrian Treaty Commission.

2. Economic principles, level of postwar German economy and reparations.

3. Form and scope of the provisional political organization of Germany.

4. The American-proposed four-power treaty on disarmament and demilitarization of Germany, and other questions relating to security.

5. Implementation of the decision taken at the Moscow session of the Council of Foreign Ministers on demilitarization in Germany.

6. Preparation of the German peace treaty, the discussion to cover the problems of Germany's frontiers and procedure for drawing up the treaty.

But there remained tonight the familiar three-to-one disagreement over what item should come first in the deliberations. This issue will be argued again at the next meeting tomorrow afternoon.

No New Arguments

Today's discussion failed to produce any new arguments, but there is still a chance, however, slim it may be, that the ministers will be able to surmount this first obstacle and get down to discussion of the basic problems confronting them and threatening to formalize the division of Germany and Europe.

Bidault suggested that the ministers' deputies debate the one major issue of the problem—the question of German assets—and report back to the ministers.

Molotov objected, however, on the ground that the problem was so important that the ministers themselves should handle it.

Bevin tried another compromise, he suggested that the ministers discuss the assets problem briefly, air their views on it, and then turn the whole thing over to the deputies. He pointed out that the United States, Britain and France all wanted to get the problem out of the way and only the Soviet Union was preventing this.

Attitude Unacceptable

Molotov reported, however, that that was no way to handle the problem. He hinted that he thought the three Western powers had organized their opposition to the Soviet view and said he could not accept their attitude.

Molotov insisted that the German peace treaty question should be paramount on the agenda, because it was the most important issue.

Marshall conceded its importance, but pointed out that the Austrian treaty was fairly near completion, except for the thorny problem of German assets. Besides, he noted, Austria deserved priority over Germany. The country was the first victim of Nazi aggression, the Big Four powers had agreed at Moscow in 1943 to regard the country as liberated and not defeated, and even the satellite treaties had already been completed.

Bidault took much the same line, although he stressed France's urgent interest in early settlement of the German problem.

Marshall argued that discussion of the German treaty was largely a procedural issue. Logically, he said, it should wait settlement of such basic questions as the political and economic unification of Germany. This is a stand to which the three Western ministers are expected to cling firmly.

The original draft agenda submitted by the United States, Britain and France placed the German peace treaty at the bottom and included the problem of Germany's frontiers for separate debate. Molotov thought this unnecessary. Besides, he added, the Soviet Union regarded Germany's eastern frontier with Poland as fixed by the Postdam and Yalta decisions.

He was contradicted promptly by Bevin, who noted that Britain had agreed only provisionally to the eastern frontier which the Potsdam agreement said would be subject to confirmation by the general peace conference.

Germans Sign Trade Accord

Frankfurt, Nov. 25 (AP).—The combined Anglo-American zones of Germany will ship iron and steel products to the Soviet zone in exchange for agricultural products under an inter-zonal trade agreement signed in Berlin today.

The new trade agreement for 1948, signed by German officials of the two areas, envisages an exchange of goods between East and West valued at 313,729,000 marks ($31,372,900 at the military exchange rate).

Denfeld Nominated To Succeed Nimitz

President Truman yesterday formally nominated Admiral Louis E. Denfeld to be Chief of Naval Operations, succeeding Admiral of the Fleet Chester Nimitz, who is expected to leave the post next month.

Mr. Truman also named Clarence B. Bowers of Hyde Park, Pa., to represent him at the Reading (Pa.) Bicentennial Convention.

Aid to Banomyong By U. S. Is Alleged

Bangkok, Siam, Nov. 25 (U.P.).—Provisional Premier Khuang Aphaiwong today indirectly accused the United States Navy of aiding the escape to Singapore of Siam's chief political opposition leader.

Aphaiwong said his agents had reported seeing former Premier Nai Pridi Banomyong and his private secretary aboard a United States picket boat at the Chaophya River seaplane base in Bangkok last Wednesday.

Banomyong, wartime leader of the Free Thai resistance movement, is the chief political opponent of Marshal Luang Phibun Songgram, wartime Japanese puppet Premier and "strong man" behind the coup which installed Aphaiwong's government.

His secretary, Vajarachai Chaisithiwet, has been formally accused of shooting King Ananda Mahidol in June, 1946.

Lieut. Comdr. Alfred W. Gardes, Jr., commander of the boat, flatly denied today that he had spirited the two men out of Siam.

"I categorically deny this," he said. "I was on a picket boat that day, yes. And I had a Siamese naval officer on board as a guest. We had engine trouble at sea and limped back on one engine, arriving after dark—but the Siamese officer returned with us."

In Kashmir Case

Nehru Hits Pakistan Officials

New Delhi, Nov. 25 (AP).—Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru told the constituent Assembly of India today his government had "sufficient evidence" to prove that the tribal invasion of Kashmir was deliberately organized by "high officials" of the Moslem dominion of Pakistan.

Nehru

"The raiders—organized, encouraged and helped by high Pakistan officials—sought to enforce by the sword Kashmir's accession to Pakistan against the obvious wishes of large numbers of the people, but we cannot permit the success of this method to achieve political ends," he declared.

U.N. Unit Votes Partition Plan

right to change his abstention vote in the plenary session tomorrow. Although favoring partition, Berendsen still objected that the partition plan placed too much burden on the British for enforcement.

Although the United States has assured him that it will take responsibility through the Security Council, he appealed for a "united, concerted effort" to suppress violence, as threatened throughout the Middle East by the Arabs. Especially, he called upon the five permanent powers in the Council to join with the other nations to contribute to a military force, if it is required to restore peace.

More threats were made today by the Arab League states.

After the vote, Mahmout Bey Fawzi of Egypt announced his country reserved "the right to consider this decision null and void" because it violated the U. N. Charter.

Dr. Mohamed Fadhil Jamali, Iraq's Foreign Minister, announced the decision "endangers international peace." He and Faris El Khouri of Syria, who also is spokesman for the Arab League, declared they were "reserving all rights devolving from this situation, including putting the matter to the International Court of Justice."

"We all know that the Arabs in Palestine will not cooperate," said Dr. Jamali. "There will be no militia in the Arab state," he declared. (The partition plan provides for each state to set up militia forces for policing within their own boundaries.)

Earlier, the United States and Russia supported a proposal by Denmark that the Security Council "determine as a threat to the peace . . . any attempt to alter by force" the partition plan. It was approved, 19 to 15.

With only minor changes the committee also approved in its partition plan a separate trusteeship for Jerusalem and the nearby areas to preserve it as an international shrine for the Christian, Jewish and Mohammedan faiths.

If the plan fails to get the necessary the two-thirds majority, the United Nations will be left in an uncertain position. The fact that it has a majority means that partition will remain on the agenda of the General Assembly until such time as supporters call it up for another vote.

Another source of embarrassment to U. N. is the announced policy of the British to evacuate all its troops from Palestine before next August 1.

Civil government is to end as soon as the withdrawal begins. Military government will prevail only in areas still controlled by the troops, and the mandate will end with the start of evacuation. Chaos may result.

No central government for Palestine will be in existence unless the partition plan is approved. If it fails, the UN is expected to take action to assure that some form of government will continue after the mandate ends.

Scientists Get New Leads on Folsom Man

Possibility that remains of the long-sought Folsom "ghost man" may be found soon has Smithsonian Institution scientists in a mild anticipatory dither.

Anthropoligists have found many evidences of the Folsom Man in the past. His weapons, the unique and skillfully fluted Folsom points, have been unearthed practically everywhere. It is known he forayed over the continent 10,000 to 15,000 years ago. But his bones have never turned up.

Dr. Frank H. H. Roberts, jr., associate chief of Smithsonian's bureau of American ethnology, disclosed yesterday that 120 camp sites containing remains of prehistoric nad early historic Indian settlements have been located in a survey of the Columbia River Basin. Still other camp sites, he said, have been found in the Missouri River Basin.

"If we find the Folsom Man's bones," he said, "it will be the most exciting anthropological event in years."

Dr. Roberts is directing the surveys, which are being done on a cooperative basis between the Smithsonian Institution, the Bureau of Reclamation, and the Army Engineer Corps.

Dr. Philip Drucker of the Bureau of American Ethnology, is in charge of the Columbia River basin project. He said some of the campsites are covered by volcanic ash, indicating great antiquity. Excavation will begin late in June or early July.

Meyers Case To Grand Jury

ing his presentation to evidence of perjury and subornation of perjury, the act of inducing others to lie under oath.

T. Vincent Quinn, ace Justice Department prosecutor and head of its criminal division, is preparing evidence covering war fraud, conspiracy to defraud the Government and attempted extortion.

In addition Federal prosecution on income tax evasions will be started in different jurisdictions at a later date, Attorney General Tom C. Clark disclosed.

The perjury charges which lead off the long list of felonies the Justice Department intends to charge would make Meyers liable to a maximum penalty of 5 years in prison and fines of $5000 on each count. The grand jury may return one or more indictments.

The charges stem from sworn testimony Meyers and others gave to the Senate War Investigating Committee both in closed and open sessions.

Meyers denied he received any war profits from Aviation Electric Co., which held Government subcontracts during the war.

Bleriot H. Lamarre, 35-year-old "dummy" president of the corporation, and T. E. Readnower, its "dummy" vice president, testified Meyers collected a total of $131,000 in "kickbacks" from their "executive salaries" during the war.

Their testimony was supported by a mass of documentary evidence, bank records, canceled checks, etc., collected by committee investigators. The committee books showed each man received two salaries from the company—in Lamarre's case $51.50-a-week "real" salary and $18,000 a year executive.

Backed by Father-in-Law

There were also numerous witnesses who testified that Meyers received a Cadillac car, $10,000 in interior decorating on his Hotel 2400 apartment, an air-conditioning system, and a $700 radio, from checks drawn on the company's funds.

Lamarre and Readnower both testified that Meyers, promising some real money in the future, tried to get them to concoct a story to account for the money by saying Lamarre wasted it in riotous living and gambling.

Meyers' story was supported by his father-in-law, R. A. Curnutt, a semi-illiterate former bus driver, who shot from a salary of $40 a week to $1000-a-month when he was made vice president of Aviation Electric.

Curnutt said that while he was living in $5-a-week room, he was making presents of $3000—each to the general's twins, paying $5000 for a powder roo mfor the general's wife, etc.

Answers Prepared

On the witness stand before the committee Curnutt was disclosed to have a prepared memorandum of his testimony with answers tallying in every respect with questions submitted by Meyers through his attorney, John Amen.

He denied that Meyers had helped him prepare the typed memo. Mrs. Meyers and Mrs. Curnutt drew it up(he said.

The 52-year-old general, who has three children under 5 by his third wife, told the Senate committee the entire Aviation Electric deal was caused by the fact that he was caused by the fact that he was having "a love affair" with Lamarre's wife, former winner of a college beauty contest.

Lamarre called him "a liar and a snake" and Mrs. Lamarre has threatened to sue for slander.

Symington termed the Meyers case "a sordid story", and made it plean the Air Force was stinging with embarrassment at the retiired general's public discussion that Mrs. Lamarre was his"girl friend."

The Justice Department said that if indictments are returned, it will press for a speedy trial.

Donaldson Began Career As Mail Clerk

Jesse M. Donaldson, who began as a mail clerk, will become Postmaster General next Monday.

There have been career men in the postal service ever since Benjamin Franklin organized it. But he genial, big-shouldered Donaldson is the first to get to the top. It took him 42 years.

His father was postmaster in Hanson, Ill.—a fourth class office—and he started out there as a clerk at $11 a week. He liked handling mail, and in 1908 he got a job as a regular postman in Shelbyville, Ill.

"I haven't missed a day's pay since I joined the service," he says proudly. Tramping 12 miles a day with bags of letters, magazines and packages for people in Shelbyville is probably what gave him the big shoulders.

From the Shelbyville office, Donaldson moved into the administrative service. He was inspector at Kansas City, and at Chattanooga. He came to Washington and in time served as chief inspector, as personnel chief, as deputy to both the first and second Assistant Postmasters General.

Donaldson was pretty close to senior postal worker by 1945, when President Truman made him First Assistant Postmaster General. Up to now that has been the high point for postal career men. The top spot has been earmarked for party politicians. Donaldson got his first hint of a change in the state of things from his secretary, when she said yesterday:

"The President wants to talk to you."

The President did most of the talking Donaldson said, as he put it, speechless with surprise.

"I wish somebody had warned me," he added.

Mrs. Nell Donaldson, his wife, did not hear the news until she got back to their home at 2800 Woodley rd. She'd been shopping for Christmas.

"This is wonderful," said Mrs. Donaldson—"but it's really just another promotion."

The new postmaster general will have to be confirmed by the Senate, which is being taken for granted. His approval by the 300,000 people in the department can be taken for granted, too.

"He knows the postoffice inside and out," one grizzled postman explained. "He talks our language."

Donaldson likes baseball, bridge and the Democratic Party. He doesn't collect stamps.

your courageous and continuing fight for a workable peace for all mankind and to bring about a strong domestic economy.

"I shall be grateful always for the memorable distinction of having served in your executive family.

"The American people next year are certain to lengthen your stay at the White House for another four years. It will be their choice—not yours. May God give you strength and help you to keep the vision you now hold for building the peoples' peace in those years to come."

Mr. Truman's reply said:

"It would not be possible for me to overstate the feeling of personal regret with which I have read your letter of yesterday advising me of your determination to re-enter private life.

"The sense of regret is deepened because of the close friendship which has obtained between us for so long and because the country is losing the services of a most efficient public servant.

"You have given the Government more than five years of devoted service. My lamented predecessor trusted and admired you. Now for more than two years you have justified my own faith through your admirable administration of the office of Postmaster General, whose duties are onerous as well as complex.

"I know that your influence and your talents will always be dedicated to the cause of progress at home and justice and a permanent peace among the nations of the world.

N. H. Primary May Vote on Eisenhower

Manchester, N. H., Nov. 25 (AP).—State Representative Joseph H. Geisel announced today plans to organize a slate of delegates for New Hampshire's first-in-the-Nation primary March 9 pledged to General Eisenhower as a Republican presidential candidate.

Eisenhower

Entrance of an Eisenhower slate would assure a three-sided fight for the eight GOP seats. Avowed Candidate Harold E. Stassen has announced he would enter candidates, and supporters of New York's Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, an unannounced aspirant, have indicated they would file a slate pledged to him.

Geisel, Manchester Republican, said in a statement that sentiment was strong in New Hampshire for a "draft-Eisenhower-for-President" movement.

New York, Nov. 25 (AP).—The national Draft Eisenhower League today announced appointment of Brock Pemberton, theatrical producer, as chairman of its national theatrical committee.

Pemberton told newsmen he formerly was active in movements supporting Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York for the Presidency, but he added: "However, I think that Eisenhower would make the best President. He works on me like Lincoln."

Leprosy May Cast Bataan Veteran As Sea Wanderer

Baltimore, Nov. 25 (AP).—A Philippine seaman, veteran of the Bataan death march, today faced the prospect of becoming an ocean wanderer indefinitely because he has symptoms of leprosy.

Seaman Carlos Callano arrived in Baltimore aboard a fruit ship after being refused the right to land at Guatemala because he might have the disease.

Albert Deiguercio, district director of the Immigration Service here, said the seaman would be taken to the Marine Hospital in Baltimore for a more positive diagnosis. Otherwise, he will not be allowed to land unless public health authorities believe he can be cured within 30 days.

Immigration authorities said the ship owners may be forced to carry Callano from port to port until he reaches home.

Truman to Fly To Florida Dec. 3

The White House announced yesterday that President Truman will fly to Florida December 3 for a five-day vacation during which he will dedicate the new Everglades National Park on December 6.

It will be the first break in Mr. Truman's official routine since he returned from Brazil in September.

The President and his White House staff plan an early morning takeoff December 3 aboard his special plane, The Sacred Cow, which will take them to the Boca Chica Naval Air Base just outside Key West, Fla.

From there they will drive to the Navy submarine base on the south side of Key West which Mr. Truman has used twice before as vacation headquarters. As on his previous stays, he will set up a temporary White House at the submarine commandant's home.

Present plans call for his return to Washington on December 8.

Tax Reduction For 'Neediest' Urged by Paul

By S. Oliver Goodman

A fair share of any tax relief must go to the lower income brackets which are pressed hardest by high prices, Randolph E. Paul stated last night.

Paul

Paul, former general counsel of the Treasury Department and tax adviser to the Secretary of Treasury during the war years, addressed the monthly dinner meeting of the Washington Control of the Controllers Institute of America in the Carlton Hotel. The meeting, with a record attendance, was conducted by President Henry W. Herzog.

"We are all a little greedy for tax relief," he said, "but some are more needy than others."

"At this time," he added, "we have at best a limited opportunity to give tax relief and a selection of items of relief should look to a sound tax structure for future years, rather than an immediate gain for high-bracket taxpayers. We are at a critical point where the decisions we make today will vitally affect our economic welfare for many years. There will be no lucky few to benefit in the long run by the present neglect of the interests of the many."

Paul joined with a recent report of the Committee of Economic Development in opposing "arbitrary across-the-board formulas for tax reduction." Quoting that report, he said: "Horizontal cuts from a bad tax system will not create a good tax system."

He also indorsed the split-income plan for eliminating the discrimination now existing in favor of residents of the community property States.

PEPCO ACTIVE: Active dealings in Potomac Electric Power's new common stock highlighted trading yesterday on the Washington Stock Exchange. In nine transactions totaling 680 shares, Pepco stock on a "when distributed" basis sold at 13¼ and closed at 13¼. Bid was 13 and offering was 13⅝.

GROUP INCOMES: Petroleum industry showed highest group net income for first nine months this year, according to compilation in November issue of The Exchange, house organ of the New York Stock Exchange. Nineteen oil firms reported $336,394,000 net for period, up 61 per cent over same 1946 period. Next was automotive group with 22 companies reporting $278,410,000 net for first nine months, up 88.05 per cent. (Comparison distorted because of effect of 1946 labor troubles.) Third was steel, iron and coke group with 26 firms reporting $274,437,000 net, up 70.8 per cent. Chemical industry showed a 23.2 per cent improvement with $273,301,000 net reported by 33 companies. GET 'EM TO SMILE: Retailers should make sure the hard-pressed Christmas shopper is greeted with a smile, the National Retail Dry Goods Association said yesterday. Warning that many sales people are lapsing back into the wartime "take it or leave it" attitude, Lew Hahn, association president, said in a special bulletin to member stores: "Sure salespeople get tired, but don't think that shoppers are not working equally hard—and they are paying for the privilege. So get the store people to smile and give the best service they can, but to give it cheerfully."

Brake On Housing

One segment of the housing program is grinding to a stop for want of legal authorization. The amount of mortgage insurance which the Federal Housing Administration can grant under Title VI—emergency housing for veterans—has been limited by Congress to $4,200,000,000, and that maximum was reached about 10 days ago. Congress extended this authorization just before taking its summer recess, but it underestimated the demand for mortgage insurance of this type. Now it must act again with great speed if the building of homes for veterans is not to be seriously curtailed.

The importance of this aspect of the housing program may be seen from fact that approximately 30 per cent of the new private housing currently placed under construction is being financed under FHA Title VI insurance commitments. It is this title which gives special encouragement to large-scale construction of low-cost housing both for sale and for rent. The country is fortunate in having builders give special attention to housing of this type, although, of course, it does not take the place of low-rental public housing for families that cannot afford to pay for decent private dwellings of any kind. The hopeful momentum that has been attained in private low-cost housing is likely to be lost, however, unless Congress acts quickly to extend the FHA's authorization.

Congressman Smathers and Senator Sparkman have introduced a bill to extend FHA's authority under Title VI by a billion dollars. On the House side this bill has gone before the Banking and Currency Committee, of which Jesse P. Wolcott is chairman. In our opinion that puts a heavy responsibility on Representative Wolcott. The bill is not likely to be controversial. Yet it will need energy and push behind it if the veterans' housing program is to avoid a tragic bogging down. We think Mr. Wolcott ought to call an immediate hearing and report the bill out so that it may be passed at the extra session.

Murray's Defiance

The refusal of Philip Murray and other officers of the CIO United Steelworkers to sign the Taft-Hartley law anti-Communist affidavit is, we suppose, an indication of confidence in the strength of their union. By this action, or rather, inaction, they arbitrarily deprive the Steelworkers of recourse to the National Labor Relations Board. This will invalidate some 20 Steelworkers' election cases now before the NLRB, and it also will mean that the Steelworkers cannot appear on the ballot in future plant elections. The decision, of course, does not imply that Mr. Murray himself is a Communist. Rather, it must be interpreted as a gesture of moral defiance. Apparently Mr. Murray and his colleagues are so sure of their hold over the steel industry that they feel they can forego NLRB protection until there is a court test of the affidavit requirement.

The score now stands 2 to 1 against the affidavit in the big CIO unions. Under the CIO policy of autonomy, Walter Reuther's United Auto Workers last week decided to comply with the law, apparently with Mr. Murray's blessing. In addition to the Steelworkers, the United Electrical Workers so far have not signed, possibly because their officers cannot sign without inviting perjury charges. In the AFL the implicit policy is to sign, with John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers remaining a conspicuous holdout. The effect of the CIO defiance will, of course, be to subject noncompliant unions to raiding by contemporary AFL and independent unions. Whereas this factor is not likely to loom large in well-organized locals, it could assume serious proportions in weaker unions and in fringe areas where bargaining rights are more hotly contested. Evidently Mr. Murray is willing to take that chance on the gamble that a court decision will overturn the affidavit requirement before any real damage can be done to the Steelworkers.

Whether a court test will throw out the anti-Communist affidavit, cannot, of course, be predicted. For our part we hope that it will, or if it does not, that Congress will amend the law. We hope this not from any lack of conviction as to the sinister role of Communists in unions, but because we believe the anti-Communist affidavit is an illusory protection that by no means gets to the root of the problem. If Communists in unions are really intent on evading the Taft-Hartley law, they can do this easily by turning over to stooges the appearance of power while continuing their activities behind the scenes.

Slave Labor

The United Press survey disclosing that more than 26 months after VJ-Day 2½ million prisoners of war still have not been returned to their homes is a disheartening comment on the debasement of international morality. It is a euphemism to refer to these men as prisoners of war. They are, in actual fact, a slave labor force pressed into the service of captor countries. To show that 73 per cent of the prisoners are held by the Soviet Union is only to establish degrees of guilt. For these men to be separated arbitrarily from their families after the needs of war have ceased is something very close to barbarism.

A total of 1,656,532 German and Japanese prisoners reportedly still are in Russian hands. This figure is not especially surprising in a country that has made use of slave labor as an internal policy. The disturbing point is that France and Britain, where the principles of the Geneva Convention on treatment of war prisoners have long been recognized, should continue to negate those principles. Whatever the real needs of these nations for an augmented labor force, the plain fact is that the practice they are following is not essentially different from Hitler's. Nor is the argument that prisoners cannot be repatriated at a faster rate because of conditions in Germany a convincing one. The plan for European recovery demonstrates conclusively the close interrelation between German economic recovery and the welfare of the remainder of Europe. German industry cannot be expected to produce the goods France and Britain themselves need until its manpower is returned.

In his book, Speaking Frankly, former Secretary of State Byrnes tells of some of his tribulations in attempting to speed up the return of war prisoners, including an unabashed admission by the French that repatriation could not be increased because of their own labor shortage. As the matter now stands, Britain has agreed to return all its prisoners by October, 1948. As of March 1 of this year, the French held approximately 450,000 German prisoners, including a number captured by American forces, which they have been returning at a rate of 20,000 a month. An agreement of the Council of Foreign Ministers, to which Russia is a party, provides that all German prisoners shall be repatriated by December 31, 1948.

For its part the United States has clean hands. Aside from war criminals awaiting trial, the last German and Japanese prisoners in this country were returned in 1946. But while the United States has discharged its own obligation, it cannot remain oblivious to the continuing blot on the conscience of humanity. We believe that the State Department should exert every effort to hasten the return of remaining war prisoners to their homes.

Embalming Culture

The Metropolitan Opera Association of New York has announced that it will presently begin making movies—with sound tracks, of course—of the more popular operas in the Metropolitan repertory. The plan is to let or to sell prints of these movies to theaters, schools, musical associations and so on, with the ultimate purpose, no doubt, of creating a constantly widening knowledge and appreciation of operatic art.

The pictures will be made under the direction of Mr. Friedrich Feher, the former Viennese, who won himself a high place in the history of the development of movie techniques with The Cabinet of Dr. Caligari, in which the resources of symphonic music, visual symbolism, and Freudian psychology were exploited to highly interesting effect. The first opera to go into production will be, quite appropriately, Il Trovatore, with Aida to follow, and so on—should these first two experiments prove successful—in descending order of popularity through the whole repertory, which, as you know, is now a very considerable one.

We are all in favor of this enterprise and heartily wish it well. But there are times when we begin to worry whether culture in these United States is not undergoing a kind of Byzantine coagulation. A popular taste for Italian, French and German opera would be an encouraging phenomenon, but even more encouraging would be the development of indigenous American opera or at any rate the rise of a school of great American composers. This certainly will never come about until there is a receptive audience for such music. It is safe to say that if Verdi had to anticipate as much indifference, prejudice or open hostility as an American composer must expect from his countrymen, there would never have been a Trovatore or an Aida for Mr. Feher to embalm.

We shall also be interested to know about what Mr. J. Caesar Petrillo may have to say about this latest experiment. If Mr. Petrillo follows his usual logic in such matters, he will probably conclude that every time one of Mr. Feher's movies is shown to an admiring audience in Sauk Rapids, Minn., or Mer Rouge, La., it will throw the local silver cornet band out of work. Thus we shall not be surprised to hear that he has interdicted the whole business.

Central Vs. McKinley

High school football provides its fans with some of the fastest and most satisfying sport in existence. The enthusiasm of players and spectators alike is both genuine and infectious. An audience subjected to the high-pressure rooting of a high school game can hardly escape that feeling of exhilaration which is one of the happy memories of high school days. Because of weekday schedules and limited seating facilities at most high school games, attendance is a privilege denied many adults in Washington. Friday night, however, will give them a chance. That evening there will take place the interhigh championship game between Central and McKinley at Griffith Stadium under the joint auspices of the Board of Education and The Washington Post.

There is, however, much more reason why this particular game should be of interest to Washington sports followers. The proceeds will be divided between high school athletic funds and the Community Chest. The first $10,000 will help purchase needed athletic equipment for the eight high schools, and anything above that sum (last year's total intake was $19,000) will be a timely boost to the Chest which, this year especially, needs every penny it can get. Thus the audience at the Central-McKinley game, in addition to enjoying a first-rate football contest, will also be participating in a worthwhile community cause. We hope that the 35,000 seats at Griffith Stadium will be filled to overflowing Friday night.

Letter To Stalin

Dr. Leo Szilard's good will in addressing an open letter to Josef Stalin is as apparent as his naivete. Like Henry Wallace, he appears to believe that the differences between the United States and the Soviet Union stem only from misunderstanding. Mr. Wallace takes the view that they can be resolved if Mr. Truman and Mr. Stalin will sit down together for a good, old-fashioned, heart-to-heart chat. Professor Szilard's idea is that the American President ought to talk directly to the Russian people and the Russian Premier ought to talk directly to the American people, transmuting rancor into rapport through the mysterious alchemy of radio. What a pity that the problem is not quite so simple.

No disparagement of Professor Szilard is intended here. He is not only a distinguished physicist but one who, through great energy, imagination and patriotism, made his scientific knowledge peculiarly effective in the winning of the war. He demonstrated, in addition, real qualities of leadership in helping to mobilize his fellow atomic scientists in resistance to military control and in favor of a rational domestic atomic energy law. No one who has had so much to do with the development of atomic energy can be considered meddlesome in attempting to foster international atomic accord.

All the same, Undersecretary of State Lovett was quite justified, we think, in declaring "it is not believed that the transmission of the letter would be of help in resolving the problems under discussion." And, obviously, the Undersecretary was right in feeling that permission to transmit the letter "would be construed as an approval of the views" expressed in it. The effect would have been thoroughly mischievous. Like any other citizen, Professor Szilard is entitled to his opinions and to seek popular acceptance of them. But it can scarcely be said that diplomacy is a field in which he has any special competence or speaks with any special authority. One is reminded of the late Henry Ford and his unfortunate "peace ship" of 1917. The industrial genius of Henry Ford brought the machine age into full flower. But it scarcely served to resolve the confusions and conflicts with which that age has been attended.

Silent Guest

It is an old American custom to share Thanksgiving dinner. We repeat the suggestion advanced by Governor Bradford of Massachusetts and others of sharing Thanksgiving with hungry people in Europe through the medium of CARE. In other words, send a food package abroad. Ten dollars will buy a month's supplementary food for a family. Packages may be sent to 15 countries, including several behind the iron curtain. Stockpiles in the various countries will permit delivery during the holiday season. All packages are acknowledged.

Many families with relatives in Europe are already sending packages. Here is a chance to take care of some of the less fortunate. For persons who wish to give with no particular beneficiary in mind, the Washington office of CARE will supply names of families whose needs have been investigated by other agencies. The CARE office is located at Room 319, Dupont Circle Building, telephone Columbia 9320. We know of no better means than a CARE package to attain a sense of personal participation in meeting the food crisis. By the same token, we know of no more meaningful way to express thanks for America's good fortune on this Thanksgiving Day.

NOVEMBER

November is a brown mare
standing in the shadows in the tarnished meadows;
November is a slim mare with a copper coat, and a burnished throat, feeding on the tawny grass in frosty, twilight air.

November is a brown mare
waiting in the field, stamping by the fence rails,
by the bushes rustling there;
waiting by the farm gate, waiting for her tall mate,
the white stallion, Winter, before whose savage plunging the oaks and willows splinter.

November is a brown mare
dreaming by the streams, holding a dim vision of a far, fair thing;
of shimmering, leaf-green water, and the faint sound, dimly sweet,
of the slender, ivory feet of her unborn daughter,
the shining filly, Spring.

Auchincloss Plan

In all the criticisms of the Auchincloss Plan for District self-government, I have not noticed any comment on the requirement of three years of residence for candidates for office.

While others are concerned with the qualifications of the voters, I am particularly interested in the qualifications of those who would make up our new governing body. As a native Washingtonian, I can hardly agree that three years is sufficient time for anyone to become thoroughly acquainted with the particular problems of the District of Columbia. It is even almost necessary for one to have lived in each section of the city in order to understand wherein the District differs from other cities of the United States and therefore should be governed by a body of men who know its own peculiarities. It was certainly evident that the President's Committee on Civil Rights did not know whereof it was attempting to speak so far as the District was concerned.

I am wondering if you can help find out how many real District residents consider that 10 years of residence would be a better qualification for an officeholder than three. HELEN H. O'LEARY.

Impasse With Russia

Our press and radio continue to say that we have been victorious in getting through the U. N. Little Assembly. Victorious, yes, but in what way?

We have succeeded in getting a majority vote for anything we want in the U. N. Assembly, but we have also reached a complete impasse with Russia on every major problem except Palestine.

By insisting on arrangements for settlement which Russia refuses to accept we simply guarantee the continuation of the present situation. Take Korea, for instance. We now have our U. N. Commission as we desired, and in that we are victorious. But Russia boycotts and will refuse to accept its decisions. Legally she will continue to occupy northern Korea and can be put out only by force, which will not be attempted in the immediate future.

In the end we do not get an independent and unified Korea as we want. All we do is guarantee a continuance of divided Korea and the continuance of Russian occupation. So, we must continue to occupy southern Korea and support it economically to the tune of several hundred million dollars a year for as long as the impasse which we have created continues. We call this victory. I call it bankruptcy.

Taxes For Education

With more Americans spending more money on more luxuries than ever before, this deepening depression in our educational system is impossible to excuse. Qualified teachers are becoming as difficult to recruit as domestic servants—and for exactly the same reason, namely more pay and prestige for less work in other fields.

If only our educational system could collapse outright and start all over things would be more promising. But no, there won't be any collapse. The form will remain, while the substance becomes ever more shadowy. More and more of our children will discover—too late—that hey are not even honestly ignorant, but have been misled by their neat diplomas into feeling reasonably well educated for an age which grows increasingly complex and difficult to cope with.

For the increased revenue demanded by decent teachers' salaries, I suggest more taxes on more of the things we can afford to discourage. How about a "Sunday" tax on movie and ball game tickets? Why not make such questionably healthful things as cigarettes, candy bars and soft drinks help pay for that fundamental necessity—solid education for America's future voters?

Syphax Retirement

Sunday I read with interest the article on the retirement from the service as teacher in the public schools, of Mr. Edward M. Syphax. It is necessary that I should call attention to an error of fact which appeared in that article.

The report of the Commissioner of Education for 1869-70 (Henry Bernard) will show that Alfred Jones, my grandfather and also a feed merchant, was the first Negro selected to serve as a member of the joint racially mixed board of trustees of the public schools of the District of Columbia. He served until his death from a stroke suffered during commencement exercises at the Thaddeus Stevens School. The Alfred Jones School at First and L sts. nw. was named for him.

Subsequent to this time, Mr. William H. Syphax was appointed to the board and became the first president of a racially separate board of trustees for Negro schools.

Soldiers' Home

My letter in your column of October 31 was answered on November 22. The person who signs his letter "Reader," sees only "Central Park" an cows and farm areas.

But the graves of soldiers since the Mexican War are in this area. The Soldiers' Home contributes an atmosphere. Almost every day some worthy soldier who has served his country is laid away to rest near this beautiful home.

But historic atmosphere and beauty are not created in a day, or in a year.

The atmosphere that is healthy for cows and farms is also good for the City of Washington. Some park areas have more to them than others. Combined, they help to make the city what it is.

Peace Plate

In a letter from Anne Forsythe, published in your issue of November 20, the Citizens Food Committee was criticized for suggesting an Italian spaghetti dish using meat for a Meatless Tuesday Peace Plate.

Although this recipe appeared in your columns on Monday, November 17, we would like to point out that it was released by us as a Peace Plate for Wednesday, November 19, and carried the heading "Wednesday Peace Plate" on our release.

Royal Wedding

In your editorial of November 20, "Britain's Big D y" you call the wedding ceremonies of the prospective Queen of the British a "fling of romance" with foreign royalties giving a pageant "like the good old days." Everybody knows perfectly well that the B ish King or Queen in our day is just a figurehead and that Great Britain could be just as much a democratic republic as the United States, if it were not for the British sense of using "historic splendor" for "lifting up their spirits."

On the front page of your paper, however, you entertained some of your readers for several days with elaborate articles about a pretty sympathetic young mother, who was naive enough to believe that Princess Elizabeth needed her dress because she thought rationing would deprive Her Majesty from being clad adequately. It must have been quite a shock to her to learn that the wedding dress, made of "pearl-bedecked ivory satin," did not show too much of that scarcity of fabrics in which she had believed. Moreover, one wonders why the young American woman shook hands only with the King and the Queen, but did not even talk to her idol, the princess.

One cannot help being suspicious that the whole thing smells of some clever propaganda. Are we Americans back on the road to glorification of royalties? Do our plain people need this kind of political education more than everything else

There is much to say against your paper which up to now, in my opinion, was the leading paper of the Capital, as far as political education was concerned. Why do you destroy that reputation by making political children believe that a princess is a kind of superhuman being (the kind of history teaching that was used with the autocratic governments of Europe prior to World War I, when every member of the ruling dynasty was pictured as a hero of purity, courage and intelligence, even though historians knew better).

Sympathetic reports from the Westiminster Abbey pageant are the most sensible and natural thing, since the British are or ought to be our close friends, but this kind of reporting seems to me—to say the least—ridiculous and not in conformity with American tradition.
LUDWIG HAMMERSCHLAG.

We wish to thank you for the wholesome rest you have given to our eyes and to our souls for a few days when you printed the pictures of Mrs. Guerrieri and her family and the story of the green taffeta dress.

Princess Elizabeth wished to have a simple wedding but the people of England demanded she have a royal one, something to lift their spirits for a time.
DAILY READER.
Arlington

Please allow me a space to thank you for publishing the letter of Farley O. Beasley on November 21, giving his views on the royal wedding. He spoke my sentiments precisely. Moreover, I do not understand the friendship of Britain for America when the princess failed to invite her uncle because he was married to an American woman.

If the wife of the duke were of any other country, there could be a loophole for an excuse but the United States that has stood with the English in all her plans and policies should not overlook the fact that a subject in the royal family is snubbed in that manner.

It is a slap in the face of every American.

The waste, extravagance and show-offness of this wedding is a travesty on sensible, consistent human behavior—particularly under existing conditions of the British people.

'Laziness' And Hunger

By Malvina Lindsay

In Europe's Shoes

THE SHREWD, pat solution of the European hunger problem, "Feed 'em if they'll buckle down to work and help themselves" is heard increasingly in discussion of relief plans. Those who self-righteously echo it—and who are usually eating around 3500 calories a day, including meat, milk and eggs—seldom if ever try to put themselves in the shoes of the "lazy" European worker eating half that amount.

Nor are they aware that Europeans even on their meager diets, handicapped by droughts, blizzards, floods, inflation, unstable governments, confusion, discouragement, have already done much "buckling down and helping themselves."

In a Europe, for six years a bloody, bombed battlefield, agricultural production now averages 80 per cent of prewar. Industrial production in Great Britain and the Scandinavian countries is above prewar; in France, Belgium and the Netherlands, from 85 to 95 per cent. But a backlog of needs and a population increase make far greater production necessary. Yet how can Europe produce more without materials to work with, food to give its people strength to work?

ONE ANSWER to charges that Europeans are lazy and politically unstable is given in a letter recently sent by the National Council of Women of France to "Women of the United States." Discussing these charges, it says:

"Dear American Friends: You must keep in mind that 'misery is a bad adviser.' When people are in want of everything, they may listen to any leaders, even those who would tell them that revolution or war might solve their problems.

"Do not believe those who want to cover up their interest by saying that people in Europe are lazy, and that they much prefer relying on the American worker to feed them than trying to help themselves. Remember that in the last two years we have rebuilt our roads, our railways, our harbors destroyed during the war, and it is only lack of material that is delaying our rehabilitation."

The letter says France is approaching its eighth winter of restrictions, a winter likely to be worse than preceding ones. It expresses "heartfelt gratitude" to this country, for aid through "these hard times" and especially for the present voluntary food saving program.

"We know how difficult it is," these French women say, "in a country where everything is in plenty to realize the daily life of women in countries still suffering the after-effects of war: getting up in the dark because electricity is off; problems of meals with inadequate rations—black bread in insufficient quantities; the problem of clothes, of shoes—one pair a year for everyone, even the growing children; the problem of washing without soap; the back-breaking queues; evenings in a cold home where the father back from work, the children doing their homework after school, the mother going through the household routine, are huddled together in the same room around the single fire allowed by the insufficient coal ration."

FROM SUCH a cold, hungry home could a working man or woman go out filled with zeal to "buckle down and work harder"? And the colder and hungrier people get, the more likely they are to resort to such drastic measures as strikes.

A man doing heavy manual work requires around 4500 calories daily, a woman, at least 3000, say nutritionists. Americans now average about 200 more calories than in 1940. The average here for both men and women last year was 3450. Austria had 1950; now has around 1600. France's nonfarm population averages around 2200, and unless our wheat shipments continue, will be without bread by March. Last year the nonfarm Greek had 2100 calories, the Italian 1950. These will be lower this year because of crop failures.

How much work would be done by the hard-eyed exponents of "let 'em work harder" if they were to put themselves in the shoes of those fed these rations?"

Independent Voters

Everybody knows that in this country the balance of power in politics rests with the so-called "independent" voters. That is, those men and women who will vote according to their convictions regardless of their nominal or habitual partisanship.

It is not a large element, percentagewise. It consists of only those who have no political ax to grind, who have interest enough to keep themselves informed as to what is going on in the world, who have enough intelligence and discrimination to understand what is spoken or written by prominent publicists, who have a modicum of heart, and enough generosity in their soul to make at least some small sacrifice of self-interest now and then in the cause of common humanity. No, it is not a large element, but it is large enough to swing a presidential election.

All of which means that if the GOP leaders would like to know why they cannot elect Senator Taft to the Presidency, all they have to do is to consider his recent reply to Mr. Truman. Senator Taft has some good qualities — courage, frankness and honesty up to the line where his great blind side begins, and which he cannot change—and that blindness covers a lot which the independent element is beginning to sense more and more clearly. Matter Of Fact

By Joseph Alsop

Unholy Deadlock

BERLIN.—In London, where the Foreign Ministers are gathering, total deadlock has already been reached in the meetings of their deputies. The relentless pettifogging of the Soviet delegation has, however, served to confirm British and American suspicions on one major point. Both delegations now expect Molotov to make a grand theatrical gesture of support for a strong, unified German Reich—possibly in the form of a proposal to end the occupation of Germany.

In making his gesture, Molotov will know in advance that its rejection is certain. He will also know that he is doing incalculable damage to the Communist Party in such key neighboring countries as France and Czechoslovakia. Why then should Molotov embarrass Comrades Thorez and Gottwald for the sake of display of empty histrionics which will only impress the Germans?

The reason is very simple. In the contest for Germany which the Soviet Union launched at the close of the war, the Kremlin is forced to employ tactics of this sort. Conditions in the Soviet zone do not permit any other kind of appeal to the Germans. There is proof enough of this assertion in one extraordinary fact. Marshal Sokolovsky, Soviet commander in Germany, has now set the Germans to watching the Russians.

The order was issued some time ago by Soviet headquarters at Karlshorst to the high command of the Soviet's political stooge party, the Socialist Unity Party. The Socialist Unity Party was commanded to instruct its lower echelons to report to Karlshorst all cases of inefficiency and corruption among Soviet military government officials and Russian factory managers. Assurances were given that these reports would be held confidential. It was grimly added that if investigation proved the accuracy of the charges, the offending Russians would be removed and appropriately disciplined.

THIS astonishing order is the final admission, in turn, of a strange condition. This condition has for some time been discerned by official American investigators peering through the cracks in the iron curtain cutting off the Soviet zone. It has an odd historical parallel.

The history minded may recall that after the defeat of Athens in the Peloponnesian wars, the heavy-handed Spartans for a time dominated the Aegean Sea. But the Spartan administrators and soldiers sent out to command the new territories and strong points won by Sparta suffered from a fatal weakness. The bleak, regimented life of Sparta, with its endless round of military exercises, political indoctrination and sparse living, left the Spartans utterly unprotected against the temptations of a richer environment. They took bribes, acquired slaves, enjoyed luxury, and generally yielded to temptation with singular abandon. The rapid corruption of Spartans exposed to the non-Spartan world was a primary cause of the rapid collapse of the embryo Spartan Empire.

Even in devastated Germany, Soviet administrators and soldiers appear to suffer from the same weakness as the Spartans. Furthermore, the corruption and inefficiency of the Russian soldiers and administrators of occupation duty are only the culminating difficulties of a problem which Marshal Sokolovsky would find it hard to solve with the most brilliant and honest officials in the world.

Part of this problem derives from the unappeasable hunger of the Soviet Union in particular, and the Soviet sphere in general, for manufactured goods of all kinds. This has caused eastern Germany to be classed with Czechoslovakia as a heavy contributor of industrial products to the general pool. Hence arises the constant pressure for more and more German goods for Russia. At the same time, eastern Germany is deficient in coal, and acutely deficient in iron and steel—the bases of any industrial economy. It is shortsighted and distorting, therefore, merely to concentrate on the undoubted fact that eastern Germany is a good food producing area. Food is vital, but it cannot balance off the factors cited above.

THERE IS other evidence to sustain this conclusion. The flight to our zone of the famous Dr. Rudolph Paul, one of the Soviet's highest hand-picked German officials, was not genuinely symptomatic, since he was frightened by a drunken Russian officer's threat of ultimate liquidation. But the desertion of the Socialist Unity Party by such figures as Dr. Lowenthal, Heinrich Schmidt and Frau Halle Schaar—the two former originally Communists—indicates the extent of rising disaffection. On a different level, the same signs are to be seen in the issuance of "control cards" to Socialist Unity Party members, which they must present and have marked to prove their attendance at "spontaneous" party demonstrations and rallies.

In the Soviet zone, everything has been done to win the support of the people for the Soviets and their stooges. All that has been done has failed. The Germans as a whole, including the Soviet-zone Germans, still look to the West. Even Russians are not immune to the appeal. Attempts by Soviet officers and officials to desert to us are the common gossip of Berlin. One German who knows Karlshorst well remarked laughingly to this correspondent that Marshal Sokolovsky would soon lack any staff if the Western powers would only offer Russians in Berlin the equivalent of 40 acres and a mule. This looking to the West is Molotov's Achilles' heel. This is why such drastic propaganda is resorted to.

Unless the Anglo-Franco-American effort in western Germany is paralyzed, hereafter, by indecision, weakness and stupidity, propaganda is not to be feared. The superior magnetism, which some do oddly concede to the Soviets, is really ours. To exploit it, we need only do a decent job in Germany.

Good Will Is Not Enough

DES MOINES, Iowa.—It is hard to imagine a group of farmers in any other country doing what these Iowa farmers are about to do. That is to organize the voluntary gift of 100 carloads of grain for Europe.

CHILDS

You couldn't imagine the French farmer doing it in a thousand years, no matter how prosperous he was. And the French farmer today does have hoarded food reserves and a vast hoard of gold while the industrial cities of France are the prey of hunger and a corrosive inflation.

Prosperity is one explanation for the relief drive of the Iowa Farm Bureau Federation. But it isn't the whole explanation by a long way. A basic humanitarian impulse, underscored by a first-hand knowledge of Europe's desperate need, is at the root of it.

Here is one of the truest and deepest phases of American character—the desire to share our plenty with less fortunate neighbors. Over and over again, America's bounty has been poured out for the weak and the hungry.

But you can't help questioning whether good will is enough this time. A minimum of self-discipline may be essential if this country is to cope with the great responsibility which lies ahead.

Self-discipline, in the form of a minimum of rationing, is exactly what no one seems willing to accept. It is taken for granted that Congress will turn down or ignore President Truman's request for controls over the scarcest commodities at the consumer level.

THERE'S SUCH an abundance for today. The big, thick, individual steaks are the equivalent of the British meat ration for a whole family for a week or more. They are expensive but money seems to be plentiful. The farm belt has never known anything quite like the present prosperity.

Bank deposits of United States farmers increased from 2.9 billion dollars in 1940 to 11.1 billions in 1947. Likewise, the amount of cash in the farmer's pocket has multiplied by four times in the same period.

This phenomenal prosperity is reflected in land prices. While the boom here in the corn belt has not pushed prices anything like as high as they went in 1919, the trend is still upward. A significant fact, little realized, is this: The rate of change in land prices has thus far been more rapid after World War II than it was after World War I.

You hear tales that sound like 1919. A startled farmer was approached by a purchaser who offered him $500 an acre in cash for his farm of 120 acres. Good farms bring $300 to $325 an acre, which compares with $100 to $150 seven or eight years ago.

Yet there is a backlog of caution. The older generation remembers the wild boom of 1919 and '20 which was the prelude to disaster. That memory helps to keep prices down.

THE EUROPEAN recovery program is regarded as a guarantee of continuing high prices. There is no guarantee, however, that the bumper crops of the past seven years will be repeated. Iowa had only half a corn crop this fall.

That is the flaw in the prosperity picture. Because of the prolonged drought, all indications are that the wheat harvest in 1948 will be substantially under 1947's bumper yield.

This is bound to cause a severe dislocation here at home unless we plan to meet it now. The vicious wage-price spiral will be given a new kick-up when we are already close to the danger line. Secretary of Agriculture Clinton Anderson's warning about meat scarcities next spring actually seemed on the optimistic side.

That brings us, as I see it, right back to that minimum of self-discipline. Somehow, in spite of the sharpness of partisan politics, we should be able to achieve it.

When the scarcities and the zooming prices bite deeper here at home, the good will will dwindle. It may entirely evaporate. The sentimental gesture will be forgotten.

The farmer stands in his feed lot looking at his white-faced cattle. Because his own corn crop was short, he must buy grain to fatten them at a price which has him worried.

To fatten those cattle any further is contrary to the common good of both America and Europe. If somehow this could be expressed (and accepted) in a minimum of Government planning and regulation, we would be better able to do the job ahead in 1948. That course would mean risks. But perhaps the risks ahead are even greater.

Brain Surgery Is Successful In Easing Pain

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 25—Brain surgery to remove the tortures of unendurable pain was recommended here today by Dr. Walter Freeman, of George Washington University and St. Elizabeths Hospital, Washington.

The operation, prefontal lobotomy, has been employed for 10 years to remove tendencies to violence in the insane. Its use as a sort of lifetime emotional anesthetic, however, is new and still needs further study, Doctor Freeman said.

He addressed a second-day session, section on neurology and psychiatry, of the 41st annual meeting of the Southern Medical Association here. His paper, "Psychosurgery for Pain," reported findings of Doctor Freeman and his associate, Dr. James Winston Watts, also of Washington.

Operation Found Successful

The operation has been successful in relieving the agonies of incurable cancer, amputation cases, severe nerve injuries and other cases where the throes of pain are relieved but temporarily and with lessening effect by morphine and other drugs, Doctor Freeman said.

Dr. Freeman cited cases?

He told of a jeep driver who lost an arm in an accident. Even after amputation, Dr. Freeman reported, the man complained of extreme pain in the stump (a not infrequent complaint in such cases). Following a brain operation, Dr. Freeman said, the patient no longer complained.

An earlier case involved a woman who suffered pain from abdominal disorders. "She had so many operations (12 to 18) that her stomach looked like a waffle iron," the surgeon said.

After a brain operation, however, she was able to leave the bed of pain to which she had been confined for two years. Before the operation she screamed in pain any time anyone so much as touched the sheets. Afterward she took a job as bookbinder and was free of any feelings of intense pain.

Asked whether the operation was designed for real or for imaginary pains, Dr. Freeman declared:

"There is no fine dividing line between the two."

In at least one instance, the jeep driver, the operation was not without an unexpected after-effect. The patient lost his ability to play good poker, Dr. Freeman reported.

He explained that the operation primarily destroys one's capacity to worry, particularly about oneself and the future.

"Apparently", said Dr. Freeman, "the patient played his best poker when he worried the most. The first game he played after the operation, he lost $40 and didn't seem to care."

The operation, explained Dr. Freeman, has an operation death risk even less than appendectomies. It consists of boring two holes in the skull above and to the front of the temples and severing the fiber between the thalamus and the prefrontal lobe.

No brain matter is removed, as was first done in operations on insane persons to make them amiable, Dr. Freeman said. Knives, shaped like butter knives, are inserted through the holes in the skull to make the separation, he said.

A new drug, statacin caronamide, icillin to the greater comfort of of penicillin at least in half and increases its effectiveness was described to physicians here today.

Dr. O. P. J. Falk, consultant at the St. Louis City Hospital, St. Louis, Mo., explained that the drug has been found to check temporarily the usually rapid excretion of penicillin from the body. It can be given orally with penicilliin to the greater comfort of the patient who ordinarily would have been given penicillin by hypodermic needle, Dr. Falk said.

Speedy Recoveries Reported In Electric Shock Treatments

Baltimore, Nov. 25 (AP).—An electric shock treatment in the morning, and back to work in the afternoon is the possible routine of patients with milder psychiatric troubles who can be treated on an out-patient basis, a Tulane University doctor said today.

Dr. C. S. Holbrook told the Southern Medical Association meeting there have been such hurry-back-to-the-job folks among out-patients in a series he studied.

Most out-patients, he told a reporter, suffer from comparatively mild or early cases of mental or emotional disturbance. But they receive electric shock treatments comparable in intensity to those given to hospitalized persons having advanced mental illness, although the total number of treatments is smaller.

"We don't recommend that these out-patients return to their work the same day after a treatment," Holbrook said, "but some of them do. Most of them wait until the next day."

He said out-patients could not be given shock treatment without removing their clothing, and after a wait of from a few minutes to an hour following shock, they could go on their way.

(In a shock treatment, an electric current is course d through the brain.)

Among hospitalized patients suffering from "all forms of depression," and "many patients suffering from excitement," Holbrook told a reporter, the advent of electric shock treatment has cut hospitalization time from about 126 days to a "little over a month."

But he declared there still "are many disadvantages to the present electro-shock treatment," including potential spinal injuries and other bone complications resulting from convulsions induced. He said the treatment could produce marked confusion and profound memory disturbance.

Dr. R. Finley Gayle of the Medical College of Virginia, describing the newer "brief stimulus" electric treatment, said "the one great advantage it has over the older electro-shock method is that with it "amnesia and confusion of memory (resulting from treatment) are absolutely nil."

The President's Calling List

President Truman yesterday had the following White House appointments:

11 a. m.—Harold Jones and John A. Reilly of the Knights of Columbus.

11:15—Senator Kilgore (D., W. Va).

1 p. m.—Lunch.

3:30—Attorney General Clark.

D. C. Specialist Heads Women

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 25 (Spl.).—Dr. Helen Gladys Kain, specialist in gynecology and obstetrics, of Washington, was elected chairman of the Women physicians of the Southern Medical Association, at the 41st annual meeting here, it was announced today. She succeeds Dr. Estelle Magiera of Jackson, Miss., to the highest post of the 33-year-old organization.

Causes of Back Pain

Baltimore, Nov. 25 (AP).—Your "sway-back" posture and your pot belly are most likely the co-causes of that low-down pain in your back, a Dixie doctor said today.

And, says Dr. Eugene M. Regen of Nashville, a five-minute workout daily to strengthen abdominal and read-hip muscles can prevent the "vast majority" of low-back trouble cases. He also says all but about two per cent of such cases can be relieved without surgery.

He declared that pain in the lower back and down the leg is one of the commonest ailments of middle-agers and doctors "too often" attribute it to "disturbances elsewhere in the body."

Suggest Starch Powder

Baltimore, Nov. 25 (AP).—Dr. R. W. Postlethwait and two colleagues of Duke University today suggested a starch powder as a "satisfactory substitute" for talc as a lubricant for surgeons' gloves. They said talc, if accidentally implanted in wounds during an operation, could cause a tissue "reaction."

17 Egypt Army Officers Held In Plot Against Chief of Staff

Cairo, Egypt, Nov. 25 (AP).—An army informant said tonight at least 17 Egyptian army officers, in whose homes had been found pamphlets of a "Communistic spirit," were under arrest in the investigation of a plot to assassinate Ibrahim Attala Pasha, chief of staff and aide de camp to King Farouk.

The informant said the conspiracy against the chief of staff was part of a plan to eliminate senior army officers and bring about "quick reforms" in the army.

Attala Pasha was informed by one of the officers of the plan to kill him, it was reported. He invited those involved to his office and they were arrested.

The Gallup Poll

Good Health, End of War Lead Americans' 'Thanks' Reasons

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 25.—Americans, conscious of the world's trials and tribulations, still feel they have much for which to be grateful while observing the eighty-fourth national Thanksgiving Day tomorrow.

In keeping with the spirit of the celebration, the Institute conducted a coast-to-coast poll on the question:

"What do you feel most thankful for this year?"

Beset by high living costs, disheartening news from abroad and fears of atomic warfare, one might suppose Americans would be hard-pressed to answer that question. But evidently the traditional spirit of the day is so ingrained that replies come readily to mind. Only 1 person out of 100 says that he has nothing to be thankful for.

Some may find the answers trite stereotypes, while others will find in them warm appreciation of the values that make human life enjoyable.

Here are the things for which America is most thankful:

Good health, and being alive	52%
War is over, family is out of the service	18
Having family and friends, happy home	9
Good job	6
A place to live	4
Living in America	4
"Everything"	2
Miscellaneous	16
Nothing	1
No answer	2

(More than 100 because some gave more than one answer.)

President Lincoln issued the first national Thanksgiving Proclamation, naming the last Thursday in November, 1863, for the observation. Mrs. Sarah Hale, a woman's magazine editor, is generally credited with the idea of a national religious festival on that day every year. Individual States had observed a day of thanksgiving for a number of years prior to 1863, and in 1859, a total of 30 governors issued proclamations.

Lincoln's proclamation, written in the midst of civil strife, bears rereading in the light of today's events. One paragraph follows:

"Needful diversions of wealth and strength from the fields of peaceful industry to the national defense have not arrested the plow, the shuttle, or the ship; the ax has enlarged the borders of our settlements, and the mines, as well of iron and coal as of the precious metals, have yielded even more abundantly than heretofore. Population has steadily increased notwithstanding the waste that has been made in the camp, the siege and the battlefield, and the country, rejoicing in the consciousness of augmented strength and vigor, is permitted to expect continuance of years with large increase of freedom."

Officials Mum On Police Edict

secretary of the Traffic Court Conference of the District Bar Association, said Barrett's order had "no sense" and was a "direct contradiction" of a ruling of the Corporation Counsel's Office and an order of the then District Commissioners in 1939.

Lubar said he was "surprised" that the police superintendent had taken such action.

"The conference believes," said Lubar, "that the traffic ticket adjustments should be a matter of public record and that the reason for every adjustment should be made public."

Last week Barrett refused a conference request for information on adjustments, claiming they were an administrative and not a public matter.

Brett Urges Publicity

Ernest R. Brett, branch manager of the Keystone Automobile Club and a member of the executive committee of the conference, entered a vote against Barrett's action and said he believes all traffic ticket adjustments should be listed publicly.

Arthur J. Sundlun, chairman of the Commissioners Traffic Advisory Board, said his board is studying the Barrett order. He said the matter has been referred to the board's committee on enforcement which is headed by Washington I. Cleveland, American Automobile Association executives.

He said the committee's findings probably will be placed before the next meeting of the full board December 15.

Cleveland said he had turned over the matter to a subcommittee headed by Lubar. Cleveland and Lubar are members of both the Commissioners Traffic Advisory Board and the Traffic Court conference.

Barrett did not say so, but the precedent set in 1939 when the Commissioners ordered adjustment of traffic tickets "be made a matter of public record" might have been news to him yesterday.

The order was issued on October 17, 1939, when the late Melvin C. Hazen was president of the Board of Commissioners.

Clarification Issued

The 1939 order followed by five days a recommendation from Elwood H. Seal, then corporation counsel, that the names of all persons whose traffic tickets were adjusted, the names of the officers who issued the tickets, the persons requesting cancellation of the tickets and the reasons for the adjustments be made public.

To "clarify" the order, the Commissioners on October 27, 1939, issued a directive to the police department ordering it make public "all cases" where traffic violation tickets were issued and later canceled or reduced to a warning.

The directive said: "The required information must be given and made public in accordance with the spirit and intent of the Commissioners' order."

Asked yesterday if he still felt the list of adjustments should be kept from the public, Barrett said, "No comment."

Should other police records now made public also be kept from the public?

Barrett: "No comment."

Since police action on traffic tickets is basically a court function delegated to precinct captains, should records of other court actions also be kept from the public?

Barrett: "No comment."

Is publicity about adjustment of a traffic ticket any more embarrassing than publicity about any other misdemeanor?

"The only thing I'm interested in," said Barrett, "is a ruling from the corporation counsel's office on whether these adjustment lists are public records."

Navy Acquits Little of Jap Camp Charges

By the United Press

Lieut. Comdr. Edward N. Little of Decatur, Ill., has been acquitted by a Navy court martial of all charges of mistreating American prisoners at a Japanese prison camp, it was announced last night.

The Navy said the findings of the seven-man court were approved by Secretary John L. Sullivan although Rear Adm. O. S. Colclough, Navy Judge Advocate General, criticized them on at least one count.

The court sat for 98 days and heard 77 witnesses on 22 charges against Little ranging from striking his fellow prisoners to turning over to the Japanese for "cruel and inhuman" punishment those who reportedly stole food and clothing.

Two of the prisoners, James G. Pavlakos, a Marine corporal, and William N. Knight, an Army private, died after being turned over to their Japanese captors.

Little is a Naval Academy graduate now stationed at St. Juliens Creek, Va.

The accusations were based on "incidents" at the Omuta prison camp, Kyushu, Japan, between August 10, 1943, and September 15, 1945. Little was in charge of the prison mess during most of this period, but was company commander of all American prisoners during the last few months.

Colclough said the court had placed "greater credence in the veracity of witnesses for the defense and gave their testimony the greater weight."

He also sided with the prosecution on one count—that the defense had failed to show that Little, in ordering the beating of a prisoner who stole a cucumber, was inflicting a punishment commensurate with the crime.

Going Strong Early

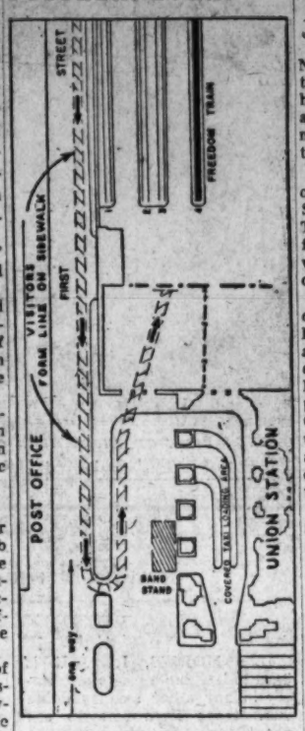
How to Visit Freedom Train



Arrows indicate how visitors will view Freedom Train tomorrow at Union Station

Freedom Train Due in Capital Tomorrow for 2-Day Exhibit

The Freedom Train rolls into the Nation's Capital tomorrow for a two-day exhibit of more than 100 historic documents which played a significant job in the development of America's democratic heritage.

The seven-car display will be open to the public at Track 4 Union Station from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m. Thanksgiving Day and Friday on a first-come, first serve basis. The visitors' line will form at the west concourse.

The Freedom Train began a tour of 300 communities in all 48 States last September. Sponsored by the American Heritage Foundation, The Freedom Train grew out of a proposal by Attorney General Tom Clark. The idea behind the unique rolling exhibit is to reawaken and rededicate the American people to their common traditions of liberty.

The 30,000 Greater Washingtonians who will be lucky enough to get aboard the train—thousands are expected to be turned away as they have been in other cities when the train has stopped—will see the most impressive collection of documents ever assembled in this country.

They include a manuscript copy of the Declaration of Independence, attested by Benjamin Franklin; a printed draft of the Constitution with annotations by George Washington; the official and original manuscript of the Bill of Rights; Abraham Lincoln's Emancipation Proclamation; the German surrender documents; and the Declaration of the United Nations.

Ceremonies marking the arrival of the Freedom Train from Baltimore will be held at Track 4 at 9:30 a. m. Speakers include Speaker of the House Joseph W. Martin; John Russell Young, president of the District Board of Commissioners; and John A. Reilly, president of the Washington Board of Trade and chairman of the Citizens Committee for Washington Rededication Week.

Admission to the ceremonial area, at the west end of the concourse, will be by ticket only, but loudspeakers will broadcast the speeches all over the station.

Five bands will present concerts throughout the two-day exhibition. The concert schedule for tomorrow is as follows: 9:30 a. m., Marine Corps Band; noon, Metropolitan Police Band; 2 p. m., Army Band; 4 p. m., Air Forces Band; 7:30 p. m., Navy Band.

We have decided to appeal to the fair play of the American public. We are willing to sacrifice our profit in order to meet the present transportation situation. Here's the plan: Simply drive in with your title, name your own price and we'll try to sell your car. Your only cost is 10% commission IF we sell your car. This assures you that you will get top price for your car or, in other words, you get full retail price when we sell your car, less 10% for handling.

100,000 Seen Leaving D. C. For Holiday

A Thanksgiving holiday exodus of 100,000 persons is expected to crowd train, plane and bus facilities out of Washington, beginning late today and continuing through tomorrow morning.

The travel estimate was made by Sidney Kerf, Union Station superintendent, who said railroads operating out of the National Capital would add approximately a dozen extra trains, most of them to the New York area, and about 100 extra cars to the regular trains to care for the heavy travel.

Hapxerth

Incoming travel is expected to be light, until toward the weekend both Kerl and Clarence A. Arata, manager of the Greater National Capital Committee of the Washington Board of Trade, said.

The Weather Bureau here last night said the holiday will be mostly sunny, although cold with 40-degree temperatures, which is expected to draw additional thousands of motorists onto nearby highways for short afternoon trips.

A marketing specialist in the Department of Agriculture's Poultry Division estimated 150,000 turkeys will be consumed tomorrow in Greater Washington—a total of approximately 1,950,000 pounds. Current turkey prices, he said, are about the same as last year.

Chandler Rules That Priddy Reverts to Nats

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

TOP COMMAND in the Navy's Bureau of Psychological Warfare is being turned over this week to Capt. Tom Hamilton. His duty is clear-cut. Hamilton has orders to whip Navy into a fighting fury, drop tacklers behind the Army lines, and wreck the sister branch of the service as represented by West Point's football team on Saturday afternoon at Philadelphia.

POVICH

In Hamilton, Navy is turning toward a seasoned strategist, who a year ago achieved so much with so little. That was when he took up to Philadelphia a Navy football team that was supposed to lose by four touchdowns, and was on Army's three-yard line at the finish of a narrow 21-19 defeat by the Cadets. It was most illogical that Navy should come that close to beating Blanchard, Davis, Tucker & Co.

As contrasted with the efficacy of good old Navy fight, Hamilton cares not a fig for the logic of any situation, however. Of him it is said that if the Japs had come up with the atom bomb, Hamilton would have banked on good old Navy fight to win the war in any event. By Saturday afternoon, he'll have his Navy boys thinking that anything less than a three-touchdown victory over Army will be letting him down.

HAMILTON countenances no inferiority complexes among his Navy lads. All week he has been telling 'em, "We can knock Army's ears off," and he's pleased with the response. My Annapolis operatives report that the Midshipmen's only problem at this point is what to do with the surplus bathrobes they'll win from West Point men in their traditional betting spree on the Army-Navy result.

During the war, the Navy picked Hamilton to supervise its preflight training program for budding airmen who were supposed to carry the fight to the Japs on graduation. But early in the program, Navy was aghast when its young fliers, expressing their choice of duty, ducked combat jobs in favor of patrol. The story is that only 1 per cent of the fliers put in for combat duty.

Then it was that Hamilton made a few speeches. He talked tough, got mad, pictured the glories and the excitement of combat duty. Told 'em he wasn't asking the flying cadets to do anything he hadn't already done himself, and asked them to resubmit their preferences. The new poll produced 90 per cent requests for carrier and fighter duty.

FOR THE FIRST TIME in three years, a Navy team will be meeting a West Point eleven that doesn't include Blanchard, Davis and Tucker. But paradoxically enough, Army is still the favorite even in a year when it supposedly lost the men who made the West Point attack move. Navy, after its 60 minutes of glory last November 30, lapsed into a chronic loser this season, with six defeats against its record.

In a year when Army has lost its backfield glitter, Navy is faced with even a stronger line. Elmer (Rip) Rowan, overshadowed in the Army backfield last season, has come rightfully into his own as a ball carrier for the Cadets. Only Notre Dame and Columbia have been able to knock Army off, and those same two teams defeated Navy by even more impressive scores.

But Hamilton this week was gifted with one more psychological weapon. Demands are rife for a new coaching system at Navy, with a civilian coach proposed. That is fodder on which Hamilton can feed, and doubtless is doing, in his pep talks with his Navy lads. They have to win this one, he's sure to tell them, for the justification of the Navy blue.

IN RECENT GAMES, a new hope has dawned for Navy. Though defeated by Georgia Tech and Penn State, Navy coaches finally saw Halfback Al McCully justify their early-season belief that they would have a running mate for Bill Hawkins. Pistol Pete Williams, a tremendous performer against Army last year, is back in action after being slowed by injuries.

Army's line does not awe Navy, either. At Annapolis they think Navy's line is better with Dick Shimshack and Chuck Strahley at the tackles, Ken Schiwek and Scott Emerson at guard, and Dick Scott at center. It was Navy's line that almost upset the Cadets last year.

In fact, the game Saturday at Philadelphia ought to be a beaut. In fact, I've talked myself into seeing it.

Ruel Signs as Tribe Coach In Move for 'Super' Staff

Cleveland, Nov. 25 (AP).—Agreement of Herold (Muddy) Ruel, deposed St. Louis Browns manager, to become a 1948 coach for the Cleveland Indians signals a new experiment by Tribe President Bill Veeck today to "find out just how much value there is in a high-class coaching staff."

Recent remarks by Veeck also were interpreted by local observers to indicate that the future of coaches Oscar Melillo and George Susce with the Indians is shaky, and that signing of Ruel would be the first step in a sweeping reorganization of the Tribe's "brain trust."

Veeck has indicated that Tris Speaker, famed "Grey Eagle" who served as a part-time coach for the Indians this year, may figure in the Tribe's future board of strategy. Bill also asked veteran catcher Al Lopez to "wait a while" in considering other baseball offers after receiving his release from the Indians.

Ruel agreed to sign a one-year contract in a telephone conversation from his St. Louis home last midnight, Veeck said, adding that the former assistant to Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler would come to Cleveland later for formal signing. The Indians Chief declined to elaborate on terms of the contract.

The agreement with Ruel came on the heels of Veeck's announcement that all-star shortstop Lou Boudreau had been signed to a new two-year contract as Tribe manager. Only "about 2½ minutes" of a 2½-hour conference between the pair was spent in discussing Lou's salary, the Tribe President said.

Hannegan Says Cards Will Stay in St. Louis

By Robert Reece
Associated Press Sports Writer

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 25 (AP).—Postmaster General Robert E. Hannegan, who headed the syndicate purchasing the St. Louis Cardinals and their far-flung minor league holdings, stated emphatically tonight that the team will remain in St. Louis.

In reply to a question about rumors that the Cardinals might be moved to the West Coast, Hannegan said:

"The club will definitely remain in St. Louis."

Sam Breadon, who invested $2000 in the National League club as a "civic gesture" 30 years ago and built one of baseball's strongest organizations, announced the sale at a press conference.

At the same time, Hannegan's resignation from his Cabinet post to head the Cardinal organization was announced in Washington to become effective December 1.

The purchase price was estimated at $3,500,000, a figure which would make it the largest transaction of its kind in baseball history. The price was not announced.

The deal embraces all assets of the Cardinal organization, including 16 farm clubs, funds on deposit and mid-town real estate which Breadon acquired years ago as a possible site of a new Redbirds stadium.

Physical properties also involved include ball parks and real estate at Columbus, Ohio; Rochester, N. Y., and Houston, Tex., the latter embracing valuable acreage near a new superhighway. In addition, construction has started on a Cardinal-owned park at Allentown, Pa.

Breadon "Voluntary Adviser"

Hannegan becomes president of the Cardinals and chairman of the board of directors, succeeding Breadon, who announced he would remain with the organization as "voluntary adviser." Fred M. Saigh, jr., St. Louis attorney and one of the purchasers, will be vice president and treasurer.

Breadon stated that majority control of the Cardinal organization was sold to Hannegan, "who will personally have controlling interest in the club." Saigh was described as the principal minority stockholder.

Directors of the new organization, in addition to Hannegan and Saigh, were announced as follows: David R. Calhoun, jr., president of the St. Louis Union Trust Co.; William C. Connett, vice president of the First National Bank of St. Louis; Gwynne Evans, former president of the Evans Coffee Co.; Sydney Salomon, jr., St. Louis insurance man and former executive assistant to Hannegan in the Post Office Department, and George W. Simpkins, St. Louis attorney who represented Hannegan in the deal.

The new owners emphasized that the Cardinals will remain in St. Louis and that no change in the club's personnel is contemplated.

Student Fans Gobble Up High Tickets

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

The school kids of Washington simply have gone gaga over the Central-McKinley interhigh championship football game at Griffith Stadium Friday night.

Reports rolled in from various schools yesterday indicating that interest has reached such a peak an all-time record throng of students will attend the big game.

At three of the public high schools, McKinley Tech, Central and Eastern, student ticket sales exceed the student enrollments. Some of these tickets went to junior highs.

At Coolidge, the game is a sellout. The other four interhigh schools are expected to reach record sales today.

The junior highs and private and parochial schools within the District boundaries, and the suburban schools kept the telephone ringing in the office of Hardy Pearce, director of high school athletics. "More tickets," they demanded.

Players Introduced

Excitement at Tech and Central is at fever pitch. Pep assemblies were held at each school yesterday and players of the rival team were introduced.

On the stage at Central were McKinley Center Bob Bell and Guard Ed Cleary, who doubles as Tech's student council president. At the Tech assembly, were Central Quarterback Jimmy Johnson and Gilbert Snyder, who heads the Central student council.

Stars of the great Central and Tech teams of past years, were also catching the spirit of the big championship game.

A star end of the Central 1903-04 team, Sidney Kent, 62-year-old retired real estate agent and attorney, made special plans to set aside a section of tickets for Viking veterans of the 1902-32 teams.

Magoffin Attends

Among those who promised to sit with Kent were Paul (Maggy) Magoffin, hero of the first Central-Tech game in 1902 and Allen Minnix, quarterback of the 1909-10 teams.

Mike Kelley, coach of the 1925 championship Central team, announced yesterday that "his team" was holding a big reunion dinner at 6 p. m. Friday at the Colonial Hotel, 15th and M sts. nw. They will attend the game in a group.

Of those who'll attend, six played college ball. They are End Wes Byng, now a lieutenant commander in the Navy, who starred at Annapolis; Tackle Charley Van Meter, police lieutenant at Third Precinct, performed at George Washington; Tackle Herman Lombard, played at Maryland.

Center Frank Blackistone, who is coming in all the way from Nashville, Tenn., captained Princeton; Quarterback Morton Wilmer, a local lawyer, was All-Eastern at Penn; and Halfback George (Augie) Roberts, performed at Marylnd.

Tickets Available Thanksgiving Day

The counter in the lobby of The Washington Post will remain open from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m., Thursday, Thanksgiving Day, for the sale of tickets to the Central-McKinley interhigh football championship game at Griffith Stadium Friday night.

School Game Brings Back Memories

OUR WALTER

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

"HONEST, Pop," said my model son (Mack Truck model), "I believe you are taking this 'new look' business seriously." Before I could ask why, he continued, "I could swear you are wearing your bay window lower this season."

Now that's a heck of a way to start a conversation destined to develop into a plea for the use of the family car. However, such it was, for he finally asked:

"How about using the car Friday night? I want to take my gang to the Tech-Central game."

Before I could get a word in horizontally, our darling daughter spoke up, "You're just a day late, smarty. I've already asked for the car to go to the game. Father hasn't decided yet, but I know he doesn't want us Coolidge girls to have an inferiority complex, arriving at the Hot Shoppe on a streetcar."

"Cross her off the list, Pop," pleaded my model son. "Why, I'll even listen while you tell about the year you played fullback for Business High and how you beat Central and tied Tech."

Confidentially, neither gets the car. Mother and I are going to the Tech-Central game and we're taking our Friday night poker club—you know, spit-in-the-ocean, low-hole-card, Dr. Pepper, follow-the-queen, black bottom, etc.

MORE confidentially, I don't want to discuss my high school football days with the

New Agreement Puts Funds in U. S. Treasury

By Roger Wolbarst
Post Reporter

An agreement regarding the National Guard Armory was reached yesterday, definitely assuring the use of the armory for major sports events this winter.

District and National Guard officials agreed to jointly manage the huge structure until a permanent head is named by Congress next year. All the funds from outside activities in the building will be deposited in the United States Treasury until authority over the armory is definitely established.

Yesterday's agreement will give District sports enthusiasts use of facilities for all types of events in the immense building.

Besides the main drill floor, which can be used for basketball games, horse shows, indoor track meets and other events requiring large floor space, the armory has rifle ranges, boxing, wrestling and athletic conditioning facilities.

Shower bath and locker room space is available and steam rooms are planned for construction in the near future.

The rifle range, used by the FBI for training during the war, is being equipped with electrical target apparatus. The public can make use of the range by writing to Adjutant Gen. Peyton G. Nevitt.

Court in Center

The basketball court, which will be used for the first college game of the winter program on December 8, when Georgetown plays Denver University, will be laid out across the main drill floor, which measures 400 by 200 feet.

Five hundred people will be seated behind each basket in the permanent steel balconies. Glass backboards will enable patrons in these seats to witness all the action without visual interference.

Thirty-five hundred people will sit in the temporary bleachers on the floor alongside the court. Public address and amplifying systems are being set up. The lighting is already installed and is of the latest type.

Interhigh basketball doubleheaders will be held every Friday during January and February and the seating capacity will enable more fans than ever before to witness these games. It will, however, be far smaller than the anticipated demand.

Short of Exits

Under present conditions, crowds are limited to 4825 by order of the fire commissioners. This limitation, it is claimed, is necessary because of the inadequate number and size of the exits. There are seven direct exits leading from the drill floor.

One of the National Guard officials present at yesterday's tour of the building estimated that 10,000 persons could be seated around the drill floor at athletic events. To accommodate crowds of this size, however, the exits would have to be enlarged.

Senator Harry P. Cain (R., Wash.), chairman of the Senate District Fiscal Affairs Committee, yesterday announced that a special engineering committee will be set up to study the situation, but Gen. Albert L. Cox, head of the District National Guard, believes that any changes in these exits would have to wait until after the winter season, as numerous events are already booked.

Terps' Bowl Bid Hinges on Carolina Game

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Maryland will make an announcement as to its January 1 football plans, if any, immediately following its regular season's finale with N. C. State at College Park Saturday, Old Liner officials said last night.

A 'Gator Bowl scout, representing the Jacksonville, Fla., promotion, will be in the stands Saturday and a representative from Miami's Orange Bowl is also expected to be among the 15,000 spectators.

Yesterday the Terps got down to the serious work of preparing for the N. S. State tussle.

Officials said: "Any announcement just now about Maryland's bowl participation is premature. We'll have something to say Saturday, one way or the other. If we win—and that's a mighty big if—we would not look unkindly on a bowl offer, if it were attractive enough."

The twice-beaten Terps, whose attractiveness as a bowl participant soared following Saturday's upset of Vanderbilt, have received five bowl feelers and one outright invitation—to the 'Gator Bowl in Jacksonville, where they would play Oklahoma, cochampions of the Big Six.

William and Mary, champion to be of the Southern Conference, eliminated itself from Oronge Bowl consideration by accepting an invitation to play in Birmingham's first annual Dixie Bowl. An opponent will be named Saturday.

Griff Not Loser if Berardino Quits Game

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Clark Griffith, jubilantly cited the rule of baseball that is in his favor yesterday, declared that Second Baseman Gerry Priddy and "the lot of cash" paid to the Browns will revert to the Washington club if Johnny Berardino fails to join the Nats.

The Washington owner, who went into rapid action to void the deal after Berardino announced his retirement from baseball in favor of a movie career, was upheld by Commissioner A. B. Chandler and American League President Will Harridge.

Both Chandler and Harridge notified Griffith that the deal could be voided under section 12-F of the Major-Minor League agreement which provides:

"In the event of death or permanent incapacitation of a player, or his bonafide retirement from the game . . . before reporting to the assignee club, the agreement shall be void and the consideration theretofore given by latter club shall be returned."

Griff Wires Berardino

Griffith dispatched a telegram to Berardino in Hollywood yesterday, asking him to reaffirm or reconsider his retirement from baseball, but last night had received no answer.

"He has until March 1 to change his mind if we went to keep the deal open," said Griffith. "Meanwhile, the payment I made to the Browns is in the hands of Commissioner Chandler, through whose office all deals are cleared. Mr. Chandler will return the money to me and void the deal after he makes his own investigation of the circumstances."

As for Priddy's status with the Washington club, Griffith revealed for the first time that his name is being placed on the waiver list. "We'll dispose of him to some club if the Berardino deal is voided. We'll know more about a deal for Priddy when the waiver requests come in."

The Nats' owner reiterated that Priddy, who was supposedly involved in a player mutiny against Manager Ossie Bluege last season, "does not figure in our 1948 plans."

Hopes Johnny Reconsiders

Griffith declared he was hopeful that Berardino would reconsider his retirement.

"Other players have said they were quitting baseball and changed their mind," he pointed out. "Maybe this is just a publicity stunt to call attention to the movie that Berardino is doing in Hollywood. Those movie people are smart that way."

In the event the deal is voided, Griffith admitted that his 1948 plans would be complicated with Priddy due to be traded and a second base problem visited on the club in addition to the need for more power at third base and shortstop.

"Manager Joe Kuhel will be at the minor league meetings in Miami next week, and I'm hopeful he'll lay the groundwork for some beneficial trades there before the major leagues meet in New York December 9. All the major league clubs will be represented at Miami," Griffith pointed out.

Only 3 More Days to Buy Tickets to Big High Game

ONLY THREE MORE days in which to buy your tickets to the biggest high school football game ever played in Washington, the Central-McKinley Interhigh championship contest at Griffith Stadium Friday night.

Answers to questions asked by football fans:

1—Are the seats reserved individually or by sections? They are reserved individually, the same as for Nats and Redskins games—strictly big league for a big-league attraction.

2—Are some good seats left? Tickets are going fast but many choice seats still are available.

Tickets are on sale at Griffith Stadium, the Fairway Sports Shop, 1328 G st. nw., and the lobby of The Washington Post.

Prices for reserved seats are $1.80 and $2.40, including tax. General admission (unreserved) seats, $1.20, including tax, will be sold at the ball park only the day of the game.

Parents of students may purchase tickets at the high schools.

Students who hold athletic cards will be admitted for 25 cents if they purchase tickets at their respective schools by November 26, last day of school before the Thanksgiving holidays. Thereafter students must pay regular prices.

Students at private, parochial and county schools also may purchase 25-cent tickets, if they hold athletic cards. These 25-cent tickets will be available at the various schools.

Proceeds of the game will go to the athletic funds of the eight Interhighs, and to the Community Chest. The game is under the sponsorship of the Board of Education and The Washington Post.

King and Cooper Mix It Again

Two of the scrappiest little fellows in the area, Featherweights Puggy King and Jimmy Cooper, will tangle in the eight-round feature of Monday night's Turner's Arena fight program.

The 19-year-old flailers staged a whirlwind six-round draw here a month ago. The fight was one of the most thrilling ever held in Washington with both being on the canvas during the milling.

This is the first time either has fought in the feature spot. King is a former Golden Gloves champion. Cooper got his start as a soldier in California.

Capitols Host to St. Louis Bombers for First Time at Uline Tonight

O'Grady Back With Invaders

Francis (Buddy) O'Grady, former Georgetown University captain and guard and one of the key men of the Washington Capitols last season, will represent the St. Louis Bombers tonight when they make their 1947-48 local debut against the local pros in a Basketball Association of America game at Uline Arena, 8:30 o'clock.

This will be the final home appearance of the Caps until they return to Uline's against the Baltimore Bullets December 17. They will be bearing down in an effort to avenge a 60-72 weekend loss to the Bombers in St. Louis, and also to improve their record of four reversals in six games to date.

O'Grady was one of seven players who shouldered most of the responsibility last season as the Capitols won the Eastern Division championship. He was released on trial to the Bombers recently, and his purchase was announced following the Bombers' victory over the Caps in St. Louis last Saturday night.

DiMag Skips Out Of Johns Hopkins

Baltimore, Nov. 25 (AP).—Joe DiMaggio, New York Yankees centerfielder, apparently pulled a fast steal today out of Johns Hopkins Hospital where he had undergone an operation on his throwing arm.

Hospital authorities said the slugger had been given a "pass" last night and was expected to return today to check out. But he failed to show up and the hospital listed him as "discharged," assuming he had returned to New York.

DiMaggio came to Hopkins about 10 days ago for removal of two bone chips from his right elbow. He said the sore arm had hampered him all last season and toward the close of the campaign it was good for only one "hard" throw a game.

Buses to the Army-Navy game in Philadelphia Saturday will leave from the Atwood Terminal, 16 Massachusetts ave. nw., from 7:30 to 9 a. m., Saturday.

Our Walter Calls Up a Few Fond School Memories

children. When they were young, I'll have to admit I added a little color—sort of story-telling license was my excuse.

If I told the truth, I'd have to admit I was third-string fullback. I played in the nonchampionship games against Charlotte Hall, St. Albans, etc. At the series games with Eastern, Western and Tech I was on the bench, sitting near Coach White watching him with hopeful eyes.

I can't say I wanted injury to come to Richmond Keech, the regular fullback, or Cotton Noonan, his first substitute, but I did wish both would become winded at one and the same time.

The final game was with Central. Business was ahead with only a few minutes to play. Coach White's eyes scanned the bench and he looked straight at me and yelled, "Haight."

I was in my glory as I rushed toward him, throwing my knees high in my best warm-up form. Seemed like an eternity before he said, "Haight, I want you to get in there——" He broke off the sentence, stopped patting my back and exclaimed, "Say, you haven't any shoulder pads! What did you do with them?"

"Loaned them to Oscar, the guard, like you told me at the half," I replied mournfully.

"Well, change with him quickly," snapped the coach.

As I tucked in the jersey tail, he said, "Get in there and tell Quarterback Culligan not to take any chances—punt on the first down."

I ran on the field, almost deafened by the loudest cheering I ever heard. The players were milling around. I rushed up to the referee and yelled, "Haight for Keech."

The official turned his back. I ran around in front of him, but he walked down the field. Finally I grabbed him by the belt, swung him around and bellowed, "Haight for Keech at fullback. Didn't you hear me?"

"Yes I hear you, son," replied the referee. "But go sell your papers—the game is over."

Thus ended the high school football career of one Haight.

No, I never was in a series game officially, but come to think of it I did see some brief action—and in a Tech-Central game at that.

When I was about 10, my brother Joe played end for Tech. On an off-tackle play, I saw Joe crumble, apparently knocked out. I dashed from the sidelines and dove into the pile-up to help him.

Was I rewarded? Well, when Joe regained consciousness, he promptly booted me off the field.

Outwardly I was disgraced, but inwardly I was happy.

D.C.-Owned Flying Weather Beats Shako in Bowie Upset

$9.40 Shot Scores in Piscataway

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Bowie, Md., Nov. 25.—Flying Weather, owned by D. K. Kerr, jr., of Washington, D. C. stuck by his running guns long enough to win the Piscataway, Tuesday feature witnessed by 7000 customers.

The 4-year-old son of Happy Argo came from off the pace to take command and then had to be hard pushed at the end to stave off a closing bid by M. Newmeyer's Shako. Two lengths farther back came E. C. Allnutt's Meetmenow to be third in the field of seven.

With Mrs. Elmer Trueman's Send Off installed the favorite, Flying Weather paid a $9.40 mutuel and was clocked in 1:13 over a 6 furlongs slow from recent rains.

Jockey Al Schmidl rode Flying Weather and showed a heady performance. He did not hurry his mount as Send Off and Saracen Miss battled for pacemaking honors. When that pair began to wilt, he roused Flying Weather and the gelding responded by driving to the front.

Shako Rallies

Schmidl took no chances and kept hard at work, a precaution that proved necessary when Shako, off poorly, rallied and closed with excellent courage. Meetmenow responded to hard urging to close willingly and take the show money from the leg-weary Sendoff.

Flying Weather seems to thrive on work. This was his twenty-fifth start of the year and his fourth success. The $2100 he collected today brought his 1947 earnings to $18,576.

High Ground Stables' American Wolfe, piloted by Arnold Kirkland, who will ride Hefty for the same owner at in Thursday's $10,000 Endurance Handicap, was the winner of the day's secondary feature, a test of a mile and a furlong.

Show to Oatmeal

Kirkland took the 8-year-old son of Neddie to the front at the break nad kept him there, getting home by a mere neck margin over Mrs. S. S. Zell's Chanteuse. In third position came Clynmalyra Stud's Oatmeal.

American Wolf paid $5.20 as the favorite in the field of seven and was clocked in 1:56.

The daily double on Iron Pigeon, winner of the first race, and Mrs. H. J. Mohr's Rusty Flyer, victor in the second, returned $53.20.

Armstrong Beaten, 20-7, By Cardozo

"Sal" Hall's fast Cardozo High School eleven defeated Armstrong 20-7, to win the city gridiron championship yesterday at Brooks Stadium before an estimated 4000.

Alvin Scott scored the first touchdown for the winners on a 16-yard run around his left end, and Bob Wills converted.

Armstrong tied the score in the first period when Dan Davis intercepted Leo Miles long pass, ran 45 yards to cross the Cardozo goal line. Bill Scott made the conversion from placement.

Just before the half Rudy McGoines blocked Haislip's punt, grabbed the ball and dived three yards for a touchdown.

In the final period, Sid Parker went through center for the final Cardozo touchdown, and Wills converted again.

Brooks Censures Pails

Melbourne, Australia, Nov. 25 (AP).—Sir Norman Brookes, president of the Australian Lawn Tennis Association, said today he thought Dinny Pails, Australian singles champion, acted "in a very foolish manner" in going to the United States to turn professional without approaching the association.

Bill Bennings Says

Dear Folks: At Bowie.

Trainer Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons departed for Hialeah Park after inspecting the nearby Belair Stud and the two fillies he turned over to Tom Rodrock, namely Vashti and My Emma. Both may start in the twenty-fifth running of the Thanksgiving Day feature, the $10,000 added Endurance Handicap for juveniles at 1 mile and 70 yards.

The amiable veteran conditioner is high in the praise of Vashti, a fine looking chestnut filly by Gallant Fox—Vicaress and is confident that the filly will prove to be a fine performer in stake events next season.

James McGee, who saddled Air Patrol and Little Harp to two victories apiece during the present meeting, will turn out his public stable on Fred Calwill's farm, near Pikesville, Md. Little Harp will be fired during the winter months. McGee will leave for Florida over the weekend, where he has six yearlings in training.

Claude Feltner will take a draft of thoroughbreds to the West Coast immediately following the close of the Bowie meeting. Included in the shipment will be the Ridgewood Stable's good 3-year-old Double Jay, Peace Harbor, Chal Jay and Bardia. Feltner, who handled the Art Dale Stable's string in fine fashion throughout the year, will also have Bobanet Stable's Trojan Fleet, a winner here on Monday, and three yearlings for the O'Sullivan Farm under his wing.

Paul Morris, who campaigned the useful 2-year-old Kandy Comfort, a juvenile filly who was beaten only by three Calumet Farm stars, namely, Citation, Bewitched and Whirlsome, during the 1947 season, has transferred four horses to the Horne Bros. Ranch at Ocala, Fla., and will ship from there to the Miami area. See you on the rail.

Los Angeles Council Asks For Pro Leagues Playoff

Los Angeles, Nov. 25 (AP).—The All-America Football Conference accepted today a bid from the Los Angeles City Council for a post-season "Charity Bowl" game between its champion and that of the rival National Football League.

The National League—which in the past has turned down invitations to meet teams from the junior loop—has not yet been approached, said Councilman Harold Harby, who is sponsoring the contest.

Harby read a wire from Admiral Jonas H. Ingram, skipper of the All-America:

"The All-America Football Conference accepts the invitation of the City of Los Angeles to play a charity game with the 1947 champions of the National Football League at the Los Angeles Memorial Stadium anytime. Details to be arranged later."

Harby said all proceeds would go to the Damon Runyon Cancer Memorial Fund—an estimated half-million dollars. He said he was confident the contest would be a Coliseum sell-out of 100,000 plus at $5 per ticket. He suggested either Saturday, December 27, or Sunday, December 28, as the date.

With Ingram's acceptance, Harby said an immediate bid would be extended to the National League.

Bert Bell, commissioner of the National League, said in Philadelphia that he had received no notice of the proposed game and that he had "no comment" to make.

Out Hunting

By Jack Bell

Virginia's Game and Inland Fisheries Executive Director, L. T. Quinn, in an appraisal of game conditions and laws of the State said: "With exception of deer and one or two species of game, wildlife has been affected by a fair to poor breeding and nesting season. One of the prime requisites of a good supply of game is close observance of the rules and regulations governing the take."

He continued "Unless there is strict observance of the laws, the commission is committed to a firm determination to rigidly enforce the laws by apprehension and prosecution of the offenders."

It is a well known fact to sportsmen that in the back country of Virginia, there is no law or season among the "natives." For year's Virginia's legislative body has made it almost impossible for even the sportsman to observe its many and complicated laws and seasons.

One has to consult the regulations and check them by counties and dates, almost as frequently as one does the Solunar Tables.

However, Director Quinn directly charged with enforcement of the laws and seasons, evidently now sees eye to eye with the sportsman who wants to observe the rules.

It is understood that the Governor and 1948 General Assembly are urged to make a study toward the adoption of more uniform State-wide hunting and fishing regulations, thereby making enforcement a more simple problem.

Heading the list of fines collected from nonresident hunters by the New York Conservation Department was the sum of $525 paid by a group of three hunters, headed by Stephen "Laddie" Sanford, internationally known polo player, who bagged a Canadian limit of geese but transported 30 in excess of the American limit across the border.

Sanford, his sister, Mrs. Sidney Legendre of Mount Holly, S. C., and Thomas Estam, Monkton, Md., flying from the Hudson Bay area, landed at La-Guardia Airport with their combined bag of 45 blue and snow geese in violation of the migratory waterfowl law. Each paid $175 in settlement for their individual violations.

Mayer's Breeding Farm Going on the Block

Perris, Calif., Nov. 25 (AP).—Louis B. Mayer's five-million-dollar breeding farm is going on the block and definite announcement of the movie magnate's disposal plans is expected tomorrow.

Mayer, who gave up active racing this year and now wants to get rid of the rest of his equine holdings, was slated to huddle today with Henry Knight, prominent Lexington (Ky.) turfman.

Myron Fox, representing Mayer, declared that Knight is here to arrange details for an auction—which would start with 40 prize yearlings, and work through some 40 brood mares and several stallions, including famed Alibhai.

Injunction Studied In Printers' Strike

NLRB Counsel May Stop Chicago Walkout With Writ; Papers Continue to Publish

By The Associated Press

Robert N. Denham, general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board, said yesterday he was studying the Chicago newspaper strike situation to determine whether to apply for a Taft-Hartley Law injunction.

Denham was asked by reporters if he was considering applying to the Federal courts in Chicago for an injunction aimed at halting the strike by the AFL International Typographical Union.

"I am studying the case," he said.

The ITU began its strike against Chicago's six daily newspapers Monday, culminating a dispute over the closed-shop provision the union had enjoyed under earlier labor contracts. The closed shop is banned under the new labor law.

David Findling, NLRB associate general counsel, said in a separate interview that any application for an injunction must wait until the NLRB acted on unfair labor practice charges filed earlier with the NLRB by the Chicago Newspaper Publishers Association against its Local 16.

Findling said he expected a decision "shortly" on whether the NLRB will issue a formal complaint on the basis of these charges. Such a complaint recently was issued against the ITU on a national basis, resulting from unfair labor practice charges filed against the union by the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

Papers Issue as Usual, Using Photo Process

Chicago, Nov. 25 (AP).—Chicago's six big daily newspapers came out today with a "new look" and assertions they intended to continue publishing despite an AFL printers strike.

The different appearance was occasioned by substitution of photo-engraved reproduction of type-written letters and figures for the conventional newspaper type.

The emergency printing measure was adopted when more than 1500 members of the Chicago Typographical Union, Local 16, went on strike at 9 p. m. last night, following a breakdown in negotiations since expiration of their contract October 21.

Most of the newspapers reported their first editions were on time or "a little late." The Times, an afternoon tabloid, cut its pages from a planned 52 down to 36 but the other afternoon newspapers, the Daily News and Herald-American, were comparable in size to a week ago.

Meanwhile, the union served notice on eight other Chicago area publications that it had "voted to increase its weekly wage by $14.50 for day work and by $15 for night work.

Most of the big dailies, in front page editorials, reiterated their stand that they are willing to negotiate pay, within the framework of a contract. They contend, however, that the union is standing on a no-contract policy, in opposition to the Taft-Hartley labor law.

The union set up token picket lines at the struck newspapers, but there were no disorders and the newspapers reported that few, if any, members of other crafts were observing the lines.

Negro Firemen Win Injunction

such rights to the "nonpromotable."

"Promotable," the plaintiffs charge, means "white firemen" and "nonpromotable" means Negro firemen. The plaintiffs declare that the agreement disqualifies "Negroes from jobs as engineers and positions on better paid runs.

The 1941 pact was later declared illegal by the Supreme Court as a violation of the National Railway Labor Act.

Motions seeking injunctions against the Brotherhood, the Atlantic Coast Line, and the Southern Railroad had been made by attorneys Irving J. Levy and Joseph L. Rauh, jr., representing the firemen.

Proceedings against the Seaboard Air Line were stayed because the road is facing identical litigation in a Richmond, Va., Federal Court.

Still pending is a suit against the same defendants which asks damages on the grounds that the plaintiffs, because of their color, have been denied promotion and seniority rights.

20 Days to Answer Complaint

According to attorneys Milton Kramer and Lester Schoene, representing the Brotherhood, the United States Court of Appeals for the District may be asked to stay further the effectiveness of the temporary injunction pending a move for a "special appeal" to set aside the injunction.

The defendants have 20 days in which to answer the complaint for a permanent injunction. No date has yet been set for trial on the permanent injunction move.

In his opinion, Holtzoff referred to the plaintiffs as "all of whom belong to the Negro race and who are euphemistically known as nonpromotable firemen (and who) are being unfairly discriminated against in a manner that did not exist under previous hiring practices of the two railroads.

"This is not a matter of race distinction in social relations," Holtzoff said. "It is a matter of arbitrary classification in labor relations. The problem that confronts us is simply whether a faithful employe who has earned a place for himself . . . may be stripped of his means of livelihood by his own bargaining agent."

Ex-GI Commands 400 Moslems in India Attack

London, Tuesday, Nov. 25 (U.P.).—Russell Haight, a sombrero-wearing, cowboy-booted former GI whose wife and daughter live in Denver, Colo., led 400 invading Moslem tribesmen into action Monday night against Indian troops in Kashmir, the Daily Express reported today.

Express correspondent Sydney Smith, in a dispatch from Rawalpindi, Pakistan, said that Haight commanded the Moslems in a punch at the province where Indian troops were racing to relieve the besieged garrisons of the Maharajah, Sir Hari Singh Bahadur.

(Moslem tribesmen first invaded Kashmir last month after the Hindu Maharajah had announced his decision to join his predominantly Moslem princely state with India.)

Smith said that Haight, who described himself as a former staff-sergeant carried a War Department field manual in the pocket of his GI field jacket. A revolver belt was pulled tight around Haight's blue jeans, Smith said.

Bellamy Gets Divorce

Gooding, Idaho, Nov. 25 (AP).—Movie Actor Ralph Bellamy was granted a divorce from his organist wife, Ethel Smith, in District Court yesterday. He charged desertion.

Ringside Table

With Mary Harris

"JUST AN IMPULSE!" That's the way Diosa Costello, costarring with Bert Wheeler at the Cairo, describes herself. Tub thumper Barry Buschell confirms Diosa's impulsiveness by writing, "Last week while Diosa was seeking a little relaxation at the Martinique she became involved in a slight free-for-all which jailed her husband, Pupi Campo, and threatened to put her pictures in many newspapers." How ghastly!) . . . Diosa gets a big start on every day with a brunch of three raw eggs and a glass of orange juice. She doesn't like men of her own exuberant type. That may be a line on her husband, name of Pupi, remember? . . . Rita and Gabriel Cansino, new Cairo dancers, are relatives of Rita Hayworth.

Gene and Tom Nit, jr., daughter and son of Tom Nit, old-time vaude star, head the new Casino Royal revue with a brisk musicomedy interlude. New, too, is Acrodancer Harriet Lane. The Elaine Shaffer Girls do a holiday scene.

SIX-FOOT PANTS are worn by Lou Barrison as part of his white tie and tails outfit at the Lotus. It's true he's perched on stilts but the effect is colossal. Only flaw is that his tails are regular length. They should come below the knee of his stilt-leg to be perfectly esquirish . . . The new Winnie Hoveler Girls are two-thirds blonde and all mighty purty . . . Buddy Shaner is in his top vocal form in "Apple Blossom Wedding."

"BABY FOOD'S THE BUNK. Babies can eat anything," said Hal McIntyre, whose hugh orchestra is the new Fiesta attraction. He was talking about a new nurse left with his 14-month-old Patty. When Hal and his missus came home they asked if Patty had had her dinner. "Oh my, yes," beamed the nurse. "She ate all the baby food left in the ice box and just loved it. Then she went to sleep like a lamb." . . . The "baby food" was some left-over pancake batter.

A world-known musician, who shall be nameless, recently visited Michel's, was asked to name the composer of the number being played. He said it was beautiful, guessed all the masters from Brahms to Prokokieff, finally gave up. The music in question was the famed and ancient "Dies Irae" with variations written by accordionist Toni.

BROWN DERBY SCENE. George Berg's crew, perched over the bar, give their everything to those great tunes from "Forty-second Street." Behind the bar mixologist Tackline keeps his cocktail shaker going in perfect rhythm. It's quite an act . . . I ask for "Indian Summer." George gives me the teeth, plays "Mary's a Grand Old Name." The blessed diplomat! . . . Behind the scenes there must be a fine chef. Because the salad is of a perfection.

RUSSIAN GET-TOGETHER. When Arcady Ignatieff, White Russian from Shanghai, came to Washington to play in the Raleigh Hotel cocktail lounge, he expected to be a bit lonely. So he was happy to encounter kindred spirits in the Balalaika's Russian troupe and their Orchestra Leader Grisha Gregory. This pleasant meeting took place in the little Russian Orthodox Church.

Something new will be added to the Washington restaurant scene today. It's J's at 2434 Wisconsin ave., specializing in both American and exotic cuisines, operated by J. Robert Azirom.

LISTENING POST. There's a lovely clarity and perfection to operatic numbers played by pianist Harold Mertis in the Neptune Room. He was with the Metropolitan Opera for more than 12 years . . . For musical fun listen to accordionist Dick Bailey give on "Save the Bones for Henry Jones" at Quonset Inn . . . Maurita Gordon plays Debussy with delicate perception in the Uptown cocktail lounge. She can also make her piano ring with lowdown boogie . . . Rodolfo Cornejo, now booked to stay in Cafe Caprice until January, is at his best in such showy, brilliant things as "Fire Dance" . . . Customers request mostly classics and semi-classics from those fine piano twins, Bob Stickney and Walter Salb at the Silver Fox. Bob says, "Public taste in music is getting better all the time." . . . The Lounge Riviera's Bob Knight is playing a shimmery little samba called "Barranquillero." It was given him by a former South American ambassador. . . . There's romance in the air at Ciro's when waiter Silvio Bianchini puts aside his tray, sits down at a table and sings traditional Italian airs like "Barcarolle" and "Santa Lucia."

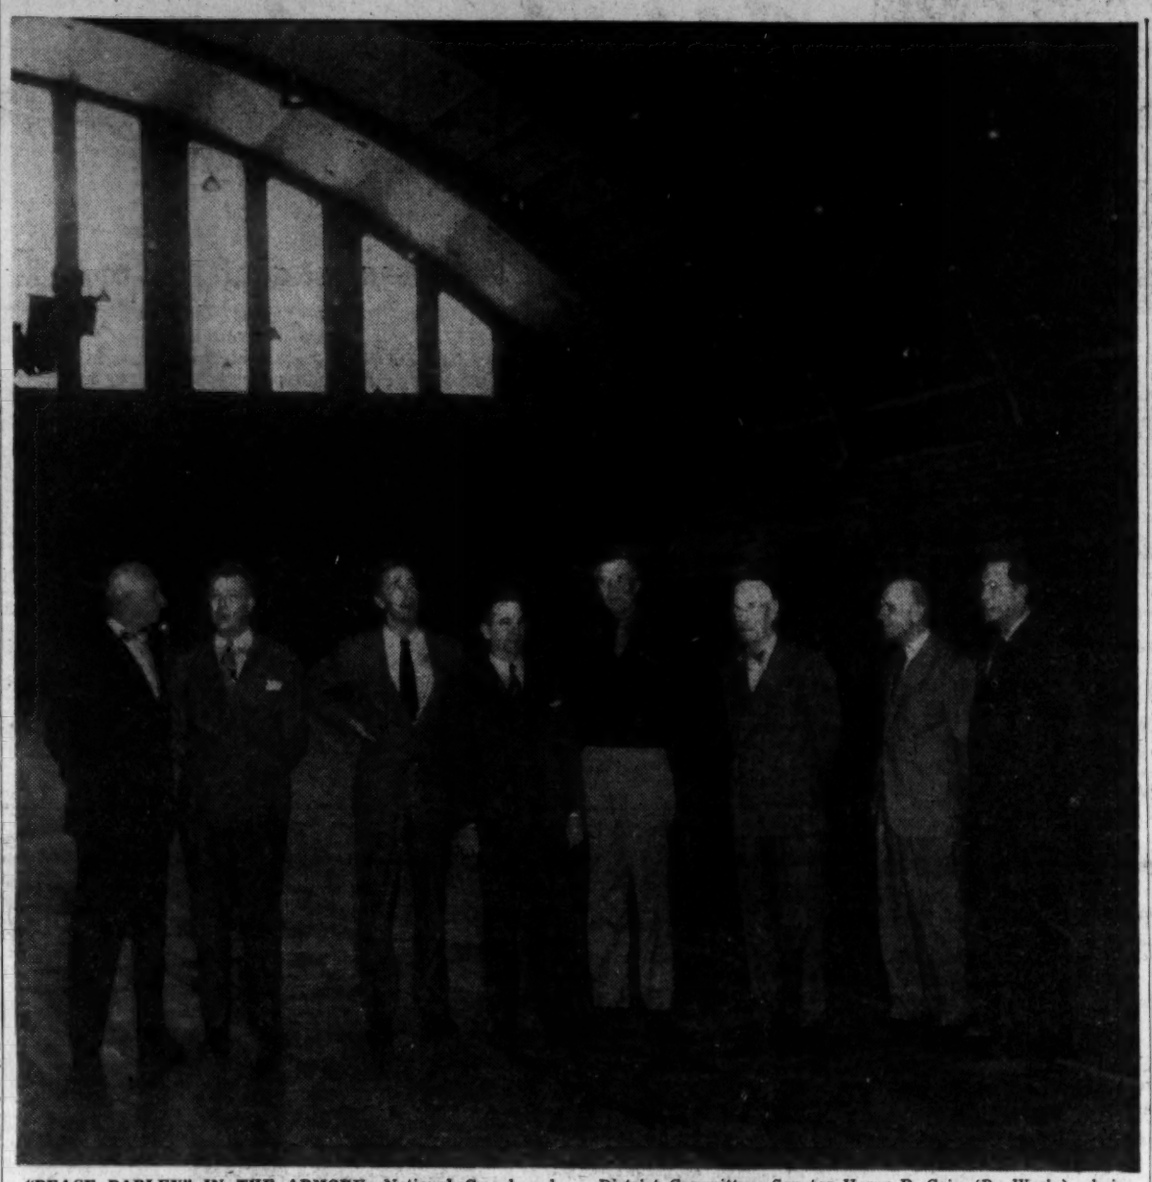
Truce Called in Armory Control Dispute Between D. C. and National Guard Officials



"PEACE PARLEY" IN THE ARMORY—National Guard and District officials look over the much-disputed armory at yesterday's meeting at which they decided to call a truce and let Congress decide on the rightful owner. They are (from left) Brig. Gen. Albert Cox, commander of the District National Guard; Representative Everett Dirksen (R., Ill.), chairman of the House District Committee; Senator Harry P. Cain (R., Wash.), chairman of the Senate District Fiscal Subcommittee; James R. Kirkland, counsel of the Senate District Committee; Brig. Gen. Gordon R. Young, District Engineer Commissioner; District Commissioner Guy Mason, Corporation Counsel Vernon West and Assistant Corporation Counsel Chester Gray

Agree Upon Joint Operation Until Congress Has Acted

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

After a quick look at some weapons of real warfare, District and National Guard officials yesterday called a truce in their struggle for control of Washington's armory and of the income it is getting from non-military activities.

They agreed to run the armory together, until Congress decides finally by legislation next year whether the District Commissioners or National Guard officials shall have final control over non-military armory use.

Into Special Account

They agreed, too, that the money from private activities at the armory will go into a special account with the United States Treasury, to be held until Congress decides what is to be done with the money.

The peace was negotiated at the call of Congressional District leaders. Senate Harry P. Cain (R., Wash.) chairman of the Senate District fiscal affairs committee, Representative Everett M. Dirksen (R., Ill.) House District chairman, and James R. Kirkland, Senate District committee counsel, all took part in the truce-making conference.

The conference was held in the armory office of Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, commanding general of the District National Guard. The officials went into their huddle after touring the armory and seeing, among other things, some of the heavy weapons used by the guard, and three pieces of captured German artillery, including two of the famous German 88-mm. guns.

Take Part in Conference

In the conference with the Congressmen were General Cox, two District Commissioners, Guy Mason and Brig. Gen. R. Gordon R. Young; Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West and Assistant Corporation Counsel Chester H. Gray; District Fire Marshal Raymond C. Roberts, Robert H. Davis, District director of inspections; and Col. Peyton G. Nevitt, adjutant general of the District National Guard.

Senator Cain said that groups who want to use the Armory will now be able to take their request either to the Commissioners or to General Cox.

In line with the aim of increased armory use, Senator Cain announced that General Young will make a study of the costs involved in increasing the exit capacity so that the present limit on the size of crowds there could be raised.

A District ruling has set the maximum capacity of the armory at 4825 persons.

Senator Cain said the agreement was being made formal with a letter he and Representative Dirksen are sending to the Commissioners and to General Cox.

D. C. Orders Increases in Nonresident Tuition Rates

Yearly Boosts Of $15 to $230 Made Retroactive To September

Increased tuition rates of from $15 to $230 a year for out-of-town students attending District public schools were approved yesterday by the Commissioners.

The higher rates were made retroactive to September 22, beginning of the school term.

Parents of the children will be billed under the new rates within a month.

Recommended by Corning

The increases were recommended by Superintendent of Schools Hobart M. Corning and approved by the Board of Education October 15.

New rates are $343 for the teachers' colleges; $194 for senior high schools, including the veterans' centers; $250 for vocational schools; $150 for junior high schools; $106 for elementary schools; $26 for evening schools, and $300 for the schools for crippled children.

The Federal Diary by Jerry Kluttz has been suspended temporarily due to Kluttz's illness. It will be resumed shortly.

Last year the rates were $300 for teachers' colleges; $160 for senior high schools; $170 for vocational schools; $110 for junior high schools; $70 for elementary schools, and $11 for evening schools.

Crippled children last year paid only the $70 set for elementary pupils.

Covers Lunches, Nursing Care

The $230 increases for them was recommended by Corning and approved by the Board of Education and the Commissioners to cover hot lunches and nursing care.

New rates apply to all nonresident children who were not attending District schools free last year.

The 1948 District Appropriations Act removed the exemption which permitted children of parents employed in the District or Federal Governments or serving in the armed forces, to attend schools free. It also ended the practice under which parents who paid taxes in the District subtracted that amount from the tuition.

In an interpretation of the law, Corporation Counsel Vernon West ruled that children actually attending school prior to July 25 and subject to the exemptions, will continue to be exempt.

Driver Wasn't Driving But Fined Anyway

A "back seat" driver was fined in Municipal Court yesterday.

When Robert Barksdale, 27, of 30 I st. nw., paid a $25 fine, he achieved the dubious distinction of being probably the only man ever found guilty of illegally driving a car and permitting an unlicensed person to drive at the same time.

Barksdale was teaching a 12-year-old boy to drive a truck, police said. He left the cab momentarily to get something from the back of the truck and the student shoved the reverse gear.

The vehicle punched through a fence, rolled over a vacant lot and crashed into a kitchen at 2250 8th st. nw.

Barksdale made himself vulnerable to the second charge—unsafe backing—when he clambered into the cab to halt the wayward truck.

Nathan Hale Statue Is Raised Here

The Washington Post

EARLY VISITOR—Elva Lou Galloway, 21, of 4110 33d st., Mount Rainier, Md., was one of the first Washingtonians to see the Nathan Hale statue erected on the Constitution ave. side of the Justice Department Building. Miss Galloway, an Interstate Commerce Commission employe, was on her way home from work

First statue of Revolutionary War patriot Nathan Hale to come to the District was raised into position yesterday in front of the Justice Department on Constitution ave. between 9th and 10th sts. nw.

The 600-pound bronze figure is the gift of the later George Dudley Seymour of New Haven, Conn. Since 1914, it had stood at Hale's birthplace in Coventry, Conn., owned by Seymour.

Erection of the statue here was authorized recently by Congress after Seymour's will had proposed Washington as the place for it.

Hale, a captain in a Connecticut regiment, went into British lines as a spy after General Washington had asked for volunteers. He was captured by the British on his return, condemned to death and hanged the following morning. His famous last words were: "I only regret that I have but one life to give for my country."

The realistic figure is the work of the late Bela Pratt, and is a copy of a statue of Hale at Yale University, where the patriot was graduated in 173. It rests on a marble pedestal.

Landlords Ask New Policy On Rent Hikes

The Building Owners and Managers Association has asked the District rent control administrator to adopt a new policy that would result in processing rent-raise requests in about five days.

In a letter to Rent Control Administrator Robert F. Cogswell, the association proposed that rent boosts be based on the exact amount of increases since 1941 in four specific operating costs. These would involve real estate taxes, water, fuel and day-to-day services.

Lusk said the average total increase for these four items in all types of apartments would be 7.7 per cent. He said this is substantially less than the average resulting from inclusion of other higher costs to the landlord.

The proposal has been approved by the association's 80 members, who own and operate more than 40,000 units, he said. It is preferred because it would eliminate "costly, time-consuming" features of the present system of hearing and processing requests for rent increases.

If adopted the plan would eliminate the formal public hearings, but tenants would have the right to try to disprove the landlord's case. The building owner still could ask for increases based on all operating costs.

Under the present system, Lusk wrote to Cogswell, "even under favorable conditions, petitions require four weeks before hearing is set, two weeks more for decision, and 10 days longer to become effective. If there is a tenant protest, further delays may be interminable."

Cogswell said he received the letter late yesterday and studying the plan, but would not have an answer "before next week."

Carver Terrace Rent Hearing Set Dec. 10

Plea for a $1.40-a-month rent boost at 1244 units of the Carver Terrace Development in Northeast Washington will be heard December 10, the District Rent Control Administration announced yesterday.

William F. Mansfield, rent control secretary-docket clerk, said the proposed increase was designed to cover higher water rents and taxes for the development. Units are located in the 1900, 2000 and 2100 blocks of Maryland ave. ne.; the 800 block of 21st st. ne., and the 2100 block of I st. ne., he said.

Present rents range from about $53 to $72.50 per month, Mansfield said. The increase petition was filed recently by owners' agent, Stuart E. Proctor.

Hearing of the plea will be conducted by William T. Kane, newly appointed rent-control examiner, Mansfield said.

Police Board Recommends Firing Drager

Policeman Accused Of Taking Whisky, $102 in House Raid Without Warrant

A Police Trial Board yesterday recommended that Pvt. Donald G. Drager, 34, be dismissed from the force, after finding him guilty of conduct unbecoming an officer and prejudicial to the Police Department.

Drager of 1321 Anacostia rd. se., and Horace L. Thomson, 43, of 1005 Congress st. se., are under $1000 bond each for grand jury action on charges of housebreaking.

They are accused of "raiding" the home of Jesse Morgan, 2026 Portner pl. nw., without a warrant September 7, and taking $102 in cash and a large quantity of whisky.

Drager, in a signed statement, admitted entering the Morgan home, but denied taking money or whisky. He contended he entered in pursuit of a man who had attempted to sell him whisky on a street corner. After entering the house, he kicked in the panel of a closet door, but left immediately when he found no one there, he asserted.

Morgan testified he had been selling whisky from his house for about two years. He said his home was entered September 7, while he was out, and that the money and whisky were gone when he returned.

Lily Pearl Parker, 16, of 2024 Portner pl. nw., identified Drager as one of two men she saw take money and whisky from the Morgan home.

Lord Baltimore Wins Suit Over Gas Station Site

Judge Alexander Holtzoff on Monday ruled in District Court that the Stern Co. of Washington, manufacturers of hotel and cafe equipment, must convey to the Lord Baltimore Filling Stations a lot at the northeast corner of South Capitol and N sts.

The Lord Baltimore Co. represented by Attorney Spencer Gordon, had entered into a contract in 1941 to lease the property with an option to purchase. The contract was made by Abram Stern, vice president of Stern Co.

After paying rent for five years the Lord Baltimore Co. attempted to exercise the option. Prior to that time, however, management of the Stern Co. had been taken over by Hyman and Cecelia Stern, who had become majority stockholders. They contended the original contract had not been approved by the board of directors and was therefore invalid.

Judge Holtzoff held that Abram Stern as vice presdient and executive officer of the corporation had implied authority to enter into the contract, but whether this was so or not, he said, the receipt of rent for so many years operated as a ratification of the contract as a whole, and the Stern Co. must comply with the terms of the option. The defendant was represented by Attorney Ethelbert Frey.

Sportsmen to Give U. S. Plane to Spy Poachers in Bag

By The Associated Press

The Wildlife Management Institute said yesterday it was giving the Fish and Wildlife Service a $5000 airplane to track down waterfowl poachers in the Chesapeake Bay area.

The institute, an organization of sportsmen interested in conservation, said it was buying a Piper Cub cruiser, on floats, to present to the Government this week "so that lawbreakers will learn that patrol officers can get around with the speed of ducks."

"The Eastern Shore of Maryland and Virginia," an institute bulletin added, "has attained the infamous reputation of being the worst duck-trapping area on the continent and drastic steps must be taken to curb, brazen, illegitimate practices.

"The small amphibian, which can swoop down on violators, was purchased by the institute with funds contributed by citizens interested in the future of American waterfowl. Ownership of the plane will be vested in the Government."

Guard Platoon Formed

Richmond, Va., Nov. 25 (AP).—Formation of a National Guard platoon at Lawrenceville, which will become a part of a Virginia National Guard unit either at Emporia or at Blackstone, was announced today by Col. Edwin Cox, commanding officer of the 176th Combat Team.

Ruhland Tells Psychopathic Project's Cost

At least $189,500 is required to improve efficiency in the much criticized Gallinger Hospital psychopathis section, the District Health Officer, Dr. George G. Ruhland, declared yesterday.

In a detailed eight-page report submitted to Commissioner Guy Mason, Dr. Ruhland asked for $50,500 to place three unused elevators into service, $125,000 for the hiring of additional personnel and the granting of a few salary increases and $14,000 for equipment.

Commissioner Mason, after studying the report, said he planned to lay it before the next full meeting of the Board of Commissioners with no recommendation as to action. Commissioner John Russell Young, board chairman, has been ill this week with a cold.

Source Main Problem

Mason, who is in charge of public health and welfare activities in the District, said the principal problem to be considered is "where to get the money."

In asking for 69 additional employes, Dr. Ruhland said the staff was large because of the "extremely impractical planning of the building for its purpose, requiring more attendants than would be needed in well planned housing. The increase in compensation for staff also seems a necessity in the present market of increasing pay."

An item in the original budget requests calls for the expenditures of $60,000 for the preparation of plans for a new psychopathic building.

Then apparently answering a proposal by Commissioner Mason for the transfer of the psychiatric services to St. Elizabeths Hospital, Dr. Ruhland noted, "I wish to state that it is my reasoned judgment that no institution of the size and character of Gallinger Hospital can afford, in these days, to be without psychiatric service."

Quotes Annual Figures

Dr. Ruhland quoted annual figures on the patient load in the psychiatric section showing a steady rise from 107 per day in 1943 to 163 at present. He suggested the daily average be held at 165 patients, which is 94 per cent of capacity.

The District health officer recommended the granting of a $7663 raise to a staff psychiatrist and $2100 to resident psychiatrists. In addition, he suggested the addition of 39 attendants to make up for the shortage of nurses and listed other posts which should be expanded.

The equipment improvements included $589 for occupational therapy needs, $4800 for physiotherapy, $6128 for ward service and $3480 for improvements in the South Building.

In addition, $50,500 was requested upon the recommendation of A. G. Hutson, District director of construction, for renovation of three elevators, making them fully automatic with automatic leveling and sliding doors.

Yesterday, Dr. Samuel B. Worth, director of psychiatry at Bellevue Hospital in New York and a consultant for the United States Public Health Service, began his two-day survey to study needed improvements in the section.

Best Convicted of Homicide In Drunken Driving Death

Ray J. Best, 26, of 226 9th st. se., was convicted by a Municipal Court jury yesterday of negligent homicide in the traffic death of Samuel N. Harper, 32, of 5302 F st. se., last March 20.

Harper was killed in a two-car crash in the 5000 block of Central ave. se. Three other persons were injured. According to Police Pvt. Lionel Couture, Best was driving while drunk and was on the wrong side of the street.

Couture testified that Best admitted having three beers before the accident. A urine test showed .24 per cent alcohol. The jury deliberated 30 minutes.

Took Police Cell Keys, Man Forfeits Security

Everett B. Castle, 38, Brentwood, Md., who was arrested at No. 11 Precinct last Friday on a traffic charge and then walked off with the keys to the cells, failed to show up in Municipal Court yesterday.

Police said Castle had been arrested for driving on the wrong side of the street but had called a friend to bring $30 collateral to the station to get him out.

Instead of putting him in a cell they let him wait in the station clerk's office behind the rail. It wasn't until after he had put up the collateral and had left that they discovered the two 6-inch keys were missing.

Pvt. George F. Titrington ran out into the street after Castle and nabbed him. A search revealed the keys.

Castle had to post another $25 on a charge of taking property without right, which he forfeited when he failed to appear in court.

Stewart H. Smyth, 43, of 437 6th st. sw., suffered a possible skull fracture yesterday when his taxi was in collison with a car driven by Gerald E. Niewenhous, 18, of 1233 Court House rd., Arlington, at 3d and L sts. sw.

At Providence Hospital Smyth's condition last night was described as good. Niewenhous wa sreleased after being X-rayed for a possible head injury.

Six-year-old Ward Koepenick, jr., 4709 Dalton rd., Bethesda, Md., was declared in a "satisfactory" condition last night at Suburban Hospital after having fallen out of a moving car earlier in the day.

Police said the child was scuffling with other children in the back of a car en route to school when he fell against the door handle, causing the door to open. Speed of the car was estimated at 28 miles per hour at the time of the accident in the 6400 block of Connecticut ave., Chevy Chase.

Ambulance Drivers Face Crack-Down

Traffic Regulations To Be Enforced In Future, King Says

Assistant Corporation Counsel Clark King yesterday warned ambulance drivers of a crackdown on all operators of emergency vehicles who are careless in observing traffic regulations.

Speaking before a group of 80 drivers at a meeting in the Municipal Center, King declared there was no excuse for laxity since regulations are very simple. His office has been lenient in the past but will be harsh from now on on all violations, he said.

The meeting was called by Traffic Director George E. Keneipp to clarify any misunderstandings ambulance drivers might have about the regulations.

Inspector Arthur E. Miller, head of the Police Traffic Division, explained that ambulances are limited to a speed of 30 miles per hour. Ambulance drivers must come to a stop at red lights and may proceed with caution only if the intersection is clear, he said.

Keneipp told the drivers the Committee on Revision of Regulations of the Commissioners' Advisory Committee, which is reviewing the District Motor Vehicle Act, plans to add a provision for special licenses for all chauffeurs.

To be granted the licenses, a chauffeur will have to take a test in the same type of vehicle which he will drive, Keneipp said.

'Baby Sitter' Admits Killing Child With Ax

Grand Rapids, Minn., Nov. 25 (AP).—A 34-year-old "baby sitter" told Sheriff Marvin W. Mitchell today she killed Ann General, 2½, with an ax when the child cried on awakening from a nap.

Mitchell identified the woman as Mary Sapan of Keewatin, Minn.

"She admitted striking the baby," Mitchell said, "but told me she didn't know why. She did say, though, that the baby cried when she woke up from a nap."

Ann's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Tony S. General of Keewatin, left the child with Lucy Sapan, Mary's sister, while they went to Duluth on business.

Lucy took Ann home with her. Later Lucy went to the home of a neighbor to have her hair dressed, leaving Ann with her sister. Ten minutes later, Lucy told Mitchell, Mary ran over and said Ann had been hurt. Lucy returned home and discovered the tragedy.

Press Protection On 'Hill' Comment Sought in Bill

By the United Press

Representative Helen Gahagan Douglas (D., Calif.) yesterday introduced a bill which she said was aimed at "protecting the right of the American press to comment on Congress or individual Congressmen."

The act also would require all congressional committees to extend certain rights to any witness called before them, or to any person about whom the committee made a "detrimental" charge or statement.

Mrs. Douglas said the legislation would prevent an individual Congressman from calling a newsman before a congressional committee to explain any story he had written.

"It is particularly intended to prevent the sort of thing which happened when Representative Hoffman (Clare Hoffman, R., Mich.) recently called a reporter before his subcommittee to explain a story he had written," she said.

Hoffman requested Alfred Friendly, a reporter for The Washington Post, to appear before a House Labor subcommittee to explain a story about a strike at the Joy Manufacturing Co., Michigan City, Ind. When Friendly said he would rather not say where he got his information, Hoffman let the matter rest.

Newspaper Item Brings Arrest of 3 in Holdup

Alertness of Corpl. Lester D. Gray of the Maryland State Police, Waldorf substation, has led to solving a November 8 taxicab holdup near Andrews Field in Prince Georges County.

Gray, while reading a newspaper, noticed a Richmond item about three Greater Washington area juveniles, two boys and a girl, arrested in Richmond for a taxi holdup in which the methods used were similar to those in the Prince Georges' holdup.

Accompanied by Roy Bright of the Maryland division of parole and probation, Gray went to Richmond, questioned the three, and obtained a statement in which they admitted holding up the Washington taxi driver. They told him, he said yesterday, that they had planned a trip across the country by holding up taxicabs.

The three are accused in Prince Georges of ordering Taxi Driver Javier Mora of Washington to drive them from near Union Station to a point near Andrews Field where they held him up on Saturday night, November 8, at the point of a pistol and took $32 and his cab, which later was abandoned in Frederick, Md.

The following night, police said, they held up a Richmond tax driver and took $20 but were apprehended shortly afterward.

The girl, 17, of Rockville, Md., is on parole from the Montrose, Md., Training School for Girls, police said. The others, a 16-year-old youth whose home is Seneca, Md., and a 17-year-old youth from Washington are on parole from the Training School for Boys at Lochraven, Md. They will be returned for trial before the Prince Georges County Juvenile Court.

'Truck Theft' a Fake

Frank Trott, 23-year-old New Castle, Pa., truck driver, yesterday admitted to Virginia State Police that his story of a truck-trailer-automobile bandit was a hoax.

Previously, Trott had told police someone had stolen his trailer truck, containing four cars, near Warrenton Monday morning. Yesterday he said he made up the story to account for the fact he had gotten off on the wrong route.

Abortion Trial Held Up

Failure of a prosecution witness to appear, yesterday halted the trial of Dr. Schley Brown, a Washington physician, charged with performing an illegal operation on a 19-year-old hotel phone girl.

Police failed in efforts to get in touch with the witness, Dr. Marvin W. Footer of Gallinger Hospital, who was en route to a medical convention in Baltimore. A radio call to Maryland police to stop Dr. Footer's machine proved unsucctssful and the proceedings were recessed by Associate Justice Richmond B. Keech until 10 a. m. today.

Later it was learned Regan was in Casualty Hospital, held for observation.

Three zoning petitions of 10 heard yesterday by the Montgomery County commissioners met with stiff opposition from representatives of the Woodside Park Civic Association.

The petitions asked for rezoning from Residential C to Commercial D of three lots on Colesville rd. near Spring st. Citizens who opposed the rezonings presented a petition signed by 400 persons. Attorney Donald K. Staley, who represented the applicants presented a petition signed by 90 persons favoring the rezonings.

Windy, Cold Today So Keep Your Coat On

Topcoats will be enough to keep you warm today, says Weebee, the Washington Post weatherbird.

Weebee went along with the Weather Bureau in predicting that today would be about like yesterday, maybe a little cooler. High for the day will be about 42, with a lot of sunshine and northwesterly winds.

Yesterday's high in Washington was 46, and low was 38.

More snow and rain fell over the northern part of the country yesterday, while the South reporte yesterday, while the South reported fair weather.

Fargo, N. D., reported the coldest reading of the day—1 degree above zero, which was still 10 degrees higher than it reported Monday.

Vienna Boy's Plaint Brings Gift of Food

"I eat the whole time cold potatoes to stuff my stomach," the Austrian student wrote.

"But once I shall have no potatoes more," he said, and "with so much hunger I can't study, too."

The plaintive letter was received here by Mrs. Marjorie Hendricks of 531 26th st. nw., after happenstance brought her name to the attention of Hans Pollan of Vienna.

What occurred, according to Hans' letter, is that he stopped in at an American information center in Vienna one day and noticed a picture in a magazine of two people leaving the Water Gate Inn, 2700 F st. nw.

"They smiled kindly," the boy said, and so he decided to write for help.

The picture bore the name of Miss Hendricks, owner of the restaurant, and a former Red Cross club director in the Pacific and Italy.

Because of his plea for a letter and a package, employes of the Inn today plan to send off a 22-pound box containing all sorts of food—sardines, spam, sugar, dried eggs, crisco, concentrated soup, sausage, etc. They also plan to write and to send other packages monthly.

Miss Hendricks, who is "keen on having these poor people helped," because of first-hand knowledge of their plight, hopes that other Washingtonians will be moved to send food packages to Europe.

Beall Proposes Special Student Driver Permits

Representative J. Glenn Beall (R., Md.) yesterday introduced a bill to issue special District driving permits for students in public school driver training courses.

Beall, chairman of the House District public service subcommittee, said he might arrange for open hearings on the bill next month.

School officials said the bill would remove one obstacle in the way of extending the driver training program to the senior high schools. Driver instruction is now limited to two vocational high schools. The obstacle seen by school officials was that present law requires a $3 fee for a learner's permit, and the permit has to be renewed after 30 days.

The bill would open the way for District officials to issue restricted learner's permits without charge for a school year, and for use in designated areas with an instructor in the car.

School officials emphasized, however, that extending the driver training program to the high schools would require more instructors and more funds for upkeep of additional training care.

D. C. Teachers Called Highest Paid in Nation

District elementary and high school teachers, who receive an average salary of $3398, are the highest paid in the Nation, National Education Association estimates show.

The national average for the current year is $2550, the association reported.

Maryland teachers are paid an average of $3200, an amount exceeded by only two other States and the District. New York and California each pay an average of $3300.

Virginia which pays its teachers an average of $1950 ties with Colorado for thirty-fourth place. Mississippi stands at the bottom of the NEA list with an average salary of $1250.

The District led the States last year, too, with an average salary for teachers of $3120. Maryland was ninth with an average of $2397, and Virginia thirty-first with an average of $1753.

The association's study also showed that Maryland has increased its number of teachers at a rate far faster than the other two sections.

This year Maryland has 10,048 teachers, an increase of 330 over last year; the District has 3489 for a gain of 77, and Virginia 19,600 for a gain of 29.

The association's department of elementary school principals suggested, meanwhile, that schools might well work more closely with organized religion.

In a 250-page report, the department reviewed grade school practices that foster understanding of such values as responsibility to society, the dignity of man, and artistic and ethical appreciation.

One secton said:

"Spiritual values cover a wide area. Part of that area belongs to the church and organized religion. But the school can work far more in that area and still be within American traditions than is generally believed. Some things, of course, must be left to the church, but possibly not so much as we once thought."

District Hikes Nonresident Tuition Rates

The Government yesterday scheduled a new meeting between unions and management to avert a threatened Nation-wide telegraph strike.

Calling the joint session in New York for December 4, Federal Mediator J. R. Mandelbaum left Washington late yesterday following a fruitless conference with unions officials here.

After the parley here, unions heads were bluntly pessimistic:

"We hold no hopes."

Ballots to Go Out

Strike ballots will go out on schedule, including 1000 or more to Western Union employes in Washington, and the strike by three AFL groups "can come within two weeks," officials said.

Meeting with Mandelbaum yesterday were Adolph Brungs, head of the Western Union division of the Commercial Telegraphers Union; Hal E. Swann, president of the Telegraph Employes Union, and W. Lee Cooney, president of the Telegraph Workers Union.

Immediately following the meeting, after Mandelbaum returned to New York, the three union heads said "there is no offer of any kind forthcoming from the company" and described the scheduled joint meeting in New York December 4 as "futile."

District Meeting Scheduled

Mandelbaum called the New York meeting in another move to get company and union together.

The union charged telegraph employes "are 23 cents below comparable industry."

A meeting of the Washington workers is scheduled for Monday to speed up strike balloting. A spokesman said no ballots have been received in Washington yet.

There are more than 1000 employes in 45 branch offices in Greater Washington who will participate in the balloting, union officials said.

A strike, if called, could confront President Truman with necessity of invoking the national emergency section of the Taft-Hartley Act, which would prohibit the strike pending an inquiry by a board.

The union contract with Western Union does not expire until April, but it carries a reopening clause on wages which was invoked October 1.

Book Luncheon Speaker Urges Treaty to Strengthen U. N.

By Lee Grove
Post Reporter

Strengthening of the United Nations by a supplementary treaty against aggression was advocated yesterday by Hamilton Fish Armstrong, editor of Foreign Affairs.

Armstrong, whose book, "The Calculated Risk," was published yesterday, was one of five authors speaking at The Washington Post's Book and Author Luncheon at the Hotel Statler.

Other authors speaking at the luncheon, attended by nearly 500 persons, included: James Ramsey Ullman, author of "The White Tower" and "Kingdom of Adventure;" Edith Sulkin, author of "Continent in Limbo;" Edward Steichen, famous photographer and author of "The Blue Ghost," and Corinne Griffith Marshall, former screen star and author of "My Life With the Redskins."

Urges Action Now

The United States, "to protect our world-wide interests," can take action in two fields now, Armstrong said, in aid to Europe and in "strengthening — shoring up — the United Nations."

"We have proposed to help Europe to live, not just by giving her bread to survive this winter, but by putting her in condition to earn her own daily bread in the future," he said.

"This is a very big job, to last a very long time.

"If we do not feel competent and strong enough to execute it on the necessary scale, for the necessary length of time, we had better not embark on it at all, but put all our energies, all our resources—and a thousand times as much money—into preparation to live alone on this planet without friends," Armstrong said.

America does not recognize European nations as peoples, but considers them political ideas, as being either procapitalist or pro-Communist, Miss Sulkin said, adding that the United States had often been too hasty in "writing them off as being behind the iron curtain."

Describing her observations during 10 months in Europe, she said Europeans did not want either extreme but to find a middle way.

"If the European relief plan is not fought through fast it will get to Europe too late. We have got to get it over there fast before most of the continent is faced with one extreme or the other," she said.

Americans should do as much for peace as they did for the war, Steichen asserted, after describing the heroism of the men of the aircraft carrier Lexington. "Nor must we let the responsibility rest on the shoulders of the youngsters," Steichen said.

The Nazis brought politics into mountain climbing, Ullman said, "and aping them . . . the Russians named their highest point after—five guesses—Stalin.

Pointin gout that politics has not entered into mountain climbing everywhere, Ullman said, "It is a cheering thing that there are men who still want to do it, even though no fortune or power is to be gained."

In Praise of Cities

Declaring that she liked "to think of cities as different kinds of ladies, Mrs. Marshall described Hollywood as "very young, sunny and pretty. Give her time and she will grow up."

Philadelphia she described as a "dowager" and Washington as "the most beautiful of all . . . a suffragette still trying to get the vote."

Ie was in Washington, she recalled, that after silent-picture days, she made her debut on the legitimate stage as a step to Broadway. "I never got to Broadway, though," she said. "I got married while on the road and so became a silent motion picture star again."

Vepco Denies Danger Charge On Power Line

Aerial photographs of Washington and Baltimore housing developments which are near power lines were introduced by Virginia Electric & Power Co. yesterday in the Fairfax County power line right-of-way condemnation proceedings.

Affected landowners along 3½ miles of the proposed 17½-mile-long power line route are fighting the condemnation on grounds it would reduce property values and create a safty hazard. Eleven individual tracts along the 225-foot-wide right of way are involved.

VEPCO introduced the photographs to show what it termed a lack of danger in residential areas.

Only one specific tract was considered by the condemnation jury—a 40 acre tract owned by E. M. Chiles, which lies directly on the proposed right of way. Other tracts will be taken up during the remainder of the week.

Guns Bought To Halt Revolt, Witness Says

Augusta, Ga., Nov. 25 (AP).—Navy machine guns which the Government charges were stolen from nearby Bush Field were bought and paid for with money "belonging to the Dominican Republic," a witness testified today in United States District Court.

The witness was Karl J. Eisenhardt, Ellicott City, Md., business executive, who with three other men is on trial on an indictment that they plotted and executed theft of the guns in April.

Eisenhardt corroborated and supplemented testimony by Edward Browder, jr., another defendant, that the guns, planes and other supplies were purchased to aid the Dominican government stem a threatened "Communist" invasion.

Eisenhardt and Browder testified the move against the Dominican government, which came to a head a few months ago, was plotted in Cuba. They asserted it was financed from Venezuela through the president of that country, Romulo Betancourt.

Both said Betancourt was a former Communist Party official and Eisenhardt testified that he seized power in 1945 with the backing of "Communist elements."

Assistant United States Attorney T. Reuben Burnside objected to the testimony with its international ramifications, but Chief Defense Attorney Walter H. Maloney of Washington, D. C., insisted it was necessary.

Eisenhardt also testified that a B-25 plane in which he and Browder flew the guns from Augusta to Baltimore also was Dominican property. He explained that he purchased it earlier at Bush Field through J. Meredith Russell, 24, of Baltimore, a third defendant in the gun theft trial.

Originally they planned, he said, to deliver both plane and guns to Libardo Blanco, a Dominican agent, at Newark, N. J., but engine trouble forced them to stop in Baltimore. The guns were trucked from the Baltimore airport to the basement of Eisenhardt's Ellicott City home where FBI agents seized them on April 21.

Drinker Robbed Of $40, Compaion Gets Six Months

William Wooten, 27, of 1445 Park rd. nw., was handed a 6-months jail sentence yesterday by Municipal Court Judge Armond W. Scott on a charge that he took $40 from a friend's wallet.

The larceny took place last Wednesday in a mutual friend's home at 1778 Willard st. nw. Witnesses testified the owner of the money, Thomas Griffin, 27, of 1425 Q st. nw., was drinking with Wooten.

Wooten suggested they leave the cafe where they were drinking because it wasn't safe to show that much money around. They went to their friend's home on Willard st.

Mary Bachelor, who had accompanied the two men, told Judge Scott that Wooten took the money out of the wallet, saying that if he didn't take it, someone else would. Judge Scott found him guilty.

Liquor License Transfer Hotly Contested

Authority to transfer a retail liquor license to 3879 South Capitol st., heart of a rapidly expanding District section, was hotly contested yesterday in an all-day hearing held by the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board.

Gorman's Inc., a package liquor store headed by Abraham Gorman, asked ABC for permission to transfer its license to the Capitol st. address. One retail store, Mead's, is already located in the area.

The board took the case under advisement.

A petition containing 1531 residents of the area, including 124 property owners, favoring the transfer was submitted, while a patrolman and two residents submitted petitions opposing the transfer. The exact number on their petitions is unknown until a check is made by ABC to determine possible duplication.

Contends It's Adequate

The patrolman, Pvt. Vincent Charles Wahler of 4000 Nichols ave. sw., said that the present store for the neighborhood. Joseph B. Moran and Mrs. Charles H. Hagerty, president and secretary, respectively, of the Washington Highlands Citizens Association, objected to any additional liquor outlets being opened in the area.

The Rev. George L. Conner, pastor of the Congress Heights Methodist Church, took the same position.

At the afternoon session, Morris Shiffman of 138 Mississippi ave. se., testified in favor of the transfer and Solomon Seigal, owner of the building in which the store would be located, declared the present population of 35,000 in the area is rapidly growing.

Means Competition

German, a disabled veteran of World War II, said that if the transfer is granted it will bring competition to the neighborhood. He said his present prices are lower than those prevailing at Mead's, which he declared are higher than those generally charged in the District.

Robert E. Lynch was the attorney for Mead's and Allan L. Kamerow reprsented Gorman's Inc.

Chic Luncheon Guests Wear Fine Feathers

By Marie McNair

LUNCHEON at the Sulgrave Club yesterday with Mrs. Frank Morrow and Mme. Rybar as hostesses brought out almost half a hundred smartly dressed women.

"Looks like it's definitely a feather year," said a guest as she eyed Mrs. Dwight Eisenhower's sleek pink bird speckled in brown coiled about her tiny hat. Mrs. Wade Haislip's fluffy beige ostrich flecked with brown framed her face becomingly, and the hostesses themselves wore feathers—Mme. Rybar's peaked brown hat boasting a swirling feather which curled coyly under her chin; Mrs. Morrow wearing soft ostrich in greige tones.

Mrs. Burdette Fitch came without a hat; Mrs. S. K. Ross tucked purple pansies in her dark hair, to top her ballerina-length frock of champagne taffeta.

But—to get back to protocol. Guests included Mrs. Fred Vinson, wife of the Chief Justice—and she had feathers on her hat too, gold colored ostrich tips; Mme. Morgenstierne, wife of the Norwegian Ambassador; Senora de Vallarino, wife of the Panamanian presidential candidate; Mme. Slavik, wife of the Czechoslovak Ambassador; Dr. Mica Trbojevic; Mrs. Thomas Stone, wife of the Canadian Minister; Mrs. Harry Andrews, wife of the Minister of South Africa; Mme. Eriksson, wife of the Swedish Minister; Mme. Tan, wife of the Chinese Minister.

Among the Guests

Then there were Mrs. Homer Ferguson, Mrs. Joseph E. Davies, Mrs. James H. Foskett, Mrs. Conger Pratt with blue wings on her blue hat; Mrs. William D. Connor, Mrs. John N. Greely, Mrs. Randolph Huntington Miner, Mrs. Arthur MacArthur, Mrs. George Mesta, Mrs. Robbins Lindsay, Mrs. J. E. Saugstad, Mrs. Emil Hurja, Mrs. Walter Tuckerman, Mrs. Ollie James, Mrs. Robert Guggenheim, Mrs. James Souby, Mrs. Frederick Mitchell Gould, Mrs. Harry G. Meem, Mrs. Leon Tashof, Mrs. Charles W. O. Bunker, Mrs. McCeney Werlich, Mrs. Charles Martin, Mrs. Martin Vogel, Mrs. Leo Brison Norris, Mrs. Roy St. Lewis, Mrs. Buchanan Merryman, Mrs. Hope Ridings Miller, Mrs. Claude Beddington, Mrs. Leslie Jacobs, and Mrs. Charles Wahl.

Mrs. Norris told me that her Laura May was in Baltimore for a luncheon aboard Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Davies' yacht, the Sea Cloud. That she (Mrs. Norris) will be leaving for West Orange, N. J., sometime next week to welcome her first grandchild, expected this week by Mr. and Mrs. Symington. She was "Peter" Norris—remember?

Polly Guggenheim said she and her husband will leave the first of the year for their new place near Charleston, S. C., part of an immense old plantation, now an excellent hunting and shooting preserve.

LIFE in occupied Japan has its trials even if your husband is second in command of all the occupation forces. Mrs. Robert Eichelberger, who shared honors with her husband the general at a small dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Graves Monday evening, says although she has no servant problem, nothing seems to work. There's an earthquake almost every day and at first sounds the servants all rush out into the open. The Eichelbergers, who've been widely entertained during their stay here, will leave on Monday to return to Yokohama.

In the group of guests Monday evening were Gen. A. C. Wedemyer without Mrs. Wedemyer who is in New York; former Senator and Mrs. Burton K. Wheeler, Mrs. McCeney Werlich, Mr. and Mrs. Felix Morley, Clarence Hewes and Mrs. Hope Ridings Miller.

Service Set Juniors Star This Week

By Bessie Hackett

JUNIOR members of the service set are claiming their share of the midweek social spotlight, with the Thanksgiving theme adding an especially festive note to their activities.

Fruits and vegetables . . . which later could be put to practical use . . . featured the table decorations at the luncheon given at the Army-Navy Country Club yesterday to inaugurate the Junior Army-Navy Guild Organization's fall membership program. About 150 Jangos and prospective members—over 18's and associates—were present.

Honor guests were Mrs. Kenneth C. Royall, wife of the Secretary of the Army; Mrs. John L. Sullivan, wife of the Secretary of the Navy, and Mrs. W. Stuart Symington, wife of the Secretary of the Air Force. Each received a gardenia corsage. They were assisted in receiving by Mrs. John W. Bowman, Jango president; Mrs. W. C. Beecher, vice president, and Mrs. Robert T. Chapin, chairman of the membership program.

Higlight of the get-together was a hat show with stunning Mona (Mrs. George) McHenry and pretty Barbara Talbot acting as models. Mrs. Bowman let it be known that Jango really needs more "over-eighteeners" and associate members as much as it does teen-agers. Also holding the floor for a few minutes was energetic Sally (Mrs. E. C. B.) Danforth, former president and chairman of the January Boxer Dog Show, who outlined her committee's plans. Mrs. Ralph Walker was luncheon chairman, assisted by Mrs. John Neill, Mrs. Henry P. Carrington, Mrs. William McCabe and Miss Florence King. A rush tea for teen-age Jangos is planned for next month.

Among guests at yesterday's rally were Mrs. Thomas B. Larkin, Mrs. Eugene Zuckert, Mrs. Claude Micklewaite, Mrs. Merlin O'Neill, Mrs. S. L. Scott, Mrs. G. H. Drewry, Mrs. Julius Furer, Mrs. R. L. Ramey, Mrs. Russell Hardy, Mrs. Charles Brand and Mrs. Vance Chapline.

BIG event for the junior set tonight is the first Junior Army-Navy Cotillion of the season to be held at the War College Officers' Club. In the receiving line for the dance, sponsored by West Point's "Thundering Herd" (Class of 1924), will be Maj. Gen. and Mrs. William H. Arnold, Col. and Mrs. Joseph A. Morris, Col. and Mrs. Jesse B. Wells, and Col. and Mrs. James G. Anding. Checking in arrivals will be Col. and Mrs. E. O. Lee.

An active group of young members will see that everyone gets acquainted and that there aren't any blank spaces on the hop cards. These junior hosts include the Misses Barbara Martin, Laura Mead Morris, Barbara Ann Wells and Ellen Anding, Robert Sherr, Miller Todd, Ralph Libby and Marion Harrison.

Favors will be distributed to all and Jack Morton's orchestra will play for the affair, which will be from 9 until midnight.

ONE of the busiest hostesses of the week is Mrs. Francis G. Ulen, who begins a heavy weekend entertaining schedule with a home Thanksgiving dinner tomorrow.

Arriving last night from Scottsburg, Ind., to spend the holidays with her and Captain Ulen, USN, were the latter's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Frank A. Ulen, and brother and sister-in-law, Capt. (USN), ret.) and Mrs. Hall Ulen. The party tomorrow evening also will be a joint celebration of the 58th wedding anniversary of the senior Ulens and the hosts' 10th anniversary.

Friday night Captain and Mrs. Ulen will entertain at dinner for Mrs. Lilly Unden of Paris, France, who has been studying art in New York and will be their guest for the weekend. On Saturday Mrs. Unden will accompany her hosts to Philadelphia for the Army-Navy game. The Ulens from Scottsburg also will be in the party attending the football classic and Mrs. Stephenson is looking forward to seeing her son, Floyd Stephenson, jr., who is a third-year student at The Point.

Closing a round of festivities will be the cocktail party Captain and Mrs. Ulen are planning for their house guests Sunday at their home here. About 30 guests will be invited to the 5 to 7 p. m. affair.

ABOUT a hundred friends from service and civilian circles enjoyed the cocktail party given at the Army-Navy Club last evening by Brig. Gen. Robert Blake, USMC, complimenting his sister-in-law, Mrs. William C. Sloan, who is visiting here from California for about two weeks. Thanksgiving with Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Thomas Watson at Camp Lejeune, N. C., and attendance at the big game are also on Mrs. Sloan's agenda.

BRIG. GEN. Edwin C. McNeil and his daughter, Mary, will leave Friday for New York to attend a reunion of the general's overseas office, the branch office of the judge advocate general, which was stationed at Cheltenham, England, from July, 1942 to October, 1944 and in Paris until March, 1946. More than a hundred persons from all parts of the United States are expected at the reunion.

Those Quoted Repercussions

Edison Wit Sparkles at Farley Bridals; Young Man's Fancy Turns to Fashions

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

REPERCUSSIONS from the posh wedding of Jim Farley's daughter are still jangling through the political ether. The nuptial mass took place in New York's St. Patrick's Cathedral with an impressive number of high Roman Catholic dignitaries in attendance. Among the galere of important guests was Charles Edison, humorous, hard-of-hearing son of the great inventor and formerly both Assistant Secretary of the Navy and Governor of New Jersey. During the ceremony one of the officiating clergy read a congratulatory message from the Pope. Mr. Edison, unable to hear, turned to a Washington lady at his side, asked what was going on. "The priest just read a cable from the Pope," she explained. "What only a CABLE?" exclaimed Mr. E. in a voice audible several rows fore and aft. "Isn't he HERE?

CHARLES EDISON

Young Washington Designer

THAT EYE-COMPELLING black cartwheel Mrs. John Steelman has been pinning to her blond pompadour was designed by 21-year-old Philip Robertson who staged a showing of his creations yesterday at the Army-Navy Country Club. Collaborating with the safety, committee, he also dreamed up the dress Mrs. Steelman wore at the Automobile Association of America convention—white silk hand-painted in black with tiny palms-up hands and the admonitory legend "Take It Easy!"

MRS. JOHN STEELMAN

Other special Robertson numeros were the dress Marilyn Krug wore at her coronation as Queen of the President's Cup Regatta, her mother's gray and gold brocade which boasts two skirts, a long and a short. The brocade was brought back from the Orient by Secretary of the Interior Krug.

Philip's most immediate problem is thinking up eight different hats for the same family. They're to be made from jewelstone felts brought back from Trieste by Congressman Sasscer . . . Toting hat-shapes back from Trieste seems a far cry but in prewar days felts, from which all Turkey's red fezes were fashioned, were Austrian imports shipped from the Adriatic port.

Recently he has turned out no less than five chapeaux for Mrs. C. Wayland Brooks, wife of the Illinois Senator. Robertson, son of an Arizona cowboy politician, started designing when he was 7. His mother, primping for an important club meeting, innocently left a brand-new, feather-bestrewn hat on her bed. Sonny spotted it, chopped the plumes in half, rearranged the remainder. And, strange to say, his mother was enchanted. Later, as a motor accident result, he stayed in bed a year. To keep him busy his mother gave him a doll, scraps of material. He worked out a ravishing wardrobe and has been at it ever since. Right now he is at the Maryland Institute of Art. After graduation he will set up shop in Washington. Incidentally, when Robertson takes out a "date," she asks him to come half an hour early to arrange her hair!

Gifts to Green Thumbers

MME. VAN KLEFFENS, charming wife of the new Netherlands Ambassador will make an appeal for the Red Cross over Station WRC Friday. There is a special need for volunteers during the holiday season. On Monday Mme. van Kleffens will be guest of honor and speaker at a luncheon given by the National Farm and Garden Association. Holland, as every one knows, is famous for its bulbs. Recently, as an additional "thank-you" for our aid, the Dutch are sending us 8000 hardy azalea plants, of 160 different varieties which will be set out at the National Arboretum near Belisville. Shortly after the war the Netherlands presented us with over a million bulbs—some of which have bloomed already in Arlington Cemetery. So Mme. van Kleffens' tie-in with our "green-thumbers" is exceedingly apropos.

Diplomats Honored at Dinner, Cocktail Party

COL. DAVID TERRAZAS, Chief of Staff of the Bolivian Army, who is visiting Washington, was guest of honor at a dinner given last evening by Col. Max Johnson, a longtime friend from days spent together at the Superior School of War in France.

Colonel Terrazas is accompanied on his trip by Col. Hugo Ballivian, of the Bolivian Military School; Col. Alberto Crespo, of the School of Small Arms, and Maj. Sergeio Shanchez of the Bolivian School of War. They are staying at the Shoreham Hotel. The Chief of Staff and his party will visit a number of military installations in this country and will go to West Point this week.

THE Financial Attache of the Philippine Embassy and Mrs. Juan A. Barretto and Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Quirino of the Embassy staff entertained yesterday afternoon at a cocktail party in honor of Judge Antonio Quirino, brother of Vice President Quirino of the Philippines. Embassy staff members and their wives dropped by after six to greet the honor guest, who is visiting in Washington for a few days.

Mrs. Truman Receives Diplomats At White House Reception

Mrs. Truman was hostess yesterday to diplomats and their wives who have arrived in town since last summer. Because of Mrs. Truman's absence from the city during the summer months, most of those who attended were received at the White House for the first time.

The ranking guest was Lord Inverchapel, Ambassador of Great Britain. A guest at the White House many times, he squired Lady Inverchapel, who arrived in Washington late in the summer. The Ambassador of Chile and Senora de Nieto del Rio and the Ambassador of India Mme. Ali were also among the guests. The Indian Ambassador came to Washington last February, but Mme. Ali arrived just a month or so ago.

The Siamese Ambassador, Prince Wan Waithayakon, and Princess Wan Waithayakon were also received. The prince presented his credentials last April.

Other new ambassadors and their wives included the Greek Ambassador and Mme. Dendramis, the Ambassador of Paraguay and Senora de Enciso, the Ambassador of Venezuela and Senora de Carnevali, the Ambassador of the Netherlands and Mme. van Kleffens, and the Portuguese Ambassador, Pedro Theotonio Pereira. Senora de Theotonio Pereira has not yet come to Washington.

The Ministers and their wives included the Irish Minister and Mrs. Nunan, the Minister of Syria and Mme. El-Khouri, the Minister of Liberia and Mrs. Charles D. B. King, and the Hungarian Minister and Mme. Vambery. The Peruvian Charge d'Affaires and Senora de Fernandez-Davila were also among the guests yesterday afternoon. They have attended many functions at the White House, but yesterday was the first time the envoy had been received as Charge d'Affaires.

High School Plans Thriftily

Students Eat Turkey at Taft For 35 Cents a Holiday Plate

By Lucia Brown

TURKEY DINNER FOR 35c!

Sounds almost unbelievable, doesn't it? But that's what they had yesterday at Taft Junior High School, at 18th and Perry sts. ne.

Thanks to the thrifty management of Miss Ruth Plummer, the assistance of the "Canteen Club," and cooperation in the Federal School Lunch Program, hundreds of youngsters enjoyed this bargain meal of roast turkey, dressing, mashed potatoes, gravy, buttered peas, molded cranberry salad, hot roll and a half pint of milk. For 10 cents extra they could have pie, too—mince, pumpkin or cherry.

"We had to watch our buying pretty closely and cut a few corners to do it," said Miss Plummer, who is in charge of the school cafeteria. "Even so, we couldn't meet the price of 30 cents we charged for Thanksgiving dinner last year. Food costs have just gone up too much."

Everyday price for lunch at Taft is 25 cents. The school gets 9 cents a meal from the Federal School Lunch Program, which helps make this low price possible. Menus are carefully planned, both as to nutritional value and economy, by Miss Plummer, a graduate in home economics from the University of Michigan.

Canteen Club Helps

Helping with the operation of the cafeteria is the "Canteen Club," an organization of 35 Taft students. They work toward points for a school letter—help in the cafeteria, meet once a month to discuss problems, offer suggestions and receive necessary instruction.

Yesterday, the ninth grade homemaking class and an art class had helped with preparations for the turkey dinner, too. A huge doll dressed as an Indian stood in one attractively decorated window, and a Pilgrim maid in the other. Miniature turkeys adorned the tops of the cafeteria counters, and a frieze of colored gobblers danced around the wall.

The Thanksgiving dinner at Taft is a 13-year-old custom, having been started back in 1936. It's served on the Tuesday before so that any leftovers can be used on Wednesday and won't go to waste over the holiday.

CONNIE WINTERS, of 1338 Varnum st. ne., enjoys one of the 35c turkey dinners served at Taft Junior High yesterday. On her tray are servings of turkey and dressing, mashed potatoes and gravy, buttered peas, cranberry salad, hot roll, and a half-pint of milk

Miss Lowry Tells Club of Oslo Meeting

American students who studied abroad last summer are eager for the people of this country to disseminate accurate information on the peoples of Europe, according to Miss Grace Lowry, director of Davis House, who served as hostess aboard student exchange ships.

Speaking at the Washington Club's meeting yesterday, she related her experience among the youth attending the Oslo Student Christian Conference in Norway. "I found that the United States delegates were anxious to be good representatives of their country and made an effort to establish good relations with students of other nations."

Miss Lowry, who founded the International House, said that about 700 exchange students were on the "Marine Tiger" ship returning from the Olso conference. In charge of the orientation program, she told how the students made serious attempts to evaluate their experiences.

Tracing the history of the exchange student movement, she pointed out that establishment of the Institute of International Education by the Carnegie Foundation initiated the really big student exchange movement in 1919.

"Between 17 and 18 thousand foreign students now are studying in the United States," explained Miss Lowry, stressing the importance of enlarging the student-exchange movement throughout the world.

Mrs. Cloyd Heck Marvin, club president, introduced the speaker. Following the program an informal coffee hour was held.

Miss McGraw to Be Guest

Mrs. John Allan Dougherty will have with her for Thanksgiving holiday her niece, Miss Joan McGraw, a student at Mary Washington College. Miss McGraw will arrive today and return to college on Sunday.

Visit in East

Mr. and Mrs. Leopold V. Freudberg have left on a week's trip to Troy, N. Y., and Cambridge, Mass., for visits with their son and daughter.

On the Party Calendar

MRS. JOHN McKEE of New York was welcomed back to her Washington home at a luncheon given yesterday by Mrs. Thomas Antony Wadden. A company of 22 ladies were entertained, and the conversation centered around debutantes, past, this season or next.

Mrs. McKee's daughter, Miss Bessie Jane, will bow at a tea dance the latter part of December. The hostess' daughter, Miss Edwina Pou Wadden, is a past deb, as are the daughters of Senora de Restrepo, wife of the Colombian Ambassador, and Mme. Thors, wife of the Icelandic Minister.

Mrs. Tom Clark, also a guest at the luncheon, has a daughter named "Mimi," who will not join the debutante ranks for some time. Luncheon guests whose daughters will bow this Christmas included Mrs. James Lawrence Houghteling, Mrs. Paul Putzki and Mrs. Rudolph Harrell.

Mrs. Miles Lanier Colean discussed plans for a tea she will give Christmas eve for her daughter, Miss Katherine Colean, a student at Smith who made her debut last Christmas. Mrs. Ferdinand Christensen has recently returned from the West Coast to join her daughter, Florence Montfort. She talked with Mrs. Edward F. Bartelt, wife of the Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, whose daughter Ruth is an active member of the younger set.

Mothers of escorts at the luncheon included Mrs. Craig King, Mrs. Carl Loos, Mrs. Cleveland Newton and Mrs. Albert Marlen. Their sons, Byron and Bob King, Howard and Dick Loos, John Newton and Drs. Albert and Jack Marlen, will have a full schedule during the holiday season.

Other guests invited to meet Mrs. McKee were Mrs. Gordon Gray, Mrs. Smith Blair, Mrs. Harold Brooks, Mrs. Parker West, Mrs. Mathew McGrath, Mrs. William Stroud and Mrs. James Craig Peacock.

This was the first in a short series of luncheons at which Mrs. Wadden will entertain this season.

Mexican Ambassador's Wife And Daughter Honored

MR. AND MRS. SANTIAGO MENDEZ entertained at the Congressional Country Club yesterday at a luncheon in honor of Senora de Espinosa de los Monteros, wife of the Mexican Ambassador, and her daughter, Senorita Blanca Espinosa de los Monteros.

Mother Implacably Disapproves Son's Fiancee Since They Got Engaged, Though She Liked Her Before; Also Wars Against His Choice of Work

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Having turned down a musical career to go into business against my mother's wishes, I am a good-for-nothing son in her opinion, and she has almost won father to her way of thinking.

Although I am doing well on my own and feeling happier than for a long time, and although persons outside the family seem very pleased about the progress I have made, she is adamant in her disapproval.

She circulates malicious stories about me, which all our friends and neighbors have heard; and although the majority discredit these absurd tales, nevertheless they do harm my morale and my business.

Now she has taken a sudden dislike to my fiancee, because her family isn't wealthy, which is odd in view of the fact that my family isn't opulently well off, either; and she liked Lucia well enough prior to our engagement.

Love Is Nothing, Mother Tells Him

I WOULDN'T care if Lucia were penniless, but mother argues that love doesn't mean anything,—as I'll live to learn in later years, she says. She bemoans the fact I didn't marry another young lady who, to mother's mind, has the all-important financial attributes.

My sister is having similar difficulty, as a result of falling in love with a fine young man whom mother snubs completely, even to the point of locking herself in her room when he calls—simply because he isn't a rich Vanderbilt.

Mother claims that I "go against" her in everything, and she stages terrible scenes on the subject periodically. Much as I try to avert them, arguments flare at almost every encounter; and consequently I stay away from home as much as possible nowadays, to avoid the terribly depressing, hostile atmosphere.

Both my sister and I are very fond of mother; but we feel we can't bear this sort of thing much longer, as it seems she just won't listen to reason. Can you suggest ways of keeping the peace, at least until we are married and have our own homes? D. B.

Mother Is Waging A Strangler-Fight

DEAR D. B.: Your mother is waging a merciless fight-to-the-finish to retain life-term absolute control of you and your sister. Almost she'd rather see you dead than have you escape her dominance. Such is her unconscious attitude, graphically signified in her overtly malicious behavior, aimed at destroying you socially and breaking your spirits or will to resist.

Hence there is no possibility of peace or truce with her, until your life performance over a period of adult years has demonstrated conclusively that she can't win. In the meantime your salvation depends on stoutly refusing to settle for "peace at any price."

Instead of cringing, feeling guilty about her displeasure, trying to appease, etc., you must rather realize her ruthless destructive purpose,—by-product of a hopelessly warped neurotic character,—and steel your mind and nerves to endure, as phlegmatically as possible, the punishment she deals out while you plow steadily ahead along lines of your choosing.

Prefers to Rule Or Ruin Offspring

IT'S DOUBTFUL that your mother would indorse anybody on earth as fit mate, from her viewpoint, for you or your sister, simply because she would regard marriage as interference with her intent to rule and exploit.

Certainly she would put up a fearful clamor, arguing specious objections—as indeed she has—if she thought either of you were in love with a potential spouse; and in such case would compulsively favor some allegedly more "suitable" prospect, picked by herself, the idea being to steer you into a loveless union and thus safeguard her first mortgage on your affections: or so her neurotic calculations run.

Not that she loves either of you, with a feeling worthy of the name; and not that she wants your love; but rather because a coercive dictator-slave bond is her neurotic substitute for reciprocal free exchange of wholesome affection in her personal—one can't rightly call them intimate—relations.

So, for advice: Know the truth about your mother, and the truth shall be your shield and buckler in withstanding her infamous campaign and gaining increasing measure of freedom from her pitiless clutches. M. H.

Can you tell me the name of a store that sells china made by C. Arenfelt, Limoges, France? A. K.

Can you give me a good recipe for Crab Imperial such as is served in restaurants? B. E. G.

The following recipe will make enough Crab Imperial to serve eight persons:

Remove the flaked meat from eight steamed crabs. Reserve the shells. Saute one chopped onion in butter or margarine. Add crab meat and season with salt and pepper. Add 6 or 7 cups of rich cream sauce, some Worcestershire sauce, 3 or 4 teaspoons English mustard, and some chopped chives. Bring mixture to boiling point and bind with 6 or more egg yolks. Add several tablespoons green and red peppers, chopped fine. Mix well. Fill washed crab shells with this mixture. Brush tops with French mustard and sprinkle with bread crumbs. Dot with bits of butter or margarine and bake in oven until brown. Garnish with chives or lemon slices.

Can you tell me how to remove some blue crayon which melted on my broadloom carpeting near a heat duct? L. K. E.

Sponge the spot with carbon tetrachloride, or make a paste of corn starch and carbon tetrachloride and work it into the rug. Allow it to dry, then brush it away. If the spot proves stubborn, it may be necessary to have the rug cleaned by a commercial company.

Have you a recipe for a really elegant fruit cake I could make now to keep for the holiday season? J. L. S.

Several very good recipes for fruit cake were published in a syndicated article by Essie L. Elliot which appeared in The Washington Post on November 18. Perhaps you have seen them by now as your letter was written before the article appeared. However, here is another recipe for a very delicious fruit cake:

FRUIT CAKE

¾ pound lemon peel
¼ pound orange peel
½ pound candied cherries
¼ pound California walnut meat
½ pound dates
½ pound candied pineapple
¼ pound citron
½ pound seeded raisins
¼ cup flour
1 cup shortening
½ cup sugar
½ cup honey
5 well-beaten eggs
1½ cups flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon allspice
½ teaspoon nutmeg
½ teaspoon cloves
6 tablespoons orange or grape juice

Shred the orange and lemon peel. Halve the cherries, nut meats and dates. Cut the pineapple and citron into small strips about an inch long. Dredge fruits in ¼ cup of flour. Cream shortening with the sugar and add the honey. Add eggs and beat until smooth. Add 1½ cups flour, sifted with dry ingredients, alternately with fruit juice and beat thoroughly. Pour batter over floured fruits and mix well. Line greased baking pans with greased brown paper, allowing ½ to extend above all sides of pan. Pour batter into pans and bake in a slow oven for 3 to 4 hours. If a flat pan of water is placed on the bottom shelf of the oven while the cake is baking, it will help to keep it moist and tender. This recipe makes one 5-pound cake.

Is there any way to clean rough bricks which face our fireplace? The house is quite new and they appear to have never been cleaned. Could the same method be used on the tile hearth? M. T.

Rough bricks can be cleaned with a stiff brush and scrubbing powder. Rinse well after scrubbing. After the bricks have thoroughly dried, their color can be enriched, although somewhat darkened, by applying a soaking coat of raw linseed oil. This will not only improve the appearance of the bricks but helps in keeping them clean. Be sure the oil has soaked in well before using the fireplace.

The tiled hearth should be cleaned with water and a cloth. Use a mild scouring powder on especially dirty places.

Can you tell me how to dye a pair of dark brown suede shoes black? G. S. K.

Black dye for use on suede shoes is sold by at least one large shoe repair shop in Washington. Directions for applying the dye are given on the bottle.

How can I get oil from the wringer of the washing machine out of a white wool blanket? A. P. Z.

An ordinary grease solvent such as gasoline, carbon tetrachloride, or benzene, may take out this oil. Or you can rub an absorbent, such as corn meal or salt into the spot, let it remain for awhile, then brush it out. Still another method is to place the stained part between blotting papers and press lightly with a warm iron. Change blotting paper as it becomes soiled. If there was dirt in the grease, you may then have to sponge with cleaning fluid to get it out. In using the fluid, always put a clean absorbent cloth or white blotter under the spot when you're sponging.

Atta Boy, Priest River!

Priest River, Idaho (U.P.).—Rumors that the high school here would forfeit the rest of its games this season because there are only 14 men on the football squad were denied indignantly by Coach Iry Morgan. As long as he could muster 11 men, Morgan said, Priest River would be in there fighting.

Man Given 15 Years in Rape Attempt

Ellicott City, Md., Nov. 25 (AP).—Frank J. Wentling, 32, of 526 H st. ne., Washington, was convicted today by a Howard County Circuit Court jury of assaulting with intent to rape a Hillside, Md., woman and was sentenced to 15 years in the Maryland State Penitentiary.

Wentling, a bartender, pleaded innocent.

The jury deliberated less than one hour before returning a verdict of "guilty without capital punishment."

The woman, 34, accused Wentling of attempting to rape her August 14 in a woods near Forestville, Prince Georges County, after she had visited an inn where he tended bar.

Witnesses said she appeared at their house in a seminude condition shortly afterwards, bleeding from cuts about the face and body. She spent four days in a hospital.

Wentling, who took the stand in his own defense, told Judge James Clark and the jury he had taken the woman out and had "beaten her up," but denied he had tried to rape her.

The case was transferred here on a change of venue.

Thieves entered the two-story brick house through an unlocked kitchen window. They also took four cases of Scotch whisky and two Bulova watches.

The Krugs are vacationing in Sea Island, Ga. They are due to return late this week.

Actual holding of gold coins is illegal, but an official of the mint said yesterday he guessed it's all right to keep one or two of them as a souvenir."

Mayor Sticks Neck Out

Wabash, Ind. (U.P.).—Mayor Homer T. Showalter has resolved never again to fine anyone else a kiss. The mayor claimed a fine of a kiss from a bride and dismissed traffic charges against a wedding party. The resultant publicity brought him a letter from a "lonesome friend" in Indianapolis asking him to get him a wife.

Some Kind of Record

Fort Worth, Tex. (U.P.).—Officers were surprised when they charged a Fort Worth man with two cases of assault to murder and learned that he had been arrested 475 times previously. In addition to the two assault charges, also pending were charges of forgery and drunkenness.

Court Voids Prince Georges Liquor License

Prince Georges County Circuit Court yesterday invalidated the beer and wine license which the Prince Georges Liquor Board granted Joseph W. Shuler for a restaurant on Route 5 near Jenkins Corners, not far from Andrews Field.

Judge Charles C. Marbury ruled that the liquor board's action in granting the license is illegal in that the law requiring proper signatures on the petition had not been complied with.

The license was granted by the liquor board after a public hearing September 18 at which 51 persons approved the license, the board's action being made contingent on Shuler's obtaining the required number of qualified petition signers.

Protesting citizens retained Attorney George G. McLeish and appealed the ruling to Circuit Court, which under the terms of a new law, becomes the court of appeal on liquor cases. The judge held the necessary signatures must be on the petition before the board acts.

'Torment' Is Splendid

An Honest Story Of Adolescence

By Richard L. Coe

THE LITTLE HAS A SPLENDID picture in "Torment." This is a finely delicate understanding of adolescence, and a film you shouldn't miss.

Yes, it's in Swedish, but don't let that throw you off. The makers of "Torment" know they're working with the camera and tell their story stunningly in pictures. Good as the English subtitles are, they're literally extraneous.

The story has an artless simplicity about it and, in contrast to most of our coast-grown epics, centers its attention on three people. While all the supporting characters are effectively played, these three are as memorable as any the year has offered.

One is a schoolboy, a fine, gentle chap just stepping into manhood. He's an average student, but his Latin is getting him down—Latin and a strange girl whom he can't get off his mind.

The girl has come to Stockholm to learn about life. She learns all too quickly and becomes a sad little floozy. But when she meets the lad she learns the value of decency and ideals.

Over them both looms a sadistic schoolmaster—Jan-Erik's Latin professor and Bertha's insistent tormentor. This essentially evil and terrifying personality is cased in a mild, colorless body. But his pupils have learned to hate him for his petty tyranny over them, his preoccupied colleagues suspect he is a bad influence on the school and the young girl, who works at the school's cafe counter, has learned to shudder at the very thought of him.

Promise of Redemption

Gradually the evil master's influence over these two young spirits reaches its tragic climax. The boy, through extraneous circumstances, is made to seem not only a cheat but a conspirator in the girl's mind. She, having known her taste of happiness through the decent idealism of the lad, is tracked down by the sadist, reverts to her former habit of living and dies, not through the hand of any murderer, but simply by nature's law.

The story ends with the promise of redemption for the boy and certain insanity for the master.

Despite the seeming morbidity of this theme, the film has a sane, healthy glow that is lacking in many of our American Code-protected films. Curiously, too, while it is an eminently adult film, there's no reason why youthful minds shouldn't find it a splendidly instructive experience.

The reason for this lies in "Torment's" integrity. It makes no effort to please anyone other than its makers. These people have said to themselves, "This is the story. We will tell it as honestly as we can." And they seem to add: "So if you don't like it, don't." Which is one way of making a good movie, just as it's one way of writing a good book, of composing vital music.

Well-known Swedish Actors

While the players may not be known to you, they are well-known Swedish actors. The Latin master is played by Stig Jarrel, one of the most versatile performers of the Swedish theater. Both the young people have been signed by Hollywood since the American release of "Torment."

The boy is Alf Kjellin, who at 24 had been in pictures since he was 15, so his artless art, you see, is not happenstance; it's experience. The girl is Mai Zetterling, soon to be seen in Britain's "Freida," another young player who's been acting for years.

The secondary characters are effectively real and you'll enjoy the film's opening sequence, a light beginning for what is to follow: you watch a 10-year-old trying to escape punishment for being late to assembly.

Yes, "Torment" is a notable achievement and one which will make you marvel once again that people the world over are all the same.

METRO yesterday beat the gun on getting The Wedding pictures on the Washington screens . . . The M-G-M version went on the screens of the Palace and Columbia shortly after noon and seems to have beaten the field . . . Fox News wound up on the Capitol screen a few hours later . . . No doubt about it, they're a great display of pageantry and an interesting reply to some of those letters in our editorial pages of late . . . After all, those vast, cheering throngs didn't have to turn out to glimpse (and few could hardly have had more than a glimpse) the figurehead of their nation . . . One refinement of royal weddings: instead of rice and old shoes, rose petals seem to be the thing to throw at the man and wife . . . Even that, though, looks a bit rough, the way they get tossed in your face.

"TORMENT." Oxford Films release of an SF production. Story and script by Ingmar Bergman, with American version prepared by Edward L. Kingsley. Directed by Alf Sjoberg. Music by Hilding Rosenberg. At the Little.

THANKSGIVING DAY—and that means tomorrow—sees quite an impressive list of new pictures on the downtown screens. "Green Dolphin Street," first result of Metro's juicy contest bait for novelists, takes over the Palace, with Lana Turner and Richard Hart in the leads . . . "Song of Love," with Artur Rubenstein at the unseen piano in this musical romance about the Schumans, Brahms and Liszt, arrives at the Capitol with the movies' Marilyn Maxwell as the stage headliner . . . Shirley Temple and Ronald Reagan star in Warner's "That Hagen Girl" . . . and the Metropolitan and the Columbia both go native—the first with a revival of Jean Arthur in "Arizona," the second with "Drums Along the Mohawk," with Claudette Colbert and Henry Fonda in the Walter D. Edmonds story.

TONIGHT the Palace takes note of the adults who like to take their kiddies to the all-cartoon shows . . . At a special Thanksgiving Eve midnight show, there'll be 14 color cartoons in a two-hour show . . . Now all the kiddies' cartoon-mad parents have to do is scare up a sitter.

TOMORROW: Richard L. Coe reviews Keith's Danny Kaye comedy, "The Secret Life of Walter Mitty," which opens this morning.

AN IDYLLIC MOMENT: Alf Kjellin and Mai Zetterling as the youthful lovers of "Torment," the Little's new arrival, which won last year's top honor at the Cannes International Film Festival. These two Swedish players have both been signed for American film appearances

Prince Georges Health Officer Leaves Dec. 31

Dr. John M. Byers, Prince Georges County health officer for the past seven years, submitted his resignation yesterday to the county commissioners, meeting in Upper Marlboro.

The resignation, effective December 31, was accepted by the commissioners. Dr. Byers said he plans to accept a position with the central office of the Maryland State Department of Health.

"My work has been very pleasant and I hope not without profit to the county," he told the commissioners. He expressed appreciation for the cooperation shown him by county officials and Prince Georges residents.

The commissioners went on record as opposed to Capital Transit Co.'s discontinuance of the Branchville-Beltsville streetcar shuttle line. A public hearing on the proposed discontinuance will be held December 9 in Baltimore by the Maryland Public Service Commission.

Commissioner Harry McNamee told his fellow commissioners 300 homes have been built along the line because of the transportation convenience it affords and that a number of others are planned. The commissioners' opposition will be expressed in a letter to the Public Service Commission.

Capital Transit recently proposed to discontinue the line on grounds it is losing money and that a Greyhound Bus line runs almost parallel to the tracks and within walking distance.

Auto Shop Disapproved

The commissioners disapproved a petition from William E. Hawkins for rezoning of lots 49, 50 and 51 of block 25 from residential to commercial to permit an auto repair and painting shop; and a petition from Charles E. Karr for rezoning of lots 56, 57 and 58 of the same block to industrial to permit a concrete block manufacturing plant. Both are on N st. between 49th and 50 th sts. in Hillside. The Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission and the Hillside Citizens Association opposed such rezoning at public hearings last Wednesday at Hyattsville.

The commissioners also refused a permit for a day nursery for three children at 6210 41st pl., in Hyattsville. The permit was asked by Mrs. Anna M. Reichart.

The board approved establishing Dupont Heights as Special Improvement District No. 33 and installation of street lights in East Lanham Hills, Special Improvemntment District No. 12. It approved installation of street lights and collection of trash and garbage for Boulevard Heights, SID No. 31 and the construction of curbs and gutters along LaSalle rd. in Avondale, SID. No. 1.

The commissioners accepted 800 feet of 57th ave. to the boundary of Cheverly in Tuxedo, as a public road; approved the use of 6205 Marlboro pike as a used-car lot as requested by Leroy Daniels, owncmfwyp m m er, and approved appointment of Raymond A. Luedke as a forest warden at Laurel.

Small-Home Development Hit by Johns

By Roger Farquhar
Post Reporter

Charges by President Brooke Johns, of the Montgomery County commissioners, that the county's first large scale small home development will deteriorate into "a slum area in 5 to 7 years" were heatedly denied yesterday by the builders.

The 1400-home project on Viers Mill rd., just north of Wheaton, Md., was strongly criticized by President Johns who called upon civic groups to oppose erection of "such cheap box-like houses which will be disastrous to Montgomery County."

He made his remarks to representatives of four large county groups who appeared yesterday to oppose apartment and commercial rezonings in the county's residential areas.

Charges Challenged

Declaring that the county is "overloading itself with these cheap houses," Johns said:

"If you are as civic minded as I think you are, you will fight this type development more than the apartment or commercial projects."

Referring specifically to the Viers Mill project, John charged the 1400 four-room, frame bungalows on the 328 acre site were costing the builders "about $4500 and they will sell for $8500." It will cost the Suburban Sanitary Commission $800,000 to run water and sewer lines into the project," he said.

Harold Strauss, secretary of the Haris Construction Co., of New York, builders of the development, defended the homes. "We challenge Johns or anybody else to compare the cost of our homes and the material used with other new homes," he said.

School is Planned

Each house will sell for $8600, Strauss said, declaring John' charge that the homes will cost only $4500 to build was "ridiculous." He said the same home cost the firm $4500 in 1939 before construction costs doubled.

Each of the 1400 homes will be sold to veterans only, Strauss said.

A spokesman for the Suburban Sanitary Commission confirmed that cost of running water and sewer lines into the community will cost about $800,000 but he added that thus far the SSC is only committed to servicing a small portion of the total number of homes. Officials said only 62 building permits have been issued to date with 188 more requested.

Strauss also declared the construction firm negotiating with the board of education over a 10-acre school site in the "heart" of the huge housing development. County authorities, he said, have agreed to build a school on the site.

Spokesmen for the County Civic Federation, Allied Civic Groups, League of Women Voters and the Citizens Zoning Committee attended yesterday's meeting.

42 Billion Phone Calls Made in U. S. in Year

New York (U.P.).—The average American used the telephone 301 times last year, building up a total of 42 billion conversations for the whole Nation in 1946, the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. reported.

The United States has three fifths of the world's telephones—one instrument for every four persons, compared with a world average of one for every 43 persons.

New York led the world's cities with the most telephones in service, 2,213,828, or more than in all of France.

Papaya Grower to Heat His Grove With Gas

McAllen, Tex. (U.P.).—W. P. Bates is going to heat his papaya grove with gas.

A natural gas field is directly underneath his land, a gas well is nearby and he's arranged to pipe the gas out among the trees where it can be lit on chilly nights.

"Don't have to worry much about cold here in the Lower Rio Grande Valley," Bates explained. "But sometimes it gets a little chilly. With my gas heaters it won't hurt papayas."

Girl Student Who Rang False Alarm 'Punished'

Fredericksburg, Va., Nov. 25.—The student who turned on the dormitory fire alarm at Mary Washington College for women here was nabbed in the act, but no rule could be found which prescribed punishment for the offense.

After mature deliberation the student government solemnly decreed that the culprit should write an essay on the subject in question.

The author's opening sentence: "Fire alarms are put in buildings for one purpose only—to inform the occupants thereof to vacate immediately."

Carrollton Manor Hotel Proposal Is Rejected

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 25 (AP).—Anne Arundel County commissioners today turned down an application to permit construction of a small hotel at Carrollton Manor by John M. Garrette of Baltimore.

The commissioners' action was taken after residents of the section appeared at a hearing to protest that building a hotel would produce traffic hazards and endanger the "safety" of the community.

Tobacco Men Ask Inclusion In Aid Plans

By The Associated Press

Tobacco State legislators are agreed, Senator Hoey (D., N. C.) said today, that "there is little chance" of including tobacco in temporary European aid programs. At the same time a special tobacco committee recommended that tobacco "should be included in foreign relief programs."

The committee members said after a conference here that they want any policy-making parts of stopgap aid which will be carried into long-range planning to include tobacco among foreign-aid shipments.

Hoey told a reporter later that progress has been made today toward removal of restrictions which control "sale or gift" of tobacco held under Government loans to farmers. The Commodity Credit Corp. is expected to have about 500,000,000 pounds of tobacco under such loans shortly.

Hoey said several million pounds of tobacco has been taken by the Government on unpaid loans. "We are considering whether the tobacco should be sold at a reduced price or given by the Government" to foreign countries, Hoey said.

It was learned that officials of the Tobacco Stabilization Corp., Raleigh, N. C., including T. E. Weeks, secretary-treasurer, are discussing the export situation with Federal officials.

Md. Income For October Up 6 Million

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 25 (AP).—Maryland's income during October was $6,745,272 more than in the same month last year, but it spent $4,362,670 more than in the preceding October.

Comptroller James J. Lacy made public figures today showing that total receipts for the fiscal year, beginning July 1, for special and general funds were $43,752,341 while $37,912,477 was paid out. Receipts for October were $10,309,392 and disbursements $15,962,419.

There has been no change in the computation of the expected State surplus at the end of the fiscal year next June, but a revised estimate will be prepared at the close of State business this month.

Alcoholic beverage revenue showed an increase during October, but not sufficient to overcome the earlier losses this fiscal year.

Among the important sources of revenue, with comparable figures for the last fiscal year through October, Lacy listed the following:

Real and personal property, $1,127,198 against $1,178,038 last year; corporations, $2,321,289 against $2,162,543; gasoline, $6,119,157 against $4,957,174; motor vehicle licenses, $1,120,595 against $842,381; motor vehicle titling, $1,296,241, against $647,650; alcoholic beverages, $2,351,334 against $2,836,594; income, $2,974,890 against $1,434,014; sales and use, $5,727,447 (no tax last year); horse racing, $631,772 against $439,078; hospitals and training schools, $398,039 against $418,313.

Location Assigned Mobile X-Ray Unit In Takoma Park

Mayor Oliver T. Youngblood and the City Council of Takoma Park, Md., last night designated the intersection of Laurel and Carroll aves. as the official location of the Montgomery County mobile X-ray unit when it visits the city.

Luke Bennett, president of the Community League, criticized the "inadequate" police organization in Takoma Park, and stated that the city should not have to rely on county police when city force members are on vacation. Answering the charge, Councilman John T. Parkerson said the council hopes to get an additional policeman, thus raising the force from four members to five.

The council also scheduled a meeting with the Takoma Park Volunteer Fire Department on December 3 to work out plans for operating the department. Legislation recently passed in Maryland gives the city control of operation and maintenance of fire department buildings.

Business Permit Inquiry Ordered

Baltimore, Nov. 25 (AP).—State Comptroller James J. Lacy disclosed tonight that he has ordered an immediate investigation into all phases of licensing by the State of persons to do business.

The announcement came was a result of statements in the last week by William Muth, vice president of the Baltimore City Council, that in the city alone around 3000 contractors owed more than $350,000 in delinquent license taxes; that night clubs may owe more than $100,000; and that about 300 undertakers may be liable for around $75,000 for traders' licenses.

Meanwhile, a dozen more Baltimore contractors visited the clerk of the Court of Common Pleas today and paid about $650 in back fees and penalties. Yesterday the clerk collected $1200 from 14 other contractors.

Slot-Machine Foes Campaign In St. Marys

Leonardtown, Md., Nov. 25 (AP).—The Rev. Richard T. Scholl, a member of the board of governors of St. Mary's County Civic Association, said today the group was urging a vote against legalization of slot machines.

The referendum will be voted on December 9 at a special election authorized by the General Assembly. The Legislature granted the county commissioners authority to collect $50 license fees on each machine if they become legal.

The Rev. Scholl said the civic association, an active county force against gambling, feels the legalization "is bad for the county for many reasons. It is an unfair presentation in that the people aren't being given an opportunity to study the bill.

"It is bad economically and morally. We also feel it will be the opening wedge for gambling on a much bigger scale."

The association, which claims a membership of 400, was instrumental in having a special grand jury return gambling indictments against 24 defendants. After two of the three trials held here in September resulted in hung juries the remainder of the cases were transferred to Montgomery County.

The three county commissioners earlier had urged a vote in favor of making slot machines legal. They claimed they "would yield a substantial revenue to the county and lessen the ever-increasing tax rate on real estate."

Freedom Train Visited by 10,000 In Baltimore

Baltimore, Nov. 25 (AP).—After a descendant of a signer of the Declaration of Independence cut a tape, an estimated 10,000 Baltimoreans filed through the Freedom Train which is stopping here for two days on its tour of the country with America's most important historical documents.

Eleanor Lloyd Carroll, a descendant of Charles Caroll, opened the red, white and blue cars to visitors.

Governor Lane offered a proclamation entitled "Rededication to American Ideals" and Mayor D'Alesandro welcomed the train with its more than 100 precious documents as "a dramatic symbol of human freedom."

Walter H. S. O'Brien, train director, said more than 580,000 persons had inspected the documents up to their arrival in Baltimore.

Consolidated School Proposed

Fredericksburg, Va., Nov. 25—City Councilman Edward H. Cann has proposed to his colleagues that a consolidated high school be erected for Fredericksburg and the counties of Spotsylvania, Stafford and King George.

Cann said the plan would result in a saving of $150 per student per year, would end the critical school housing shortage and solve the teacher problem for the city and counties. He suggested that the building be erected near Fredericksburg, which would mean that some children in King George would have to travel about 40 miles to school each day. The latter angle is expected to bring opposition from the counties.

The plan which has the support of the State Department of Education, will be discussed with the counties' school authorities.

Man Halts Attempt To Fire Synagogue

Baltimore, Nov. 25 (AP).—Police said an attempt to set fire to a synagogue here was frustrated by a passerby. They said the would-be arsonist fled when detected.

Edwin Batchelor of Catonsville told Southwestern District police last night he was walking on the opposite side of Smallwood st. from the Moses Montefiore Congregation when he saw a man touch a match to a pile of newspapers piled in the doorway.

The man ran up an alleyway when he approached, Batchelor said.

Police reported a part of the doorway of the synogogue was scorched.

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 25 (AP).—Agriculture, education and Government will claim the attention of Maryland farmers next week during a three-day session of the State grange at Carvel Hall.

The program for the conclave runs the gamut from a one-act play contest to a speech by Governor Lane.

Twenty-seven speakers are listed for various meetings of the session.

Chief speakers besides the Governor will be Master of the Grange Edward F. Holter, who will deliver the annual address; Dr. Roger Corbett, who will discuss "Some problems in American Agriculture," Dr. Thomas C. Pullen, State superintendent of education, Mrs. Harry Caldwell, master of the North Carolina State Grange, and Albert G. Fritz of the State Department of Health.

Business Session Tuesday

The farmers will come to Carvel Hall Tuesday morning for a business meeting at which various reports will be received and a program approved. Resolutions also will be handed in at this meeting for referral to proper committees.

In the afternoon a panel, "Modifying Home Life Through Outside Contacts," will be conducted with Mrs. P. D. Brown of La Plata as moderator. At the evening session the finals in the play contest will be held along with a style show, including winners of the home economics contest. Mrs. H. M. Carroll of Bel Air will be in charge.

To Review Tax Situation

Paul Walker of College Park will review the tax situation at Wednesday's opening session. His talk will be followed by a report of the grange executive committee by D. G. Harry of Pylesville and of the juvenile committee by Mrs. Howard U. Quinn of Frederick.

Election of officers will be held Thursday morning. They will be installed in the afternoon.

Shooting of Boy By 'Taunted' Man Held Inexcusable

Hagerstown, Md., Nov. 25 (AP).—"There isn't any excuse for what this man did," Judge Joseph D. Mish declared today in convicting Frank D. Stull, 42, of a charge of assault connected with the shooting of a 14-year-old boy who allegedly taunted the defendant.

Judge Mish reserved sentence on the charge to which Stull pleaded no defense.

Stull testified he did not intend to hit anyone when he fired a .32 caliber revolver October 24, at a group of boys he said were teasing him. The bulletin struck David Schindel in the thigh.

4-Acre Sand Bar Still Ownerless

Richmond, Va., Nov. 25 (AP).—A four-acre sand bar in Lynnhaven inlet east of Ocean Park will remain without an owner for the time being, at least.

After an hour's hearing in Governor Tuck's office today, the Chief Executive announced the sand bar's situation would remain "in status quo" with neither Norfolk-Southern Railway nor Ivan Mapp, of Princess Anne County, police chief, receiving title to the spit.

Mapp filed claim to the sand bar, which has been building up for a number of years, about six months ago seeking to acquire it from the State as unappropriated land. Norfolk Southern opposed any such grant on the ground that the sand bar was "an accretion' to its present property.

Extra of $2.50 Voted

Bradford, Pa., Nov. 25 (AP).—An extra dividend of $2.50 in addition to the regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents was declared today by directors of the South Penn Oil Co. It is payable December 19 to stock of record December 5. The total dividends of $3.50 in 1947 compare with $2 last year.

In Barber's Death

Rock Hall Man Cleared Of Murder

Easton, Md., Nov. 25 (AP).—A Cecil County jury today acquitted George E. Whaland, 35, of Rock Hall, of a charge of second degree murder for the death of an Elkton barber at a fish fry.

The jury deliberated 55 minutes before freeing Whaland, who had testified he had no recollection of kicking Michael Peterson, 39, at a lodge picnic along the Elk River last June 22. The case was transferred here at the request of the defense.

State's Attorney Henry Constable accused Whaland of kicking Peterson who died half an hour later.

The defendant said he "hardly knew" Peterson, and that he was in a daze at the time of the alleged fight from a blow on the head received in an earlier argument.

Motion to Quash Bank Case Denied In Fredericksburg

Richmond, Va., Nov. 25 (AP).—Judge Sterling Hutcheson in Federal district court today overruled motions to quash an indictment and to dismiss a jury panel, made on the grounds that women had been systematically excluded from both grand juries and petit juries in Federal courts in Virginia.

The motions had been made by Attorney Thomas H. Stone, who argued that his client, Leslie Earl Martin, had been deprived of his constitutional rights in an indictment returned against him by an all-male grand jury charging him with attempting to influence a juror in the involved Fredericksburg Bank case here last spring.

The attempt with which Martin is charged ultimately led the United States Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals to order a new trial in the bank case.

Havre de Grace Is Told to Obey Pollution Ban

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 25 (AP).—Paul W. McKee, executive secretary of the Maryland Water Pollution Control Commission, said today Havre de Grace, like other municipalities, would have to stop dumping garbage into rivers or streams.

McKee said officials of the town had asked whether it would be required to comply with the recently issued regulations against such dumping.

The executive secretary said other towns would face the same problems.

The commission regulations make it illegal to put garbage or food containers into State waters as well as to discharge oil from boats into waters within State jurisdiction except in emergencies or accidents.

Bay Project Due To Begin April 1

Hagerstown, Md., Nov. 25 (AP).—Governor Lane told a gathering of about 250 here that "we should be able to start pitching dirt" in the Chesapeake Bay Bridge project about next April 1.

Governor and Mrs. Lane and their daughter Dorothy were guests of the Democratic Club of Washington County at a dinner here last night. It was Lane's first official "homecoming" since he took the gubernatorial reins last January.

Lane said it would be possible to "nail down the Federal point of view" in Washington talks on the proposed bay crossing. Army engineers objected to the original form of the proposal, which would have permitted tolls to be used for other projects.

He said it would take about 27 months to complete the trans-bay highway.

Contractors Told to Expand Facilities for Md. Road Jobs

By The Associated Press

The Maryland State Roads Commission yesterday notified Maryland contractors they would have to expand their facilities if they are to be able to handle an expansion of work called for under a five-year improvement plan costing $175,000,000.

Road Chairman Robert Reindollar sent letters to officers of the Maryland Highway Contractors Association and the Maryland Aggregate Producers Association calling for a meeting December 16.

Reindollar said the State's highway improvement program will be outlined at the session.

Reindollar said the State hoped to spend a minimum of $25,000,000 on roads next year. The first year's projects will be divided into three categories: dual highways, two-lane highways and improvement of existing roads.

The dual highways contemplated include: Baltimore to Washington, Frederick to Washington, Frederick to Baltimore, York road from Baltimore to Pennsylvania, Reisterstown to Westminster, approaches to the new bay crossing, Sandy Point to Washington and Stevensville to Queenstown.

The anticipated 25 million dollar expenditure in 1948 compares with seven million dollars in road contracts awarded this year.

Our Man Godfrey Thrown for Loss in T-Zone

Arthur Godfrey, the man who eats raw sponsors for breakfast, is currently being as humble as Godfrey ever gets.

In a recent edition of Parade, the magazine section of The Washington Post, there was a picture story of radio's Cinderella Boy.

GODFREY

It showed Godfrey at work and Godfrey at play—and, among other things, it showed Godfrey with an open package of Camel cigarettes beside his radio script.

During the next few days thousands of letters arrived, to snow under the cigarettes, the table and even Godfrey himself.

"How come," they wanted to know, "that you smoke Camels, when you're sponsored by Chesterfield?"

Arthur explains that the picture was taken before he went to work for Chesterfield, and that he really isn't as disloyal to his sponsor as it might appear.

But the moral of the story remains clear: If you have anything to hide, keep it out of The Washington Post.

ADD NAMES

Linda Ann Harty of 900 Ellsworth dr., Silver Spring, Md., writes:

"Tell A. V. B. that 'The Lady from 29 Palms' does make sense, because that's the name of a town out West—strange as it seems."

"It's a little town in the California desert," adds Sylvia Manatos of 518 9th st. ne. "The lady is undoubtedly a slick chick from that town."

"It's a small real estate development near Palm Springs," says Helen M. Gray of 301 Massachusetts ave. ne. "As a matter of fact, it was supposed to be a 'desert spa,' to compete with Palm Springs."

"It's well named," explains Mrs. Alvin B. Chettle of 411 N. Granada, Arlington Forest, Va. "It has exactly 29 palms."

". . . and can be easily identified by the Cadillac parked under each of those palms," adds Jeanette Mumms of 3268 Valley dr., Alexandria, Va.

"Yes, there's really a town called 29 Palms," advises C. Kenneth Koch of 4507 1st st. se. "I know because I work for the Navy, helping to keep track of personnel—and we used to get reports from a naval air station there."

"Pilots never referred to it as a good duty station," says Lieut. Comdr. Arthur L. Schoeni, editor of the Naval Aviation News. "It was strictly, an oasis, with sand and 29 palm trees. I doubt if there ever was a 'lady.'"

T/Sergt. A. G. K. of Alexandria, Va., says:

"It's the kind of town that Palm Springs was 20 years ago, before Hollywood discovered it. And speaking of strange names, how about 'The Angel's Flight Railway Co.' in Los Angeles?"

You have a point, Sarge, but for my money it's not nearly as strange as some of the place names you'll find in West Virginia. Offhand, I recall:

Cutlips, War, Hurricane, Shock, Tariff, Cotton, Ambrosia, Chap, Sod, Man, Six, Quick, Omps, Joker, Frost and Frozen.

Think of how strange the song title would be if it were "The Lady From Omps."

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

Uncle Sam wants to send food to Europe—
And to give would be excellent taste
For the guys and the gals I have noticed
Whose food is just going to WAIST.

HELP WANTED

"I'm trying to teach leather handicraft to Girl Scouts, and we need some scrap leather," writes Mrs. Walter Capron of 4912 N. 16th rd., Arlington, Va.

"I still have the patterns and tools I used as a Grey Lady during the war, but we do need some help with the scrap leather."

District Liners who are in a position to help are invited to contact Mrs. Capron.

MAIL BAG

"Thank you so much for your decision to retain the Give-Away items in your column," writes Mrs. Paul Seibel of the Park Lane.

"We can't keep pets, of course—and since I didn't have a home to offer to any of your kittens, I just kept quiet until the battle was over.

"But I fully agree with you that it's better to live in a slum than to be 'painlessly put to sleep'."

NATURALLY

Joan Kimmell of 8200 Nolta ave., Silver Spring, Md., wonders whether I've ever noticed that the car which is usually parked in front of the Russian Embassy is a RED Packard.

THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Andy Downey of 1646 33d st. nw, finds that he's less inclined to gripe since he saw a sign which said:

"I complained because I had no shoes—until I met a man who had no feet."

Leonard Lyons . . .

NEW YORK—Brazil's Dr. Oswaldo Aranha told some U. N. delegates and Col. H. H. Josephs the apocryphal story of San Marino, the tiniest and oldest state in Europe, whose representative was sent here to get help under the Marshall Plan. "We have an economic and currency problem," he said, "and we need $100,000" . . . "Have you any Communists in your country?" Secretary Marshall asked. The man said "No." No Communists"—proving that this story must be apocryphal, because the World Almanac lists 18 Red members in San Marino's Grand Council . . . "Sorry, we can't give you the credits," Marshall told him. "No Communists, no Marshall Plan credits."

On his way home the man conferred with Premier Ramadier of France, related his plight and asked: "So can you lend us some of your many Communists?" . . . "Sorry. No." Ramadier replied. "We need all the Communists we have, because France needs a lot of credits from Mr. Marshall."

All the other movie companies followed suit, in the decision of the 20th Century-Fox to fire acknowledged Reds, etc. One independent producer, however, is a hold out, insisting that the industry should do its house cleaning privately.

"Song of Angelina," the theme song of Ernst Lubitsch's new picture, "Lady in Ermine," was written by Lubitsch first for his 10-year-old daughter.

Friday night Louis Calhern appeared before Prof. Bernard Sobel's class in press agentry at the New School for Social Research. The students were invited to question Calhern about the art of interviewing theater stars . . . "What is the first practical thing to remember in interviewing a theater or movie star?" one of the students asked Calhern . . . The star replied: "Beware of actors who tell you: 'Oh, you don't want anything to print about poor little insignificant me.' Beware of them, because if nothing's printed they'll kick you in the teeth."

Greer Garson went to the Waldorf Friday night to address the New York newspaper women's dinner, and delivered her speech to the delighted customers at the radio directors' dinner in another ballroom. Miss Garson eventually found the right dinner.

The Senate Banking Committee's forthcoming investigation on wartime speculation in Government bonds will reveal that one speculator was a bank with which a bond drive official was associated.

Meyers Kept Three Sets of Books

By Drew Pearson

Now that the Senate War Investigating Committee has dipped into the personal bookkeeping practices of Maj. Gen. Bennett E. Meyers, it might also take a good, penetrating look at the way he kept top-secret records of the Army Air Forces materiel command during the war.

Meyers

The Senate Committee has developed the fact that General Meyers concealed hundreds of thousands of dollars of personal income. But if it looks thoroughly into the Air Corps, it will discover that Meyers kept three sets of books on Air Corps procurement.

Even such top-flight War Department officials as then Undersecretary Robert P. Patterson had difficulty getting the true facts about the Air Corps buying program from Meyers. And when Patterson finally sent several aides to see Meyers to determine whether the Air Corps was wasting Federal funds, they learned that Meyers kept three sets of books.

Set No. 1 told the true facts about the procurement program. This was for the eyes of brass hats only.

Set No. 2 was for the White House and was calculated to show Roosevelt how able and brilliant top Air Corps officers were.

Set No. 3, again different from the other two, was designed to show Congress how hard up the Air Corps was and why it needed more money.

Patterson's former assistants say Meyers' superiors were fully aware of Meyers' bookkeeping practices. At one point when Patterson ordered an assistant to make a survey of Air Corps procurement practices, Arnold and Meyers even fought the survey, and it was only by calling in private engineers that Patterson was able to calculate the exact status of Air Corps procurement.

This survey showed that Air Corps buying policies strongly resembled a man drinking coffee and eating doughnuts. If he had half a doughnut left over he ordered another cup of coffee; if he had half a cup of coffee left over, he ordered another doughnut—thus making for an endless cycle.

In the case of the Air Corps, when the brass hats had too many pilots they ordered more planes. When they had too many planes they ordered more gasoline and pilots. When the quantity of pilots, planes and gasoline got out of proportion they ordered more air bases.

Patterson finally had the report read to a meeting of Hap Arnold's air staff, following which Arnold acidly inquired:

"How many copies of that report are there?"

"Three," replied Patterson's aide.

"Put them in the safe," said Arnold, turning on his heel and storming out of the room.

What Arnold didn't know until later was that there was a fourth copy of the report. This was taken to Harry Hopkins by Isidor Lubin, then a White House secretary. Hopkins summoned Arnold to the White House and showed him the copy of the report charging Air Corps waste. Arnold claimed there was no truth to it whatsoever.

General Meyers' occasional arrogance frequently angered some of his associates. One successful Washington businessman who served the Air Corps with the rank of colonel passed Meyers one day in the lobby of a Dayton (Ohio), hotel. Meyers threw his hotel key at the colonel and told him to give the key to the hotel clerk. The colonel, not used to being ordered around like an office boy, let the key drop to the floor and walked away. An hour later the colonel, who is worth several million dollars, visited General Meyers in his office and said:

"Benny, I'm thinking of buying an airplane for myself after the war."

"You are?" replied Meyers.

"Yes," replied the colonel, with a bloody look in his eye, "and I'm thinking of hiring an Air Corps general to pilot it for me."

After that Meyers threw no more keys in hotel lobbies.

Truman on Russia

President Truman used the clenched fist of the Communists in talking about Joe Stalin the other day. Discussing world problems with John L. Colob, national commander of the Disabled American Veterans, Truman asserted:

"My life and my work are dedicated to keeping the world at peace. I'll do everything within my power to preserve, but"—he held up a closed fist— "we are prepared to use this if we absolutely have to.

"I don't want to see any more crops of disabled vets," Truman continued. "We've had two huge crops from the last two wars. Our European friends have had even greater ones. Their disabled veterans far outnumber their war dead."

The President went on to say that if the American people had a better understanding of the tragic condition of the countries we are trying to help, they would be even more generous.

"We must understand that these countries are made up largely of old men and cripples, women and children," Truman said, "because of the great toll war has taken in their manpower. Therefore, we must be all the more patient in helping these unfortunate countries to get back on their feet."

Tears to Come

By James J. Metcalfe

There will be times when you and I . . . Will sort of disagree . . . And even times when you will wish . . . You had not married me . . . And you will say some angry words . . . And, darling, so will I . . . While either one or both of us . . . Will pout and start to cry . . . But that is part of married life . . . And that is in the cup . . . And what will be the difference then . . . As long as we make up? As long as you and I embrace . . . And kiss the tears away . . . And hold each other tenderly . . . Until another day? . . . The joy of married life is not . . . The sum of smiles and tears . . . But just the understanding love . . . That lasts throughout the years.
